Smart Styles for Spring.

New York City.—Every variation of the jumper blouse, or the one that gives the guimpe effect is in vogue just now and each new one is sure to meet with a welcome. Here is ar exbeedingly attractive model that can be made plainer or more elaborate made to provide more or less fulness as may be liked and which gives at the front as may be desired. As more or less of the guimpe idea as the sleeves are made to match the chemisette or the waist. In the il-Austration it is made of Shantung pongee trimmed with velvet and combined with lace, the square bertha eing embroidered and edged with livet. But if the embroiders in stituted, indeed, any trimming that with roll-over cuffs below the elbows

The shirtwaist that is tucked on becoming lines always is the one in most demand, and here is a model that gives the tapering effect to the figure at the back while it can be illustrated, it is made of white linen with round neck and attached collar the tucks at the front are stitched for their entire length, but there are several variations of the model that can be made with ease and with success. The tucks at the front can be stitched to any desired depth while the neck can be made high and worn with a separate collar, either of the high rollover sort or with any pretty stock that may be liked. Again, sleeves can be in elbow or in full length so that a great many possibilities are covered by the single design. All waisting materials are appropriate and this season they are exceptionally lovely and exceptionally varied. A novelty, and a pretty one, is the use of unbleached linen in a canvas weave with white collar and cuffs, and sometimes the waist also is worn with the additional box pleat and frills that can be bought separate and attached to any waist.

The waist is made with conts and back and is finished with a regulation box pleat at the front edge. When made with round neck the collar is joined to the waist, but when the neck is cut high it is finished with a neck-band, and the high rollover collar is made separately and attached to it by means of buttonlives too great an expenditure of holes and studs. The sleeves are of ime or labor applique can be sub- moderate fulness and can be finished may be liked. The fancy lace sleeves | or with deep ones that extend to the are exceedingly dainty and dressy, but plain ones, either long or short, can be substituted. All seasonable materials are apprepriate, the waists being equally well suited to silk, wool and the many pretty cotton stuffs.

There is a fitted lining which is closed at the back. The back portions of this lining are faced to form the back of the chemisette, but the front of the chemisette is separate. There are also the fronts and the backs of the waist and the front is joined to the chemisette and the whole is arranged over the lining. The bertha outlines the yoke and finishes its lower edge, while the closing is made invisibly at the back. The fancy sleeves are moderately full with frills arranged over them and the plain es can be joined to cuffs or to bands.

The quantity of material required ir the medium size is two and a half ands twenty-one, two yards twenty-The wen or one and three-quarter yards orty-four inches wide, with the frills ns and five and a half yards of binding to make as illustrated; three and a half vards twenty-one, two and a half yards twenty-seven or one and seveneighth yards forty-four inches wide with one and one-eighth yards of allover lace to make with plain sleeves.

Burnt Orange With White.

A departure from the usual sombre velvet or silk collar, cuffs or revers, that finish white serge coats of costumes, is the substitution of burnt e, or pastel shades, which are healded in white soutache, embroidered, or an applique of lace.

FINANCE AND TRADE REVIEW

SPRING TRADE

DEVELOPS SLOWLY.

Unusual Weather Retards Movement of Spring Wares to a Considerable Extent.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s "Weekly Review of Trade" says:

Spring trade develops slowly be cause of unseasonable weather, but the lost ground will be recovered in large measure when normal temperature prevails. Cold weather has prevailed over an unusually large area, retarding agricultural progress as well as trade in the light wearing apparel and other spring goods, but similar bad starts in other years have sometimes brought most of the favorable results.

The only actual damage of any account is reported in some winter wheat fields in the Southwest, where insects and drouth combined to injure grain, and on most of this area some other crop has been planted.

Wholesale business for later sea-sons is on a liberal scale, but operations are active and leading manufacturing plants are busy. Few labor struggles retard work in the industries, and an unusually small number of strikes are scheduled for May.

Little complaint is heard regarding freight blockades, and with the re-sumption of lake navigation on the Northern border, traffic conditions will soon be entirely satisfactory.

Quiet conditions in the pig iron market were to be expected after the large sales of last week, and production has been sold so far ahead that quotations are fully maintained. Leading furnace interests have sold their output up to the end of the year, but some smaller producers still accept orders for delivery dur-ing the second half. In the steel department there is an increasing scarcity of billets that handicaps

The wire trade is especially disturbed because demand has been so urgent that stocks could not be accumulated for spring business, and the seas a opens with smaller sup-plies than ever before.

Progress in building operations has brought out requirements for struc-tural shapes that cannot be satisfactorily met. Thus far only a small part of the season's business in bars has been placed by makers of agri-cultural implements, leaving much for future arrangements.

The United States needs labor. There is a famine in the labor market in nearly every section of the country, especially severe in the smaller cities and the agricultural districts, The house of Representatives took note of this, declares the New York Tribune, when it dropped the Senate's educational test and decided that the time was not yet ripe for a more rigid scrutiny of material which we need for the purposes of economical and industrial developments.

Tommy Atkin's Favorite Son.

As a matter of fact the great weak ness of Tommy Atkins is not for the mean music hall song but for sentimental ditties bordering on the maudlin. Any one who has attended a soldiers' "singsong" will know what we mean, and we have it on the authority of a war correspondent who went through the Natal campaign that the most popular of all the camp songs was a dolorous song called "Mother." Tears and the tomb and blighted affections form the staple of the songs which appeal most effectively to the private soldier. - The
