MISS NELLIE MCKERNAN DEAD.

Tuberculosis Caused Her Demise.—Had Been in Poor Health Some Time.

Miss Nellie McKernan, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McKernan, of West Reynoldsville, died at 10.05 p. m. Saturday, August 25, 1906. Tuberculosis was cause of her death. For six years Nellie had been in poor health. In fact she never was a strong girl after she was about two years old. She had measles at that time and was never perfectly healthy after that. Last January she had an attack of pneumonia and in March had another slight attack and after that tuberculosis developed. About the middle of June she went to Ashtola, Pa., to visit her sister, Mrs. Albert J. Worden in hope the change of climate would do her good, but the disease had too firm hold on her to be shaken off by change of climate. The 9th of this month she returned home. She was only in bed nine days.

Nellie McKernan was born at East Brady, Pa., July 18, 1878, and was 28 years, 1 month and 7 days old at time of death. She was an unselfish and kind hearted girl, always careful not to injure the feelings of others, consequently did not have an enemy. She was a good christian girl, a faithful member of the Catholic church. She enjoyed the church service and only missed such service when her health would not permit her to go to church. She was a member of the Sodality of Blessed Virgin.

A number of beautiful bouquets were given by neighbors and friends.

Decensed is survived by her parents, four sisters and three brothers, Mrs. Albert J. Worden, of Ashtola, Margaret, Susan, Joseph, Edward, James and Emma.

A New Play Coming.

In "A Jolly American Tramp," E. E. Kidder, the well known playwright who wrote "A Poor Relation" and "Peaceful Valley" for Sol Smith Russell, solves the problem that has vexed the rural communities for years. In it Mr. Kidder attempts to show that with kindness and just appreciation of man, even if in rags, and the consequent respecting of his rights, will impel even the most confirmed "hobo" to think he is on earth for a purpose. There is said to be a happy blending of pathos and wit in "Jolly American Tramp." The play is said to be one of the most successful comedy melodramas on the road this season. It will be the offering at the Reynolds opera house Sept. 4.

Kerr Reunion.

On August 20, 1906, there arrived at the residence of C. J. and I. J. Kerr, on Jackson street, their father, Joseph Kerr, and F. H. Kerr, a brother, of Kingsville, Clarion county, Pa. Mrs. James Haggerty and daughter, May, of Vowinkle, Clarion county, Sister M. J. Hermans and Sister Mary Michael, her traveling companion, of the Order Notre Dame, of Munich Institute of Holy Angela, Fort Lee, New Jersey, (the former being Infirmarion and the latter a teacher of the institute, which is situated on the Palisades on the west bank of the Hudson, opposite New York City, 365 feet above the water and a most beautiful place), Mrs. J. D. Brenton, of Dennison, Ohio, Mrs. Isabella Schwartz and her daughters, Anna and Rosalia, and Mrs. Clara Burgoon, of Brookville.

This was the first visit of Sister Hermans since she entered the order twenty-nine years ago. Many of those whom she met were born and grew up since she went away. This was the first reunion of the family in twenty-nine years.

Tuesday they visited the mines at Big Soldier, in which they manifested much interest, but unfortunately the mines on that day were idle, which disappointed them very much. However, they claimed it was a great object lesson and would not be forgotten by them. Wednesday was spent amid the scenes of her childhood on the old farm in Limestone township, Clarion county, and among relatives and old friends in Red Bank township. She visited the church where she received her early instruction in matters of faith and the cemetery in which lie the remains of her mother, her grandparents and very many of her relatives and friends. Many changes were noted as they drove along. There was an oak grove missing in which picnics were held; there was a water ash gone, and again a pine tree tall and stately, and an aspen with its ever quivering foliage, were not to be seen. Likewise a sugar maple on whose drooping branches as children they used to swing was missing, and so noted by the visitors, but the house, the barn, the spring and many other features of the old home were not much changed in the twenty-nine years that had passed.

Thursday was spent here in Reynoldsville, resting and meeting friends. Friday forenoon, through the kindness of Mr. Dawson, the silk mill was visited and Miss Winslow conducted the party through the mill, explaining the various processes in the weaving of silk. This was of great interest to the visitors, who had not seen the like before. The brick and pottery works and the Star Glass Co.'s plant were visited next, but they regretted neither of them were in operation. The process of manufacture in each instance was explained as well as could be without seeing the operation and was much appreciated by the visitors.

This reunion was very much enjoyed by all who participated in it, but especially so by C. J. and I. J. Kerr and families. On the 1.29 train of the 24th inst. the visitors departed for their various homes, perhaps never to meet, all together, again. A GUEST.
