No other food deteriorates so rapidly as the oyster. Its habitation is the ocean. It requires coolness and absolute freedom from exposure to the air in order to retain its delicate flavor and its wholesomeness.

SEALSHIPT OYSTERS

Are brought directly from the choicest beds of America. They are shucked into porcelain-lined cases, sealed and packed in ice, which never comes in contact with the oysters. The use of the Sealshipt Carriers is the secret of their superiority.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

BULLETIN

THE NEW UNION STATION AT WASHINGTON

All the passenger trains of the Pennsylvania Railroad will enter and depart from the new Union Station at Wash-ington on November 17, 1907, and on the same date the present station at Sixth and B streets will be closed to traffic.

The date is singularly fitting. In 1807 both wings of the Capitol were completed, and now, a century later a building even larger is opened for a great public utility, which did not exist at that thme.

The railroad terminal facilities at Washington have been inadequate for years, particularly at inauguration periods and on the assemblage of other large gatherings at the Capital. Their improvement was imperative and so it has come about that by the combined effort of the railroads and the United States government, one of the largest and unquestionably the handsomest railroad station in the world is now provided not only for the convenience of the citizens of the United States, but as a notable architectural addition to the great public buildings of the Capital City. It is a monumental edifice and a worthy type of the future structures which will make Washington the municipal beauty spot of the world.

SOUP AT $35 A PLATE. Sterlet Roe at $10 a Head and Peanut

Bud Jelly at $250.

Public interest has recently been excited by a remarkable dinner party given in London at which twenty-four people sat down and which cost $15,-000. Some high class chefs who know the deepest mysteries of their business are inclined to say that this was really pothing after all.

The most expensive soup that can be served is Chinese bird's nest soup, which can hardly be done at less than $35 for a moderate plate of it for each guest.

When the fish course is reached in the menu the most expensive item possible is the newest cavalre, made from sterlet roe and not from common sturgeon. There are only one or two London restaurants at which this rare delicacy may be obtained, and the charge for it is $10 per head.

Mullet roe, another rare dish, costs more than its weight in silver, while those who do not wish to advance quite to this point in expenditure might be satisfied with a more frequently served dish, Caribbeau pompano, which has to be brought to London on Ice from Galveston or Pensacola and which costs $5 to $10 a pound.

A game ple, made of the little birds called ruffs-small things with long legs and a ruff of feathers behind their necks, belonging to the sandpiper famlly-is about the most expensive thing possible in this direction and cannot be done for less than $50 to $75, while f the ruffs are unusually scarce the charge for the pie may easily run up to $100.

Dunstable larks come next. They are fairly common on the tables of epicures, but it costs quite $7.50 to serve a single dish of them.

There are not so many possibilities for gigantic expenditure when the joints come on the table, giraffe steak or bison ribs at anything from $2.50 to $5 a head being about the best.

As for sweets, the thoughts of a millionaire host who wanted to beat the record and knew his business would naturally fly to a jelly of peanut buds and ginger, which would be sent to him in little pots from China at a charge of $250 a pot, one tablespoonful in each.

Forced strawberries in the middle of winter are most expensive to buy and may run to anything from $5 to $25 a head

A great delicacy at one time was the double cocoanut, or coco-de-mer, which is only grown on two small islands of the Seychelles and which was last sold nt $200. It is, however, so extremely rare now that an enactment has been passed forbidding its exportation under any circumstances.-London Stray Storles.

INVISIBLE SNAKES.

A Den of Reptiles That Eluded the Ordinary Passer's Eye.

The fact that snakes are rarely seen even when they are abundant was impressed upon the mind of the writer one day while waiting for a train at a small station in New Jersey. A nearby culvert, where a small stream flowed under the junction of the railway and a vell traveled public road, seemed a favorable place for them. The stone wall, laid up without mortar, which ported the approach to the bridge hal a southern exposure. The chinks allor led ample biding place, and the borders of the stream promised bunting for the species which live appear small fish, frogs, tonds and earth-118 The flagman, who for several years had passed ten hours a day at his lelsurely occupation there, dealed that there were snakes lif the vicinity. "No more than there be in Ireland, an' it's not me as would be tendin' this crossin' if there was," he asserted. But a few minutes' search in the gutters and grass revealed four specimens which had been under his very eyes-a garter, a worm, a De Kay and a newly hatched milk snake. A new dagman was installed there the following day, but crowds of people, many of whom would become hysterical at the sight of a snake, continue to pass within three feet of the wall blissfully unconscious that they are walking over a den of serpents.-Francis Metcalfe in Outing Magazine.

