BY CHARLES ROBERTSON.
 When Vivian walks from Rathmel,
 And brings a Bill along,
 And Inez always makes the noise,
 And life goes like a song;
 When Ed can get his Latin
 Without staying after school,
 And Melissa would call to Graydon
 "Dear," instead of "Fool";
 If Irish could drop Latin,
 As is his main desire,
 And Mary could have Sherlock Holmes,
 Without standing cross-fire;
 If Mike could only quit that game
 That takes in pockets, balls and cues,
 And Bill would only tell the half
 Of Latin that he'd use.
 If Koehler'd only apologize
 For everything he'd done,
 And Mitchell could read German
 And be the only one;
 If Moyer furnished No-to-bac
 For all the Senior boys,
 And Murray'd only keep awake
 The class with all his noise.
 If Altman had a man
 And Elvae had a bean,
 To bring her from her far-off home
 In winter's cold and snow;
 If Lucy had a chaperone
 To watch her and the boys,
 If Fuller only had her Bill
 Of all unmarriageable;
 If Alex and Floss had but one chair
 They wouldn't need to get chilled;
 And all the girls make eyes at Bright
 Without being self-willed;
 If such conditions should exist,
 I might well here relate,
 I think we'd all be satisfied
 With the good old class of '08.

No wonder there is such a call for song 241 (When Circles are Broken), since Joan and Lena have left town.

Teacher—What is your proposition?
 Scholar—The one about the square triangle.

Quite a novelty is suggested for the sale of tickets for football games. That is that the tickets be sold at the grounds by young ladies of the high school. Who would not buy a ticket from the attractive maidens of the high schools? Surely no man would be so hard-hearted.

Before long the seniors will be around selling tickets for the lecture course at the reasonable price of $1.00 for the course. Few people should miss these excellent selections. Reserved seat tickets will be sold at the usual place, Stoke & Feicht Drug Co. store.

As Wallace was taking his leave for the night
 And stood in the shadow close by
 And his voice arose passionately in the still air:

"Just one, just one," he did say,
 How long it had lasted no one can tell,
 For the moon closed his eyes with awe,
 And the words that so lately the silence had broke,
 Were repeated overhead by me.

"Just one, no it ain't quite that just yet,
 But its near to the hour of twelve,
 And if Annabell doesn't want any sleep,
 We'd like just a little ourselves."

The R. H. S. foot ball team is doing great work in practicing and we are confident of a good showing in a game.
 Manager Robinson is securing some first class games from the high schools and normals around this section and good ball is promised. As soon as possible the schedule will be published.
 The first game will probably be Saturday, Sept. 28, with Punxsutawney high school at Reynoldsville.

Did the author of "Die Journalisten" really mean to make so much trouble for the R. H. S. when he wrote his masterpiece?

It would have proven fatal to a young lady in the Junior class had No. 241 been sung a week ago Sunday morning.
 At least she claimed so.

Considering that the literary society last Friday was very impromptu, we had an excellent exercise. Several musical numbers were rendered with great success. The readings and recitations were also greatly appreciated.

Frankie, if you,
 With your eyes of brown,
 Have game and nerve
 To turn Otis down—
 "I'll be your little man for aye,
 If you'll be my little man,
 Says Lamar Ritch-a."

"Have any animals of this class skeletons?"

"Have you your Caesar done to-day" is what a good many Sophies say.

"Mr. Ritchie, you may take the seat in front of Miss Robertson." Miss Robertson is already on the front seat.

Miss Milliren to pupils—A good many years ago, when I was three or four years old, I saw some mummies."

Ask Mao to explain electricity.

Mother (calling upstairs)—Hurry Milo!
 Have you got your shoes on?
 Milo—Yes, mamma, all but one.

Overheard: Miss McCreight—Though they fell, they fell like stars. Translated:
 Though I fall, I fall like a star.

"Oh, dear! I'm tired of eating crusts,
 And cutting up no early,
 I've done it now for years and years,
 And still my hair's not curly."
