The Bullet Still Remains in Ralph Whittaker's Skull.

Ralph Whittaker, aged 16 years, who secidentally shot himself in the head with a 22-calibre revolver Sunday forenoon, July 21, was brought home from the Mercy hospital, Pittsburg, last Thursday still in a helpless condition, his right side being paralized. The boy was taken to the Adrian hospital in Punxsutawney the day he shot himself and was there over three weeks. The doctors at that hospital failed to locate the bullet. August 16 Ralph was taken to the Mercy hospital and there the doctors located the ball in the back part of the skull on a level with the base, or lower part of the cerebellum. The bullet struck the end of Ralph's nose, penetrated the skull cavity, passed through the motor center and lodged in the back part of skull. In its passage through the head the ball destroyed the motor fibers, which supply the right half of body, and caused the paralysis. Nature will probably partially overcome his present helplessness as the paralysis is now slowly subsiding.

In its present location the bullet does no harm and to remove it would necessarily endanger the boy's life, and hence the doctors at Mercy hospital thought it best not to operate on the boy.

"The DuBois team was dropped from the league for the reason that DuBois wants all the games to be played at DuBois and will not play on the dates scheduled when any of their players are absent, while the other teams fill in with bench players. DuBois charges admittance to the games, and pays none of team's expenses and they kick on this. Reynoldsville is taking the place of DuBois.

HORSE KILLED BY TRAIN.

One Thousand Pounds of Dynamite on Wagon which was Almost Struck by Train.

Robert M. Fugate, a Winslow township farmer, had a $200.00 horse killed by a train at DuBois last Thursday. From the Evening Express we clip the following account of the accident, which might have been more serious:

Mr. Fugate was in DuBois this morning and was driving to his home about six miles south of town with a load of dynamite. At the Brady street crossing Mr. Fugate thought that the watchman motioned for him to come on. He started and when directly on the track, he saw the Clearfield train bearing down upon him. According to witnesses he endeavored to back up the team and succeeded in getting the wagon off the track. The horse nearest to the engine, however, was struck and instantly killed. Mr. Fugate jumped and escaped injury. The other horse also got out of the mixup without any serious bruises. The wagon tongue was broken.

The wagon had on it 1,000 pounds of dynamite and it was only by the merest margin that the wagon was kept off the track. That amount of dynamite would have resulted in one of the most ferrific explosions recorded in this community for many days,

The Celebration as Seen by Our Neighboring Town.

Our neighboring city of Reynoldsville closed a most successful week's entertainment, under the caption of an "Old Home Week," on Saturday evening. A multitude of people visited the town during the week, the crowd on Thursday being the largest ever gathered there within the history of the city. Free entertainment and music of a high class was furnished to the visitors and there was fun for everybody. Parades, speeches, dare-devil automobile leaps, high wire performances, ball games and races constituted the amusements, and there was a wealth of side shows and side attractions, the streets of the town with their gay decorations reminding one more of the midway at some gigantic exposition than the staid old town of Reynoldsville, whose citizens entered into the thing with enthusiasm and made the occasion memorable. Two of the big Pittsburg newspapers, the Gazette Times and Dispatch, were represented at the celebration by special writers. The entertainment furnished by our neighbors during the week was of such a character as to need only the truth in the description thereof, everyhody who joined the througs of sightseers being loud in their praises of the hospitality of the good people of the town and of the arrangements made for the comfort and convenience of the visitors. All in all it was a celebration which reflected great credit upon the various committees having the same is charge, tand which cannot fall to be of basedt to the town by the centering of outside attention upon it.—Brackville Brankville