SAWED OFF ITS HEAD

Storm a Wooden Statue of Andrew Jackson Raised.

ON A FAMOUS OLD FRIGATE.

A Bold Boston Sea Cantain Mutilated the Constitution's Figurehead and Then Went to Washington and Defied the Authorities.

The figurehead which was placed on the frigate Constitution is now at the Naval academy in Annapolis. It is a figure of Andrew Jackson, and connected with it is a curious incident.

The original figurehead of the Constitution was a figure of Hercules. This was destroyed by a cannon ball at Tripoli, and then a figure of Neptune was crected. This also came to grief, and at the time the vessel was rebuilt there was no figurehead except a billet.

At the time the new ship was finished Captain Jesse Duncan Elliott of Hagerstown, Md., who had distinguished himself in the battle of Lake Erie, was in command at the Boston navy yard. Captain Elliott was an enthusinstic Democrat and an ardent admirer of President Andrew Jackson.

The president had lately been in Boston and had been most hospitably received, and Captain Elliott conceived the idea of placing a figure of the president at the prow of the Constitution, believing that it would give the people of Boston much pleasure. The navy department gave him permission. and so a wooden figure of "Old Hickory" was put in position on the ship.

This act raised a storm of dissent in the Hub, and Captain Elliott was threatened with a coat of tar and feathers. The excitement was intense, and the language was virulent. Handbills denouncing the act, denouncing the president and Elliott were circulated in the streets, and the newspapers took up the cry, and in this day and generation the partisan violence and vituperation which raged in New England are inconceivable.

On a dark night in July the deck of the ship was invaded, and, although a sentry was close at hand, the head of Jackson was sawed off and taken away. New England was delirious, and for a time the perpetrator of the act was unknown to the public.

Six months later one Samuel W. Dewey, a Boston sea captain, took the dissevered head in a bag to the secretary of the navy at Washington and avowed himself as the criminal. That official was amazed at the man's audacity and asked him if he did not know that he would be severely punished. Dewey calmly replied that he had considered the matter and had ascertained that the legal penalty was slight and could not be applied until he was convicted by a jury in Essex county, Mass.

"And if you think a jury in that county." he added, "will punish a man for cutting off the head of Andrew Jackson you are welcome to try it."

The secretary went to the White House for instruction, while Dewey was detained. General Jackson laughed heartily at the whole incident and forbade the man's arrest. Before this Captain Elliott had provided a new head for the figure, and the wooden statue of Jackson that is now at Annapolis was at the prow of the vessel

RARE COPPER CENTS.

Coin Collectors' Theory to Ascount For Their Scarcity.

That some of the rarest and mos valuable of the United States cents particularly those dated 1799 and 1804 owe their scarcity to the fact that Ful ton built the steamboat Clermont is the theory held by some coin collectors They believe that thousands of the ok time large copper cents went toward making the copper boller for the plo neer steambont. This theory would explain the mys-tery that has long puzzled coin collectors as to the reason for the almost total disappearance of the cents of the dates mentioned.

The first cents struck at the United States mints at Philadelphia were of large size. The copper blanks, or planchets, were imported from England, being sent over in kegs.

Copper at this period was a scarce article in this country. With the exception of the small quantity produced at the only copper mines then known in the United States, those at Granby, Conn., nearly all the metal used here came from England.

