A UNIQUE WAY IN WHICH A CITY CHURCH IS SUPPORTED.

A Colony of Bees in the Belfry Help Along the Good Work in Cincinnati.

PLAN THAT REYNOLDSVILLE CHURCHES MIGHT ADOPT.

And Honey will Sweeten a Sour Deacon Once in a While if Necessary.

Rev. E. R. Wagner, of Cincinnati, while discoursing on Samson and the wild beast, remarked: "If parents of today would eat more honey they might have children as strong as Samson." This is not all I have to say about the reverend, but I wish to say here that honey has great heat producing, strength giving, and some medicinal properties. These qualities are considered most effectual in cases of rheumatism and diabetes. The acid secretion which the bees add to the honey for the purpose of preserving it, and which is composed largely of formic acid, same as the sting of the bee, acts as an anti-septic for the stomach, and through its chemical action on the acids of the stomach effects a more perfect change in the "muscle sugar." Diabetes is probably benefited very much in the same way. According to latest authority rheumatism is caused by "sarcolactic acid, an acid that is formed by defective change in muscle sugar." We know rheumatism patients do not find honey on their prescriptions, but they do find an anti-septic solution composed mostly of salicylic acid, which comes the nearest producing the same effect of anything in the way of medicine. Some doctors make use of honey themselves, and very often recommend its use for infants and children and for those who cannot eat sugar without some unpleasant results. Now, if any of you have not heard the story of Samson and the lion, I will give it in the reverend's own words: "One day this young man was going by a vineyard and a young lion came out from among the vines. He stood in the way; Samson was alone and did not have a thing in his hands, not even a light stick. The man faced the lion. An inspiring spirit said to Samson, 'You can conquer.' It was a bold challenge and a brave battle. The man won, as usual. Three months later Samson was going down the same way, and turned aside to see the carcass, and behold a swarm of bees took the ribs of the lion for Langstroth frames and filled the carcass with honey. Just how Samson got the honey without a modern Bingham bee-smoker I do not know, but he got the honey and went on eating and came to his father and mother and gave them and they did eat. 'Out of the eater came forth meat and out of the strong came forth sweetness.'"

Reverend Wagner was called as missionary pastor to Cincinnati, where he says after a few years they succeeded in building a church and parsonage. Now according to Emerson what is true of our lives and our congregations is probably true of others and their conditions.

Those Hard, Racking, Nervous Headaches

Can be cured by an intelligent and faithful use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills.

Nervous headache comes from a weakened condition of the brain nerve centres and can only be cured by a medicine that nourishes and tones up the nervous system. Headache powders only do harm as they further weaken and depress. On the contrary you must use a nerve medicine that is not only tonic, but rich in all the elements that go to feed these half starved nerve centres. Mrs. Della Kerns, 714 Seneca St., Buffalo, N. Y., tells you what this medicine is when she says: "When I began taking the Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills I was so nervous I could not keep still, could not sleep and was in a very bad state. My head ached hard—those hard, racking, nervous headaches that left me weak and prostrated. I used the medicine faithfully and since then have been all right—no headaches—no nervousness, feel strong and vigorous, and can sleep well again. I am glad, indeed, to recommend the medicine, as I consider it a safe and certain cure for such troubles. 50c a box at all dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y."

A HEAVY MIDDAY MEAL.

The Business Man, It is Claimed, Should Avoid It.

The Americans and English begin the day with breakfast, which is generally a substantial meal. This the people of the continent of Europe consider barbaric and disgusting. The Frenchman and the German breakfast on a scanty roll. They are consequently unable to go till the afternoon without absorbing something massive. The Frenchman toward noon takes a substantial lunch, and at midday the German takes a heavy meal, which absorbs his digestive energies during the remainder of the day. The German dinner makes a big break in the working day, and the eater, according to Dr. Martinet of Paris, suffers by a loss of energy during the afternoon. The heavy midday meal Dr. Martinet considers a mistake. One should not have dinner at noon, in the middle of one's workday, he says, but instead should take a light lunch. The lightest meal of the day, he thinks, should be during the period of exertion, and the heavy meal should be reserved for a later hour, when there is a chance for digestive repose. The proper series for the modern man, according to this authority, is a substantial breakfast, a light lunch about noon and a square meal at 6 o'clock or later.—Baltimore Sun.

Cleaning a Bedroom.

Most of us have a low opinion of a bedroom, and how annoying the dust of the sweeping is to the patient. "To remedy this," said a trained and capable nurse, "I put a little ammonia in a pail of warm water and with my mop wrung as dry as possible go all over the carpet first. This takes up all the dust and much of the loose dirt. A broom will take what is too large to adhere to the mop and rubs no dust. With dry dust cloth well sprinkled I go over the furniture, and the room is fairly clean."

Reason For Heavy Wheels.

Everywhere in the old world the wheels of wagons and carriages are two or three times as heavy as those on corresponding vehicles in America and so appear clumsy and cumbersome to us. The explanation of the difference is that our wheels are made of hickory, a wood unknown abroad, which supplies the requisite strength in smaller mass.—Travel Magazine.

A Matter of Economy.

"You're not so strict with that youngster of yours as you used to be," said Popley's friend.

"No; for economy's sake I'm not," replied Popley. "Every month I used to have to buy myself a new pair of slippers and him a new pair of pants."—Exchange.

The Biter Bit.

An old Lowlander had been persistently asked by his son, who was doing very well in London, to pay him a visit. Having at length decided to comply, he spent a fortnight in the metropolis and duly returned north to tell the tale. A pompous person invited him to his house soon after the old man's return, with a view to having some amusement at the latter's expense. "And what was it that most impressed you in the great city?" asked the pompous gentleman. "Well, sir," quoth the old fellow, "the thing about it that impressed me most was my own insignificance. 'Deed, sir, I wad dae ye a vast deal o' good, sir!'"—Dundee Advertiser.

The Goose.

The goose, which for some unknown reason has become an emblem of idleness, but which is really a wise bird of good habits and one of the most profitable for the fancier, was probably the first fowl to be domesticated by man. Homer, 1,200 years before the Christian era, speaks of his geese, in which he was greatly interested, and the hieroglyphics of Egypt prove that at his time they had been tamed for centuries.—Circle.

WHY YOU SHOULD SEE JAMESTOWN

The Jamestown Exposition is no longer a prospect; it has developed into an interesting reality. Its field is distinctly historical, and it liberally illustrates by picture and reproduction, the development of American civilization and American institutions from the day of the first settlement on Jamestown peninsula in 1607 through three hundred years to the present time. Famous buildings in the nation's history have been reproduced by thirty different states, filled with memories of the olden times and of memorials of the upward march.

The National Government has taken a keen interest in the Exposition, and is one of its chief exhibitors. The display of modern warships of all nations on Hampton Roads is a unique and attractive feature, and the military manoeuvres lend a stirring touch to the daily program.

The Jamestown Exposition is a prominent event in our National history and should be visited by every American citizen who desires to see what three hundred years of American enterprise has wrought in our land.

The Pennsylvania Railroad offers attractive service via Philadelphia and its "Cape Charles Route," by its routes via Baltimore and the Chesapeake Bay lines, via Washington and the Potomac River line, and via Washington and Richmond. The rates are reasonable and the fare varies according to the route and length of the stay.

Ask Ticket Agents for rates of fare, stop-over privileges, and time of trains.
