

Her Special Realm

Form at Girls' Colleges.

The college girl is kept as rigidly away from the opposite sex as though she were to take the veil, instead of a degree. In college girls who smile prettily, dress their hair becomingly, and try to be attractive are called "harlots." A self-assertive, sexless, knock-you-down-if-you-look-at-me demeanor is considered good form.—The World and His Wife.

Blouse Made at Home.

Watch for the remnants of the pretty pale-tinted batistes, and of these make separate blouses. For these the prettiest way to combine lace is to take an all-over Valenciennes, with a small design rather widely scattered, so that one-quarter yard will make about twelve medallions if cut with care. Baste these between whatever tucking you may, indulge in, and embroider a vine or a wreath of small flowers around the edge, then cut away the material beneath and a very dainty waist will be the result; the cost and labor both in reason.—Vogue.

Bracelets Not Useful as Garters.

She was having a lot of trouble with her long white gloves as she walked down the avenue with a companion yesterday afternoon. She wore one of those lingerie frocks that have not defied criticism, though they have scorned climate. The gloves wouldn't stay up and kept sliding down around her wrists despite the fact she had bangles around the upper part of her arm that were supposed to hold the gloves in place. At last, in desperation, she pulled off the gloves, and turning to her companion, said mournfully: "As garters those bracelets don't work for a cent!"—New York Press.

Bad Combinations in Dress.

Here are a few of the many wrong combinations that blossom with spring. New and dinky little straw hats with last winter's velvet suits. Heavy calfskin shoes with a dainty silk frock. Openwork lingerie waists and fur coats. Last season's sleeves turned upside down, cut off and worn with this year's long gloves. Princess gowns on Mother Hubbard figures. Peanut hats on Gainsborough heads. Twelve dollar waists and run-down heels. Three new bracelets and a torn, shabby underskirt.

Beauty's Bath Cap.

A bathing cap which actually improves the appearance of the wearer is certainly a novelty well worth describing. It is out this year, and no longer does the summer girl dread to add a waterproof cap to her bathing costume, for this new one is really good looking. It is made in a very novel way, being really a bathing cap and handkerchief all in one. It is made of waterproof material and comes in a variety of colors and designs. The inside of this novel bathing headgear is in the form of a round cap shirred to an elastic band. The outside of the cap has the effect of a handkerchief, the ends of which are drawn up to the front of the cap and are there tied in a jaunty bow; the ends are kept in place by a strap which is just large enough to hold them so that they do not slip after tying.—Woman's Home Companion.

Women's Clubs Gain Ground.

The new political club in Dover street—the Ladies' Imperial—of which the avowed object is to provide "an inexpensive central and convenient rendezvous in London" for ladies belonging to the party who went out into the wilderness at the last election, is only one more of the luxurious establishments which have sprung up during the last ten years to allure the woman from the hearth. Yet Leigh Hunt predicted their birth nearly half a century ago when writing of men's clubs. "The lady," he says, sympathetically, "sits at home and wonders whether female clubs will ever come up." He goes on to say that they may, and with surprising liberality, considering the period in which he wrote, rather hopes that they will. "Not that we apprehend any great injury to the domesticities from these institutions," he writes. "Those who are comfortable at home will like their own houses the better for the variety; and those who are not, had better, for the sake of all parties, be elsewhere."—London Chronicle.

Meaning of Moles.

A science or pseudo-science of moles has existed among the Pennsylvania Dutch for many years. According to this science, no one is without a mole or two, and there are some of the prognostications that male wearers may draw from their brown ornaments: A mole on the right side of a man's forehead denotes wonderful luck; on the right side of a woman's forehead, gifts from the dead. On the left side of a man's forehead a mole denotes a long term in prison; on the left side of a woman's forehead two husbands and a life of exile. A man with a mole in the middle of his forehead has a cruel mind; a woman with such a mole is foolish and envious.

A mole on the neck in man or woman promises a long and happy life, wealth and fame.

A man with a mole on the left side of the upper lip rarely marries; and such a mole in the case of a woman denotes suffering.

On the right side of the upper lip a mole promises great good fortune to both sexes.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Colors for Brunette.

Question: Kindly tell me colors suitable to wear and how I can wear my hair. I am five feet two inches in height, fair complexion, brown hair, very long and thick, dark hazel eyes, nineteen-inch waist, thirty-eight inch hips and thirty-two inch bust.—Euphrosyne.

Answer: You can wear all shades of blue, also pale pink, dark red, all the pastel shades of blue, pink and green, deep gray, mauve, heliotrope, silver-blue, ivory cream and black. Golden brown may be worn, but tans, fawns and putty colors should be avoided.