Builders of steam engines in those days were of the opinion that boilers constructed of iron were unsafe and impracticable, and as a consequence bollers were made of copper, all the boilers that came from England being. it is said, constructed of that metal Fulton was likewise of the helief that copper was the only fit metal to be used in bollers.

it is therefore possible that, finding a scarcity of metal with which to construct the boller of the Clermont, he faally resorted to the most convenient source of supply, which happened tothe large United States copper cents. Of course the cost of such a boiler would represent a large sum, Int it is on the records that the steam frigate Fulton, launched in 1815, the year of the inventor's death, had a coller entirely constructed of copper, which alone cost the large sum of $23. 1423.

That the supply of cents of this period was large enough to meet such a demand is also likely enough. From 1793 to and including 1795 1.066.033 cents were coined and in 1796 974,000 were struck.

DINING IN WALL STREET.

What Lunch Hour Means to New York's Financial District.

When one descends upon Wall street, either from the Broadway slope of Trinity church or from the Nassau strett hill, at noontime any week day the air is fraught with many conflicting odors of the kitchen. From over the roars of the clamoring curb folk way down in the valley of Broad street there arises from a score of cookeries and "handouts" a decided smell of the stewpot blended with the ever glorious onion. From the caves of the New York Stock Exchange come the more pretentious fragrance of spiced meats and strong collee. From the basement and attic alike, from cloud tickler and antiquated frame house as well, come all sorts of fuming evidences that the men of affairs are eating To realize what this luncheon hour means to Wall street one must stop to think of the thousands of persons who are in that small district of the city at this particular part of the day Hundreds of restaurants meet the rush with their doors flung wide, and their keepers have grown rich upon nickels and dimes that fall into their tills like a

PHILADELPHIA.

The station, including the Concourse is longer than the Capitol and nearly as wide. The waiting room is larger than the hall of the House of Representatives. The concourse, which is the train lobby, is longer than the interior of the Capitol building, if it were one continuous hall, and half as wide. It is the largest building ever constructed for a like purpose.

Within this great structure there is every convenience the traveler can desire, so grouped about the central hall as to serve his purpose to the best advantrge.

The lofty arched entrances face a plaza as large as an ordinary city park, which will be laid out as a plaza and adorned with shrubbery and fountains.

The trackage is sufficient for all demands upon. 3nd as the entrance to and exit from the confusion and jostling of hurrying crowds moving in opposite directions will be ob-100 viated.

The bigness of the station is impressive; its utilities obvious.

Today she is strong and healthy as a result of the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills.

The genuine Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills put up in a round flat box with blue and yellow label never fail, when Phils put up in a round nat box with blue and yellow label never fail, when intelligently used, to cure any and all childhood troubles caused by a run-down exhausted condition of the nerv-ous system. They give strength, steadiness, natural sleep and general vigor. Just as Mrs, Mary Ballert of $1 Dearborn St. Buffalo, N. Y. says they did in her daughter's case. She says: "From a little child up, my daughter-new 21 years of age-has been exceedingly nervous, fidgety and restless-even of late years, work has been exceedingly nervous, fidgety and restless-even of late years, work has been out of the question. Any exertion played her out-her sleep was far from pood and constantly broken. I was ad-vised to try Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. I got some and used them with fine results. The improvement was most marked-today ahe is in comfort -feels strong and better in every way and sleeps well. The syssight is better and stronger-none of the old watering of the eyes. It certainly is a splendid medicine." Site a box at all dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Captain Elliott's last voyage on the Constitution was from the Mediterranean to Hampton Roads in 1838. Here he was removed from command because of charges of severity to the men and of having incumbered the berth deck of the ship on the homeward voyage with jackasses for the improvement of the breed in the United States. The Constitution finally went out of commission for active service at Portsmouth, N. H., after a career of nearly fifty-eight years in the service. In 1860 she was transferred to Annapolis for the use of the midshipmen

When the civil war began her position there was deemed unsafe, and she was sent to the New York navy yard. In 1865 she was returned to Annapolis, where she remained until 1871, when she was taken to Philadelphia, where she was again rebuilt. In 1878 she was used to transport exhibits to France for the Paris exposition of 1878, and her career at sea finally ended in 1881. The centennial of her launching was celebrated at Boston in 1897, where she was built.-Baltimore kun.
