

New York City.-No smarter or more attractive waist for receptions, the theatre and all occasions of the sort well can be devised than this It includes an exceptionally attractive little bolero, the exceedingly low cut of which leaves much of the cloth with trimming of a stitched moderately full sleeves are arranged

Flowers are comparatively little worn in the hair, but the Empire wreath still continues in vogue. Tortoise-shell pins and combs in every variety, as well as colored and carved horn, are also much to the fore.

The blouse that can be worn over any pretty separate yoke or guimpe as liked is one of the novelties of the season that has been very heartily accepted, and which has extended vogue. Here is one that is adapted both to the entire gown and to the separate waist and that appropriately can be made of silk or wool material and a little later of the pretty washable stuffs. In this instance it is made with three-quarter sleeves and the material is taffeta trimmed with soutache braid and French knots and edged with velvet banding. But the trimming as well as the material depends upon individual taste and need, and any finish that may be liked is quite appropriate for the prettily shaped bertha. The feature of the waist consists of the fact that it can be varied in a number of ways. It can be made either lined or unlined with a separate yoke, or with a fitted lining faced to form the yoke, or it can be worn over any entirely separate waist that one may possess. Also the sleeves can be either in three-quarter or full length.

lace guimpe exposed, while there is a girdle of unusually becoming lines and bertha. The front and backs are and proportions. As illustrated the tucked at their upper edges and the bolero is made of ivory white broad-bertha is arranged over them. The band of the material on which discs | over fitted linings which are faced are embroidered, while the guimpe is of lace and the girdle is of taffeta are used. held by a plain gold buckle, the buttons on the bolero also being of gold. but carved. The combination is an exceedingly handsome and distinctive one, but such a model as this can be utilized in almost numberless ways. It is at its best perhaps with bolero and skirt made to match, but the bolero can be made of a heavier and different material if liked, while silk and the lighter weight wools, such as voile, colienne and the like, are quite as appropriate as cloth. lace guimpe is always handsome and always dressy, but lingerie materials are many although very attractive, and these are quite appropriate when a simpler effect is desired, so that the waist can be made either adapted to really formal occasions or to every day ones as one combination or another is chosen. The guimpe is made with front and backs, and its lower edge is attached to a smoothly fitted foundation girdle, over which the full one is arranged, the two closing together at the back. The sleeves extend just below the elbows and are moderately full, but are tucked to fit snugly at their lower edges and finished with roll-over cuffs. The bolero is entirely separate, made with fronts and back, and closed at the front. The quantity of material required for the medium size is one and threeeighth yards twenty-one, seveneighth yard twenty-seven or threequarter yard forty-four inches wide, with three yards of banding for the bolero, one yard of silk for the girdle, three yards eighteen or twenty-one or one and three-quarter yards fortyfour inches wide for the guimpe.

Skirts are much more severe than to form deep cuffs when long sleeves

The quantity of material required for the medium size is four yards of material twenty-one, three and a half yards twenty-seven or two yards forty-four inches wide, with three-eighth yard of all-over lace and six and a half yards of braid to make as illustrated, one yard of all-over lace if long sleeves are used.

Broadcloth Beauty.

Exquisite new broadcloths are in the following colors at $3 per yard: Burnt rose, dark rose claret, Delft blue, French blue, peacock blue, elephant gray, mode, golden brown, chestnut brown, drab, purple, plum, lavender and heliotrope. Pale shades for dressy afternoon and evening wear are pastel blue, baby blue, pastel pink, oyster white, biscuit, pastel green and chamois.