In regard to becoming hair dressing, the shape of the face and features decide this rather than the quantity or quality of the hair. Color enters the question, too. For instance, fair hair is always prettier when fluffy looking, dark hair more attractive when dressed smoothly; indeed, what would be considered positively untidy in dark hair would be only charming were the hair light.

In regard to a becoming style, this will depend upon whether your face is oval or round, fat or thin. If oval, then the hair may be dressed either high or low, as fancy dictates. A round face, especially if fat, should have the hair dressed high and puffed just moderately at the sides.

An oblong face will require the hair to be dressed as low in the nape of the neck as possible, or midway, between there and the top of the head; the latter, however, should not be attempted when the nose is a prominent feature of the face, because then the line will be too long—and so out of proportion—from the tip of the nose to the twist of the hair.

A very thin face becomes the hair puffed out as much as possible at the sides and about the ears, and a very short face should always have the hair dressed in pompadour style.—Dressmaker's Bureau in the New York Telegram.

Learn to Forget.

"Do you think he cares for me?" is the question the girl who writes to "problem" columns asks oftener than any other.

As a rule it means that the man has grown cold and careless in his attentions, and that the girl cannot bear to give him up. She clings to the last ray of hope in the form of asking advice, trusting that somehow the all-wise editor may be able to console her.

It is sad to have to tell her to put him out of her mind, and yet it is the wisest course for her to follow. It is absolutely impossible to rekindle the ashes of a man's love. To him the love is as "dead as yesterday's seven thousand years."

With a woman it is different. She may outgrow her love for a man, but he will always stand apart from other men, surrounded by a halo of memory and tender regret.

To try and hold a man when he is anxious to go is the greatest folly. He will go, anyway, and she is a wise girl who accepts the inevitable and sends him away before he goes of his own accord.

There is not a girl in a thousand who cannot tell when a man's interest in her begins to wane. It is natural to make an effort to hold him, but don't lose sight of your pride and dignity in the effort.

When there is another girl in the case the effort is simply love's labor lost.

The advice "try to forget him" seems cold and unsympathetic, but it is better to cut deep in the first place and avoid having to hurt a second time.

Trying to forget is weary, heart-breaking work, but it can be done, and at least you will have the comfort of having saved your pride.

Some of you are throwing your hearts away on men who are not worth the sacrifice. They are the men above all others to forget.

You think that it will break your hearts to give them up, but hearts don't break as easily as we sometimes think they do.

We often mistake heartaches for heartbreaks.

When your parents, your friends and your own common sense tell you that a man is unworthy, give him up.

Work hard, fill your mind with other interests, fight bravely and in time you will conquer. Pride will help you forget the man who has forgotten you. It will be harder for you to give up the man who, all unworthy though he may be, still pleads for your love. But you must let him go, because sooner or later he will neglect and wound you.

Some day the right man will come along, and then you will be thankful that you have not thrown your heart away on the wrong one.—New Haven Register.

NATIONAL CIGAR STANDS

The Buying Power of 2,000 Cigar Stores

THERE is no mystery or secret in the National Cigar Stands' methods. We can sell cigars for less than has ever before been possible because two thousand of us—all druggists with an established cigar trade—concentrate our buying in one co-operative concern. See the power of such a mighty union of individual forces! We can practically dictate our own terms to manufacturers. We can—and do—control our own brands and factories. Instead of buying separately in small lots from jobbers, we become practically our own producers.

The cigars we sell come to us at the lowest cost ever known in cigar retailing. And they are sold at the lowest prices ever known for the same quality. For instance:

Black and White

at 5c. each.

is really a better cigar (better leaf and more of it) than you have been accustomed to get at 3 for 25c. "Black and White" is one of 30 exclusive brands, made by and for the National Cigar Stands. Here are some others—all showing the same superiority in quality for price—

- CUBA-ROMA: A first-class 3 for 25c all-Havana cigar, at 5c
- COLLEGE DAYS: Best domestic cigar ever sold at 6 for 25c
- ADAD: A first-class domestic cigar of superior workmanship 7 for 25c
- STIRLING CASTLE: Fine, clear Havana cigar 10c quality 6c
- FLOR DE MADRID: A superior clear Havana cigar in fine sizes at 3 for 25c

A CLEANSING SOAP-CREAM.
An excellent soap cream to be used where soap is not advisable is made thus: Four ounces of almond oil thoroughly heated in a water-bath (double boiler), six ounces of rose water, in which has been dissolved one dram of borax, one ounce of powdered castile soap; as soon as these ingredients unite, it should be taken from the stove and stirred briskly until nearly cold. Then add four drops each of oils of rose, bergamot, lavender and cloves, beating it thoroughly. This gives it a rich perfume, but may be omitted, if desired. When finished the article should be set, and should make the skin smooth and white.—The Commoner.
