

Candidate for Congress.

It is a matter of great importance that the Republican voters of the Twenty-seventh district should make a wise selection of a candidate for Congress at the primary election to be held Saturday afternoon, April 11. The district is large, its interests varied, and to represent it properly a man should have more than a theoretical knowledge of its needs. He should have practical experience as well. He should be a man who has succeeded in his own affairs. It is a safe and sane rule to follow in selecting men for public service, to choose only those who have demonstrated their ability to manage their own business successfully. The people of the Twenty-seventh district are fortunate in having a representative who fully meets the requirements indicated, and is making a marked success in his congressional career, as he has in all others. Hon. Joseph G. Beale was raised on a farm and was a successful farmer, engaged in merchandising and succeeded, built and operated an iron and steel mill and made a success of it, is at present engaged in banking and producing coal with success. These activities cover very nearly all the interests of the district, and gauged by the standards mentioned, practical knowledge and success, Major Beale is surely the right man in the right place and it would not be a good business proposition to make a change. The question of fitness being settled there are some minor matters that should appeal to the voters of the district in his favor. It has been the custom to concede a man a second term and Major Beale has always honored this custom in standing loyally by the men who have preceded him. They will surely remember his loyalty and give him their support as manly men ought. The law of the land provides that, all things being equal, a soldier of the civil war shall have the preference in all appointments to offices of profit or trust under the government. This law was enacted in grateful recognition of the men who offered their lives for the protection and perpetuity of the government. Major Beale was one of those who enlisted at the first call for three months, served his time and re-enlisted for three years. He baptised the soil of Virginia with his blood at Charles City Cross Roads June 30, 1862, lay upon the field seven days, was captured, confined in Libby prison and lay there until paroled. In the spirit of the law is he not entitled to every vote in the district? He has been loyal to the Republican party all his life, has never wavered nor sulked in his tent, even when smarting under defeat, but has always been found marching in the ranks and contributing liberally to help elect the men who defeated him. With such a record for ability, in his practical knowledge of the wants of the people, for success, for loyalty to country and party, the people of Armstrong county feel they are presenting a candidate who is in every particular worthy the support they ask for him. —Kittanning Tribune.

District and Sub-District Officers Elected.

Elections were held in the various locals of sub-district No. 5 of district No. 2, U. M. W. of A., last week for district and sub-district officers, the official count of which will not be given until the district convention meets next month. The unofficial count gives the following result in the sub-district: President, John Sullivan, of Punxsutawney; vice-president, William Owens, of Reynoldsville. District No. 2—President, Patrick Gilday, of Morrisdale Mines; vice-president, James Purcell, of Arnot; International board member, Thomas Haggerty, of Reynoldsville.

The Coal Industry in 1907.

A production of between 450,000,000 and 460,000,000 short tons of coal in the United States in 1907 is indicated by the returns received thus far by the United States Geological Survey, or an increase of about ten per cent over the record breaking output of 1906.

The most notable increase was made in the production of Pennsylvania anthracite, in which a gain of 20 per cent was recorded, if the shipments reported by the Bureau of Anthracite Coal Statistics may be accepted as indicative of the total production; and as the shipments amounted to more than 85 per cent of the total production, such an assumption is not unreasonable. The shipments of anthracite in 1908 amounted to 67,109,393 long tons, as against 55,696,595 long tons in 1906. This would indicate a total production for the year of approximately 75,396,000 long tons, or about 85,840,000 short tons.

The production of bituminous coal cannot be estimated as closely as that of anthracite, for there is no such reliable method of arriving at the total; but letters received by the survey from a number of the larger operators and from state officials indicate that the output of bituminous coal in 1907 exceeded that of the previous year by 7 to 10 per cent. The increases were rather unevenly distributed and were influenced by several causes. In the eastern states where large quantities of bituminous coal are used in coke making and for other industrial purposes, the trade felt heavily the financial stress of the last three months of the year, and locally this effect was so pronounced that increases recorded during the first nine months were to a large extent wiped out. Had it not been for this disturbance in financial circles the production of bituminous coal in 1907 would probably have shown an increase almost comparable with the gain in anthracite production. It is almost certain that the increase would have amounted to about 15 per cent, total output being between 390,000,000 and 400,000,000 tons. As it is, the output will probably be about 25,000,000 tons short of that figure.

HENRIETTA CROSMAN.

At Jefferson Theatre, Punxsutawney, on Thursday evening, February 20th.

In "The New Mrs. Loring," described as a comedy, pure and simple, there will be found one of the most human stories ever modified for the theatre. In its gradual development the author has dared much by relating most of the truth connected with the life of a prominent American. The real denouement would hardly convey belief to the skeptics among the theatre-going public, so the author has taken that theatrical license of ending her play with fiction. Even then the story is said to compel interest until the final curtain. A special trolley has been chartered to return to Reynoldsville after the performance. Call at National Hotel for tickets.

Scheafnocker for Treasurer.

Grant Scheafnocker, present sheriff of Jefferson county, who is now a candidate for the Republican nomination for county treasurer, is a strong and popular candidate and will get a large vote at the primary election in April. Mr. Scheafnocker, who was plumber for the Oil City Fuel Supply Co. at Reynoldsville when he was nominated and elected three years ago for sheriff, made his canvas at that time as a laboring man, and was not well known throughout the county at the beginning of the campaign, but his position as sheriff gives him an advantage in this campaign because he is so well known over the county. He has been so obliging and courteous, and has so ably and carefully conducted the affairs of the county during his administration as sheriff, that he has won the admiration and good will of a large number of voters who will stand by him during this contest and will vote for him April 11. Mr. Scheafnocker would make an excellent treasurer of Jefferson county if nominated and elected.

When you want plumbing done or anything in the plumbing line, call on C. E. Humphrey on Main street.

Popular Candidate.

County Commissioner J. N. Kelley, of Brookville, was a visitor to Brockwayville one day this week and while here favored the Record with a pleasant visit. Mr. Kelley, who is a candidate for re-election to the office of Commissioner, is meeting with deserved encouragement in his present campaign and there is a growing sentiment in every district in the county in favor of a re-election for Mr. Kelly. Jefferson county never had a more capable or trustworthy official in the commissioners office than Mr. Kelly, as all who have any business to transact there can readily testify, and it is but natural that the people would want to retain so able a man. The Record will say more about Mr. Kelly's candidacy in another issue, but will state here that the people of Jefferson county have in Commissioner Kelly a man who merits the position he holds and his past service is the best recommendation for his re-election.—Brockwayville Record.

In "Parsifal" we offer the greatest religious subject that has been produced in motion pictures since the Passion Play was first produced by the Edison Company about eighty years ago, and there has been a constant demand for this picture during all these years, and continuing up to the present day. At the same time there has been not only a demand, but a long-felt want for a new religious picture of interest and merit similar to the Passion Play.

In "Parsifal" we believe we have filled this want. A large amount of time, labor and money has been expended in producing this picture. The picture was specially posed and rehearsed for motion pictures. The same talent, scenery and costumes used in the original dramatic production were used for taking these pictures, the company having played "Parsifal" for several seasons. The result is that we have produced a picture both dramatically and photographically perfect, which we offer to the public with every confidence that it will be received accordingly.
