A BALL OF FIRE.

Pranks of a Thunderbolt In a House In Paris.

Camille Flammarion in his book "Thunder and Lightning" describes some of the phenomena of electrical storms. Of the actions of a ball of fire in Paris he says: "It was in the Rue St. Jacques, near the Val de Grace. The fire ball burst into the room from the chimney, knocking over the paper guard in front of the fireplace. In appearance it suggested a young cat gath ered up in a ball, as it were, and mov ing along without using its paws. It approached the tailor's legs as if to play with them. The tailor moved them away to avoid the contact, of which he naturally was in terror.

"After some seconds the globe of fire rose vertically to the height of the man's face as he sat, and he to save himself leaned quickly back and fell over. The fire ball continued to rise and made its way toward a hole which had been made at the top of the chim ney for the insertion of a stovepipe in winter, but which, as the tailor put it afterward, 'the fire ball con'dn't see, because it was closed up with paper,

'The ball stripped off the paper neat ly, entered the chimney quite quietly and, having risen to the sun mit, pro duced a tremendous explosion, which sent the chimney pot flying and scat tered it in bits all over the neighboring courtyard and surrounding roofs."

LIFE'S LITTLE THINGS.

They Go a Very Long Way Toward Making the World Harpy.

A wild bird's song is a little thinglost in the deeps of a frowning sky. And yet as it falls on a listening ear and leaves its message of melody earth's green seems brighter and life is sweeter all through an autumn day. The coo of a babe is a little thingmeaningless sound from a vacant mind.

But 'tis the only sound that all nations heed-the one clear language that all races know. A mother's love is a little thing-too soon, alas, forgot! But it typifies to blind humankind the love and trust and hope divine that bear with patience calm and sweet the willful wrongs in these lives of ours. A passing smile is a little thing-lost in a world of toil and care. And yet the soul with gloom oppress ed and the life grown wearled with burdens hard will happier be in the afterglow of a smile that is warmly

A kindly word is a little thingbreath that goes and a sound that dies But the heart that gives and the heart that hears may know that it sings and sings and sings till at last It blends with the wild bird's song and the coo of babes in what men call the celestial choir.-Milwaukee Journal.

Lessons For Schoolboys.

There is no question that our fore fathers supposed that benefit might be derived from causing schoolboys to be spectators of the bangings of criminals. Sir Walter Scott has borne testimony to this custom being not unknown in Scotland. In "The Heart of Midlothian" Mr. Saddletree is represented as saying:

I promised to ask a half play day to th schule so that the bairns might gang and see the hanging, which canna but have a pleasing effect on their young minds, see-ing there is no knowing what they may come to themselves.-Chapter 26. Sir Walter would not, we may assume, have written the above had he not known that such things had actually taken place, - London Notes and Queries.

The sea otter is nearly twice the size of the common river ofter, and the fur. without finishing or preparation of any kind, is more beautiful as it is stripped from the animal than the richest seal skin, which has to be scraped, plucked of the long upper hairs and then dyed before it could be recognized as the beautiful object which the finished fur undoubtedly is. In the sea ofter's fur the soft undercoat, the true fur, is as thick as that of the seal and nearly twice as long, while the long outer hairs are as soft as a sable's tail and often a pale gray, which gives to the whole coat an appearance as of dark fur slightly frosted over.

Bird Confidence.

Mr. Bell's aviary presented a pretty evidence of mutual confidence among birds. A pair of Java sparrows lived in a compartment with a "bleeding heart" pigeon. The latter fell in love with them and at night always cuddled a sparrow under each wing. When seen by the light of a lantern the pigeon seemed to be cuddling two babies, one under each wing, from which the cheerful countenances of the little sparrows looked with blinking eyes.-London Spectator.

His Definition.

A teacher in a certain school asked for the definition of a furrier. A hand was raised. "Well, John, you tell us what a furrier is." "A man who deals in furs," correctly replied the pupil. Then, turning to another scholar, the tencher asked for the definition of a currier. "A man who deals in curs," was the unexpected reply of the eager

AN INDIAN LEGEND.

The Grandfather of All Mosquitoes

There are pretty hig mosquitoes in the world, but if report be true they have greatly degenerated in size and strength since the days when this legend was believed by many tribes of Indians. The grandfather of all mosquitoes lived in the neighborhood of Onondaga, N. Y. When he grew hungry he would sally forth and eat an Indian or two and pick his teeth with their ribs. The Indians had no arms that would prevail against this monster, so they called upon the holder of heavens to come down. Finding that he had met his match in this person, the is auito flew away. He flew around the great lake. turned eastward, sought help from the witches that inhabited the Green lake and had reached Lake Onondaga when his pursuer came up and killed him.

As his blood poured forth on the sand each drop became a smaller mosquito. They gathered about the hold er of the heavens and stung him so cruelly that he half repented the service he had rendered to the Indians,

The Tuscaroras say that two of the mosquitoes stood on opposite sides of the Seneca river and slew all who passed. Hiawatha killed them. A reservation stone marks the place where the holder rested during his chase, and tracks were until lately seen south of Syracuse alternated with the footprints of the mosquito. These footprints were shaped like those of a bird and were twenty inches long. These marks were revered by the Indians for many years. Brooklyn Engle.

THE GOLD STANDARD. England. In 1816, Was the First of the Nations to Adopt It.

