Paid Ten Dollars Apiece for Mailing Reynoldsville Man Pays An Honest Debt Packages With Writing In.

Uncle Sam charges first-class rates for all packages sent through the malls with writing in, and a person who mails a package as merchandise in which is a letter or a few written words of instruction are liable to be fined for so doing. Postmasters or postal authorities can open packages to see if there is any writing in them When a package is presented for mail a clerk or postmaster throws themselves liable for a fine of $25.00 if they do not ask the person mailing package if there is writing in it. There are so many persons who mail packages with writing in-and prevaricate about it—that the postoffice department is making a raid on that kind of mail matter and is making the guilty parties pay the penalty. There was an inspector here one day last week who opened seven packages and found writing in them. Two were mailed by town ladies and they paid a fine of $10.00 apiece. The other packages came in from other places but the persons who mailed them will not escape the pen-

When a two cent stamp will carry a etter to any place in the United States it does seem strange that persons will tell a falsehood and run the risk of paying a fine by mailing a package as merchandise when it has first-class mail matter in it. Better mail your letter separate hereafter.

Kumm to the Kaffee Klatch at the hose house on Fourth street June 27th. MOVED BY CONSCIENCE of Ten Years Standing.

Occasionally we hear of a man whose conscience will not let him rest until some wrong he has committed is made right. If conscience was not so often stifled more wrongs would be made right and more honest debts paid. Some ten years ago A. T. McClure, F. D. Smith and J. K. Johnston, who were partners in the hardware business in this place, dissolved partnership and settled their accounts. Ten days ago each member of the firm received a letter through the mail like the following, in which was enclosed $5.42:

Reynoldsville, Pa., June 7, 1907.

MR. MCCLURE, Dear Sir:-Some years ago, while dealing with the firm, I become under the impression in looking over the bills, after settling our account, that a mistake had been made in my favor of $16.25 by not charging some things, and as It has frequently occurred to me since that perhaps I was holding back what was not mine by right, I have decided to remit to each member of the firm what would be their share of the amount in question $5.42. Of course if I had taken advantage of the firm intentionally it would be right that they should have legal interest also, but as I have never been sure of the mistake, but to ease my own conscience about it, I would rather pay each their share of the amount than to feel that perhaps that I had wronged them.

POINT VIEW LOT SALE

It was a Poor Man's Opportunity to Get a Home The auction sale of town lots at Point View Saturday was an opportunity for a working man, who does not own his own home, to get a lot at small price and on very easy terms. Ten dollars down and five dollars per month, without taxes or interest, for two years. People who have never visited Point View, not over five minutes walk from postoffice, have no idea what desirable lots the Point View Land Co. are offering for sale. The officers of the company, James W. Gillespie president, Smith M. McCreight secretary, and H. Alex Stoke treasurer, enterprising and progressive citizens, who believe in pushing things along, concluded to make a special auction day sale and give any and all persons an opportunity to buy some lots cheap at Point View.

The date of sale was Saturday, June 22. The sale was thoroughly and systemtically advertised, not only in Reynoldsville but in surroundidg country. The day of sale the Keystone band was engaged for the entire day and the band played selections between sales while the auctioneer was getting his wind and thinking up funny stories. While only twenty-five lots were sold and the sale ought to have been at least fifty, yet the Point View Land Company was not discouraged with the days' sales.

At the expense of Point View Land Co. a steel wire rope bridge has been built over the Sandy Lick creek at foot entered the church and slowly marched of Fourth street, which makes it only a short walk from business centre of town to Point View plot.

These lots are located near the silk mill, macaroni factory, glass plant, brick plants, steel plant and the vacant land reserved for any new industries that may want to locate here in the future. The time will come, perbaps sooner than some think, when lots at Point View cannot be bought for two or three times the price the Point View Co. is now asking for them at private
