THE MAGNETIC COMPASS.

First Used on European Vessels in the Twelfth Century.

Some Asian people, perhaps the Chinese, discovered many centuries ago that a kind of iron ore possessed a very peculiar quality. We call this ore magnetic ore, or, in more common language, lodestone, and it is very widely distributed, especially in the older crystalline rocks. It was found that if a bit of lodestone were placed in water upon a piece of cork or straw braid it would turn till the axis of the stone assumed a north and south position. A phenomenon of magnetism had been discovered by means of an ore that is peculiarly susceptible to magnetic influence.

It is an open question whether the Chinese utilized the directive power of the lodestone, but it is certain that the first rude compass was not used on European vessels before the twelfth century of our era. By that time the true magnetic compass had been evolved through the discovery that if an iron or steel needle were stroked on a lodestone it would receive the attractive and directive power of this ore. With this appliance placed at the service of navigation the vessels that had hugged the coasts soon dared to venture even out of sight of land. A new impetus was gradually given to cartography, for now the true directions of the coast lines might be charted with some approach to accuracy. It was the happy fortune of Italian sailors to make the surprisingly excellent surveys of the directions and lengths of the Black sea and Mediterranean coasts and along the Atlantic to British waters that have come down to us in the so called Portulan maps.—Cyrus C. Adams in Harper's.

Mistaken Idea.

"It may be laid down as a broad proposition," said the professor of political economy, "that you cannot get something for nothing."

"I once got the measles for nothing, professor," interrupted the young man with the wicked eye.—Chicago Tribune.

An Editor's Reply.

"Why didn't you retallate when that fellow struck you?"

"I didn't know him, and it is our rule not to pay any attention to anonymous contributions."—Bohemian.

REUNION AT BEECHWOODS.

Teachers and Pupils of Dennison School will Meet on August 29th.

Arrangements are being made for a reunion of the teachers and pupils of the Dennison school in the Beechwoods and the affair will be one of the most interesting and noteworthy events of the kind ever held in this section. The date set for the reunion is August 29th and a general invitation is extended to the public to attend this after-harvest gathering which will be held in the grove near the school building. A good program is being prepared which will consist of speeches by prominent men, readings, recitations, vocal and instrumental music, etc. A big picnic dinner will be held in the Ross grove at noon.

The Dennison school is one of the oldest institutions of learning in the Beechwoods district and the coming reunion will attract many hundred people who can date their educational and progressive start in life to the time when they attended this historic school. Several generations owe the commencement of useful lives to the instructions received in boyhood and girlhood at the Dennison school and many of the prominent men and women of this section, as well as of other towns and cities can look back to the golden days when they were among the students at the school. At the present time the Dennison school is one of the leading schools of the township and it has been regarded as such from the time it first became an educational factor of the renowned Beechwoods country. The reunion to be held this month promises to be an occasion of much pleasure and profit for those who attend and it will be a day of general enjoyment for the large assemblage that will gather to celebrate the event. —Brookwayville Record.

Paint Which Lasts

Painters, and all others who understand paint, know that white lead and linseed oil make the best paint. Good, lasting paint cannot be had if either pigment or oil is adulterated.

Many of the so-called white leads sold now-a-days have barytes, rock-dust, silica, gypsum, etc., in them, and little real white lead.

Linseed oil is also frequently adulterated. Such mixtures are dear at any price.

Sterling Pure White Lead

(Made by the Old Dutch Process)

and Armstrong & McKelvy Linseed Oil are absolutely pure, and make lasting paint.
