Stay on the Farm.

By E. J. REED.

There has long been a custom among farmers to pride themselves on educating their boys and girls for something besides the farm. In fact, the custom has become so fixed that whenever a boy seems to possess more than ordinary intelligence, thoughtless people say that he is too smart to be a farmer. You have observed that when a boy prepares to go away to school this question goes the rounds of the community: "What is he preparing himself for and what is there in it for him?"

Tell me the occupation in which a man may use more education than can a farmer every day upon the farm? What other occupation permits the use of so many different courses of studies or offers so many pleasurable -- profitable experiments? Almost any line of study can be made profitable in agriculture, hough, to be sure, some are more valuable than others. No matter how much we think we know about farming, there is still locked up in every part of the old farm secrets that will one by one reveal themselves to us while we live.

Farming is a profitable business. This is often disputed, but if you or your neighbors aren't making any money whose fault is it? Are you doing the best you know how? Look about you and see if there are not a great many little lenks which might be stopped. Are you attending your crops to the limits? Have you good animals and only as many as you can feed? These questions and others will crowd you mind if you will reflect a moment. We admit that farming is not extremely profitable with all farmers, and this condition prompts us to take advantage of the opportunity of encouraging the farmers to educate their boys into a more thrifty standard of farmers than their fathers have been. When agriculture is pushed to the limit, as all others professions are, it will be seen that farming yields among the largest of net incomes.

Again, the profits are sure. Unfavorable conditions of climate will sometimes cut crops short, yet there are fluctuations in all lines. His products never go out of style, but the demand may be increased by producing only the best. Whenever financial or political affairs are such as to cause distress among factories and mines, the farmer, though his income may be largely cut off, always has plenty to eat and to wear.

That farm life is the most healthful is conceded by all. Far away from the filth and the rubbish of the city with its impure water, teeming with microbes, and the germs of disease present in every breath of air, the country boy may expand his lungs and inhale the air of freedom, healthful and inspiring. Those of all other employments covet the independence of the farmer. He goes to work when he pleases and quits when he gets ready. He crowds his work or delays it to take advantage of holidays, which are the town people's busy days. Thus he works to suit the occasion, the weather or his pleasure; yet the farmer boy does not appreciate these opportunities until he has tried some position where he is subject to the will of others, and where there are no off days.

One more suggestion, which I will offer, is that the surroundings in the country encourage right living and happiness in this world and a preparation for the next-the most important of all considerations, yet the least considered.

If it seem that a boy has a calling for some other line of work, he might do well to leave the farm; but if not, we would encourage him to look upon the bright side of farm life as he looks only upon the bright side of his would-be profession.

Diamond Key Rings a New Fad.

Women whose brothers, husbands or sweethearts are so wealthy that to remember their birthdays with the ordinary gifts of silver match boxes or cigarette cases is out of the question have taken to presenting them with little key rings, incrusted with diamonds, says the New York Press. Any one in doubt as to what to give a man friend will find these attractive although not inexpensive triffes exactly fill the bill. "Of course," said one young woman who had just purchased one for her flance, "he will think more of the spirit of the gift than its actual value."

Verdict for Dr. Pierce

AGAINST THE

Ladies' Home Journal.

Sending truth after a lie. It is an old maxim that "a lie will travel seven leagues while truth is getting its boots on," and no doubt hundreds of thousands of good people read the unwarranted and malicious attack upon Dr. R. V. Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription "published in the May (1904) number of the Ladies' Home Journal, with its great black display headings, who never saw the hum-ble, groveling retraction, with its incon-spicuous heading, published two months later. It was boldly charged in the sland-erous and libelous article that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of woman's weaknesses and aliments, contained alcohol and other harmful ingredients. Dr. Pierce promptly brought suit against the publishers of the Ladles' Home Journal, for $200,000,00 damages, against the publishers of the Ladies' Home Journal, for $200,000,000 damages,

Dr. Pierce alleged that Mr. Bok, the editor, maliciously published the article containing such false and defamatory matter with the intent of injuring his business furthermore, that no alcohol, or other fujurious, or habit-forming, drugs are, or wer were, contained in his "Favorite respription"; that said medicine is mady from native medicinal roots and contains no harmful ingredients whatever and that Mr. Bok's malicious statements were wholly and absolutely false.

In the retraction printed by said Journal they were dozed to acknowledge that they had obtained analyses of "Favorite Frescription," from eminent chemists all of whom certified that Italy and obtained analyses of "Favorite Frescription," from eminent chemists, all of whom certified that Italy and contain alleged harmful drugs.

These facts were also proven in the frial of the action in the Supreme Court. But the business of Dr. Pierce was greatly injured by the publication of the libeious article with its great display headings, while hundreds of thousands who read the wheeledly defamatory article never saw the humble groveling retraction, set in small type and made as inconspicuous as possible. The matter was, however brought before a lury in the Supreme Court of New York State which promptly rendered a verdict in the Doctor's favor. Thus his traducers came to grief and their base slanders were refuted.

Japan Not Able to Fight.

Financiers of world-wide reputation have all along laughed at the idea that Japan, in her present state of finaninstability, would wage against any country, least of all the United States. From what the world at large is coming to know of the in-ternal affairs of the Island empire (a recent dispatch from Tokio guardedly refers to the growing sentiment against the mania for speculation), the pacific predictions of the experts may well be credited. A country with a falling stock market and an impending financial panic does not enter upon the extravagance of war, unless its statesmen have taken leave of their senses, and it is generally admitted that the men who are directing the foreign policy of Japan are exceptionally level-headed. Japan is in no condition to seek enmittes or to lenge its friends.—Leslie's Weekly.

Benefit of Yawning.

Systematic yawning seems to have proved highly successful in Austria, as a method of vocal and health culture. Dr. Naegli advises deep yawning with arms outstretched, thus insuring complete change of air in the lungs, and at each treatment he has his patients make six to eight yawns, each being followed by swallowing. He regards the exercise, with deep breathing, as the best means of strengthening the respiratory organs and muscles, while it gives astonishing relief in catarrh of the throat. For singers a like practice causes the tonsils and uvula to retract and harden, and the clear passage gives the voice greater volume and improved
