Simple and Impressive Exercises Mark the Annual Observance at the Famous Old Cemetery.

If one would witness Memorial day observed in the simple and reverent manner in which was intended, be should visit the Beechwoods cemetery on the occasion of the annual gathering under the auspices of the Washington Township Memorial Association. There is none of the revelry and sport so common in the towns. Instead the spirit of loyalty and patriotism reigns supreme and any attempt to turn the occasion into financial profit meets with sharp

Nature and chance have made the spot almost ideal for such a gathering. From the four points of the compass well-beaten roads converge in the heart of the richest farming community in the county. On two of the corners at the junction of the roads, well cultivated fields extend back over the rolling hills. On the other two corners stands a natural grove. Half-hidden in the shadow of the over-arching trees nestles a little white school house. Opposite, a short distance from the road, is a pavilion, on this occasion hung from roo! to ground with the national flag, the brilliant red, white and blue made still more beautiful by the setting of rich green foliage around and above. Beneath the trees, on a gentle slope in front of the pavilion, long circular rows of seats are arranged. On a hill to the north, unfortunately not visible from the grove, lies the famous old Beechwoods cemetery, opened over eighty years ago. In it sleep scores of the discouraged by the fallure to find repioneers who found Beechwoods a wilderness and made it the garden-spot it

Decoration day in 1907 was equal in every respect to the events of the years past. The morning dawned cloudless and fair and the blue sky and warm sunshine prevailed throughout the day. By ten o'clock over a thousand persons were on the ground and continued to arrive until noon. Besides the residents of Beechwoods, many were present from Falls Creek, Reynoldsville and Brookville. Carriages of every description, from the single seat to the four-seated back and tally-ho brought the crowds. The morning exercise commenced with a march to the cemetery, in which the Falls Creek silver cornet band took the lead. In the procession were veterans of the Civil and Spanish wars, followed by pupils of the Washington township schools, laden with garlands of flowers, and lastly citizens of the community. The scene at the cemetery is a revelation to the visitor. In its extent and beauty, it surpasses many city borisl places, and one might get a very favorable estimate of the character of the people of the Beechwoods from the care they take of, and the honor they pay to, the memory of their dead Wandering through it a person might spend hours noting the varied monuments, for almost every grave is marked, and a number of the monuments are large and costly as well. And if one cares to take the time he may learn much of the early history and settlers of Beechwoods by the names, dates and inscriptions chiseled on the marble. On this day the beauty of the spot was heightened by the profusion of flowers which decorated the graves of veterans and civilians buried

At noon the people returned to the grove. Seated on the grass in the shade of the trees, lunches were partaken of. A refreshment stand alongside the school house, conducted by the association, was opened and served coffee, lemonade and quick lunches at a nominal price.

In the afternoon at the grove it is a moving picture of rural beauty and life. Along the meeting roads for several rods, beneath the trees and in the fields around stand scores of horses, picketed. or unhitched and resting on the grass. Here and there are groups of farmers and their wives talking or shaking hands with friends. Young people crowd around the refreshment stand or promenade in the shade. A few with kodaks attempt to catch the fleeting scene. At a farm house west of the grove is a spring of cold water clear as crystal. Dozens walk up the path over the intervening field to get a drink. At the spring there is fun, for boys and girls must have their joke and there's little harm done if some one is drenched.

But these are simply stray incidents one may note as he walks around. Strains of music from the grove announced that the program of the day was being carried out. There are most of the older people, men and women, seated around the speakers' pavilion. Judge Harry Alvin Hall, of Elk county, announced as principal speaker, was conspicuously absent. But his place

MEMORIAL DAY IN BEECHWOODS | was ably filled by others. There was music by the choir and recitations by Beechwoods girls. John A. Plyler. once a Reynoldsville boy, was on for an oration. Dr. Paul J. Slonaker, of the Brockwayville Presbyterian church, and Rev. S. D. Waldrop, of the Falls Creek Presbyterian church, delivered stirring speeches. Said Dr. Slonaker: 'A native of the Emerald Isle was asked, 'If you couldn't be an Irishman, what would you be?' Said the Irishman, 'I'd be ashamed of myself.' And on a day such as this the American present here who is not thrilled with patriotism should be ashamed also." Perhaps the best feature of the program was the address of the Rev. Mr. Waldrop. It is somewhat unusual for a Texan, the son of a captain in the Confederate army, seeing things from the Southern point of view, to address a Northern audience on a day dedicated to the memory of Civil war beroes. The speaker was perfectly frank and candid and without detracting one whit from the bonor due the soldiers in blue, showed that loyalty also inspired the men in gray.

Shortly after three o'clock the program was finished and immediately he roads were flied with the homegoing carriages. The band remained a little longer, but when the evening twillight fell all had gone.
