

E. E. Stewart Climbed Mt. Rainier.

With their sight temporarily impaired and the epidermis peeling from their faces in great scales, Ethan E. Stewart and A. L. Spotts, two hardy mountain climbers of Seattle, have just returned from an ascent of Mt. Rainier, not only bearing the marks of the trip but bringing back several important observations for the benefit of others who would essay the climb.

"It made us tired having it rubbed into us that residents of other cities were making the ascent of Rainier, but that Seattle's registrations at the top were few and far between. So we decided to register 'from Seattle' in the scroll left for that purpose by the Sierra Club," said Mr. Stewart, in telling of the spirit that moved him and his companion to make the climb.

Camp Muir was left last Friday morning at 4:47 o'clock and the summit and crater was attained at 10:30 o'clock. This is pretty nearly the record time. After registering their names the climbers proceeded to a two hours' enjoyment of the situation and prospect.

To the south the view was very clear and the men looked down into the crater of Mt. Hood, miles and miles away. The snow was leaving the mountain rapidly and the craters were widening out. The avalanches were "something tremendous," declared Mr. Stewart. From his observations, the climber says that the ascent should be made earlier in the year. Danger from falling rocks and avalanches is at its greatest height just at present.

The return to Camp Muir was made between 5 and 6 o'clock. "We succeeded in dodging the rocks as we came down," said Mr. Stewart, "but it is a hazardous trip and should never be attempted until later in the afternoon, after the sun has ceased to melt the snow and liberate great lodes of it and rocks. One ought to leave Camp Muir at 4 o'clock a. m. and, returning, leave Gibraltar not earlier than 4:30 p. m."

The above article was clipped from a Seattle, Wash., daily of August 7. The altitude of Mount Rainier is 14,528 feet. Mr. Stewart was formerly a citizen of Reynoldsville.

Why Adulterated Paint is Dear

A maker of adulterated white lead sneered "Why should paint be pure? No one eats it."

True, but when white lead is adulterated with barytes, sublimed lead, gypsum, whiting, etc., it loses the qualities which make pure white lead the best paint pigment.

And when these imitations are sold as white lead, the consumer is deceived into paying white lead prices for worthless substitutes.

Sterling Pure White Lead

(Made by the Old Dutch Process)

contains no adulteration whatever, and when mixed with Armstrong & McKelvy Linseed Oil lasts as no paint made of cheap imitations can.

NATIONAL CIGAR STANDS

The Economy of a Straight Line

The National Cigar Stands Company is an easy, uninterrupted, straight-line channel between tobacco planter and cigar smoker. The tobacco makes only one stop on the way—at the factory where it is turned into cigars. It pays only one small fare for the whole trip.

It used to go in a roundabout way, from planter to leaf-broker, from broker to cigar-maker, from cigar-maker to cigar-jobber, from cigar-jobber to retailer, from retailer to you. It paid a fare—that is, another profit—at every stage.

The National Cigar Stands' plan saves four stages and four fares. That is why the cigars sold by them give

Better Cigar Values at Lower Prices Than Ever Sold Before

As examples, try any of these—selecting the cigar that best suits your taste and pocket-book:—

College Days—Fine domestic cigar - 6 for 25c
 Adad—A first-class Domestic cigar representing superior workmanship - 7 for 25c
 Cuba-Roma—All Cuban leaf, 3 for 25c. quality, at 5c
 Black and White—10c. quality seed-and-Havana 5c
 Stirling Castle—Large, plump, clear Havana 6c
 La Idalia—Choice clear Havana, especially good value at - 3 for 25c

Drug Stores that conduct National Cigar Stands can be distinguished by the emblem on the windows and the new, scientifically designed cigar-keeping case, with which all National Cigar Stands are equipped, and which maintains the cigars in the proper smoking condition at all times.