The first nation to adopt the gold standard was Englan !. She adopted the gold standard nominally in 1816, but practically not until three years later, for in 1816 England was on the paper basis. Germany, which adopted the single silver standard in 1857, took steps toward the establishment of the gold standard in 1871, but it was not until July, 1873, that she demonetized silver, undertook to melt down her silver coin, sell it for gold and establish the single gold standard. The Scandi navian nations adopted the single gold standard at the same time. In September, 1873. France restricted the free coinage of silver and three years later entirely suspended such coinage, but has never undertaken to discard the silver coin she has in use or to treat it otherwise than as on an equality with gold. The action of France in restricting and then suspending the coinage of silver on private account was followed by the other nations of the Latin union-Belgium, Switzerland, Italy and Greece-and Spain suspended the coin age of silver in 1878. Holland, which had established the single silver standard in place of the bimetallic standard in 1847, suspended the coinage of silver in 1872 and opened her mints to the coinage of gold on private account in 1877.-Watson's Magazine.

Echoes From Horses' Skulls.

Those curious twists and turns super stitions take are to be found in the introduction of borses' skulls in or about the church buildings in England and Scotland, the reason alleged being to help the sound in church. This habit is unquestionably a relic of heathenism where an animal was sacrificed. Some years ago, when an old meeting house in Edinburgh was pulled down, the sounding board space above the pulpit was found to be filled with horses' skulls. In some parts of England there still exists the idea that if a horse's head is buried in a field there will be an echo.

Success In Society.

The secret of success in society is a certain heartiness and sympathy, A man who is not happy in company cannot find any word in his memory that will fit the occasion. All his information is a little impertinent. A man who is happy there fluds in every turn of the conversation occasions for the introduction of what he has to say. The favorites of society are able men and of more spirit than wit, who have no uncomfortable egotism, but who exactly fill the hour and company, contented and contenting.-Emerson.

An Artist's Whim

In the church of Tasow, in the government of Kursk, Russia, the altar piece is a painting of the last judgment, the foreground being a vivid representation of hell. Among the figures of lost souls a prominent position is occupied by Tolstol, whose portrait presents a fairly good likeness. painter's name is unknown, but that his work is appreciated is shown by the fact that the town authorities paid $125 for the picture.

An Indicator.

"But, doctor." asked the young practitioner, "why do you always order champagne for every new patient that comes to you?" "Because, my boy," replied the wise old medical man, "I can judge by what he says whether or not be can afford it. That helps when I come to make out my bill."-Philadelphia Press.

Driven From Home. "Did you hear that the daughter of that rich man in the next block had een driven from home?"

"No. When did it happen?" "Just after she got into the carringe,"-Baltimore American.

A Bad Head. "They say," murmured Mr. McSosh, "that two heads are better than one, but I doubt it. If I had two like the one I've got this morning blamed if I wouldn't commit suicide." - Cleveland

BLACK FRIDAY.

The Mad Scene In the Gold Room or That Fateful Oceasion.

In the middle of the gold room was a small fountain. Around this the day's proceedings began, writes T. Hendrick in the American Magazine. Jay Gould's own brokers, pale, haggard, half distrustful and balf ashamed of their work, started the bids. Gold had closed the day previously at 144. Now a Gould broker offered 145 for $100,000

His only response were the curses and fist shakings of a bedraggled, perspiring crowd.

"One hundred and forty-six for $100, 000 gold."

Still there was no response "One hundred and forty-seven." Each advancing point meant millions in profits to Gould and likewise mil lions in losses to the community. At every advance the crowds, losing all restraint, alternately roared and wept.

"One hundred and forty-eight." "One hundred and forty-nine." Above the pandemonium the monot onous voices of the Gould brokers could be heard, quietly, remorselessly putting

"One hundred and fifty."

"One bundred and fifty-one," At this point the buying began. Hith erto the crowd had been held magical spellbound. The audacity of the Gould brokers had paralyzed all. Board brokers were particularly dazed. In face of the clique's demonstrated power no one seemed able to bid, even to make the feeblest attempt to check the terrible rise,

A few uptown merchants now, how ever, started to purchase. Soon the bidding degenerated into panic. Ev ery one scrambled to get his gold now while the price, judged by what had already happened and the unques tioned power of the gang, seemed low, All purchases, however, meant enor mous losses.

Fortunes accumulated through venr of self sacrificing toll were swept away in a moment. In their craze men ran aimlessly about the room, moaning, screaming, vainly appealing for help Outside, where the crowds breathlessly waited announcements, the same scene were repeated. Rufned men, unable to get into the building itself, pushed cursed and fought. At each rise in the price the rage against Gould increased When the bid reached 150 there were cries of "Lynch! Lynch!"

And meanwhile what was the plotter of all this mischief doing? He was selling gold. To whom was he selling? To Fisk and all his own associates. He was the only man who really under stood the situation-who knew, that is upon what a flimsy basis his "corner rested. He sent Fisk, Belden and Speyer into the gold room to advance the price ostensibly for the benefit of the clique, and when it had reached a certain point unloaded on his own ac ount. He had sold largely, unknown to his confederates, the day before.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

PURE FOODS

Many states have passed laws prohibiting the sale of sea foods that have been treated by preservatives, un'ess so labeled.

The above trade mark is a guarantee that the oysters or other sea foods bearing it are absolutely pure and free from preservatives of any kind. Sealshipt Oysters are free from water, from ice, from germs, from dirts. They are sealed in air-tight cases at the beds and opened at the dealer's. The ice is packed around the case.
