Some tall mercury columns are used in measuring great pressures. One in a well at Butte Aux Cailles, France, is 1,650 feet high, and re-cords up to 660 atmospheres, one at St. Etienne, in a mine, is 1,330 feet, recording. 530 atmospheres, and that on Eiffel tower is 1,000 feet, recording 440 atmospheres. Senator Johnston of Alabama, owns a beautiful home surrounded by several acres in Birmingham, and takes great delight in donning a pair of overalls and a split hickory hat and working in the garden. One day a fashionably dressed woman, who had resided in Birmingham only a short time and had never seen Johnston, called on his wife. No one answered the bell, so she walked out among the flower beds, where the ex-governor was beeing some geraniums

He bowed and she asked him how long he had worked for the Johnstons. good many years, madam," he replied

"Do they pay you well?"
"About all I get out of it is my clothes and keep."

"Why, come and work for me," sho said. "I'll do that and pay you so much a month besides." "I thank you, madam," he replied, bowing very low, "but I signed up with Mrs. Johnston for life." "Why, no such contract is binding.

In Kansas City the police even ar-rest on Sunday musicians who give concerts. "But," says the marshal to the grand jury, "several persons who participated in Philharmonic Orchestra's concert this week got away. > MUSIC STUDENTE Should Have Steady Nerves.

The nervous system of the musician is often very sensitive, and any habit like coffee drinking may so upsot the nerves as to make regular and necessary daily practice next to impossible.

"I practice from seven to eight hours a day and study Harmony two hours," writes a Mich. music student. "Last September I was so nervous I could only practice a few minutes at a time and mother said I would have to drop my music for a year.

"This was terribly discouraging as I couldn't bear the thought of losing a whole year of study. Becoming convinced that my nervousness was caused largely by coffee, and seeing Postum so highly spoken of, I decided would test it for a while.

"Mother followed the directions carefully and I thought I had never asted such a delicious drink. We drank Postum every morning instead of coffee, and by November I felt more like myself than for years, and was ready to resume my music.

"I now practice as usual, do my studying and when my day's work is finished I am not any more nervous than when I began.

"I cannot too highly recommend Postum to musicians who practice half a day. My father is a physician and recommends Postum to his patients. Words cannot express my preciation for this most valuable health beverage, and experience has proven its superiority over all others." "There's a Reason."

El Pom Be Courteous to Your Elders By Beatrice Fairfax.

OT long ago I sat in the reception room of one of the big hotels waiting for a friend. Presently a young woman and her mother came in and took seats near me. The daughter was a bright-faced, sweet-looking girl and the mother was the dearest little old lady you ever saw.

Anything more beautiful and thoughtful than the daughter's manner toward her mother I have rarely witnessed. She brought a comfortable chair for her, put a cushion at her back, saw that her back was toward the light, every once in awhile giving her hand a loving little pat and saying, "Are you perfectly comfortable, dear-are you enjoying yourself?" They made a pretty picture. A little while afterward I saw another mother and daughter in the same hotel, but, oh, how different they were from the first couple.

The mother was a sad-faced, patient-looking woman, who looked as though she had never had a good time or any petting in her life. That the daughter evidently looked on her as rather a nuisance was shown the impatient manner in which she answered any questions her mother put Presently some young friends joined them. The mother stood patiently by until her daughter saw fit to introduce her, which she did in a negligent, disrespectful way The contrast between the first and second mother and daughter was so great as to be painful.

There is nothing that shows a young person up in such a bad light as disrespect to an older person. If that person happens to be her mother or father is is doubly dis-

When you see a young man or young woman comfortably scated while an older person stands or hear them address an older person rudely you may be sure that they do not amount to much. As far as your mother is concerned you never can do enough for her.

All that's good in you you owe to her love and care. If girls would only learn to be more friendly and confidential with their mothers it would be an excellent thing for them.

It would save them from many blunders and heartaches.

So many girls look on their mothers as too old to be interested in fun of any kind. And that is just where the girls make a great mistake, for the mothers would love to join in the fun and galety if any one were thoughtful enough to ask them to.

If you treat your parents disrespectfully your friends will do the same. There is just one thing to be said in defence of the disrespectful child, and that is that the parents are to blame in the beginning. If a child in its younger days is allowed to go uncorrected for disobedfence, impertinence and wilfulness, it is pretty sure to grow into a self-willed, disrespectful boy or girl. The greatest wrong that parents can do their children is to spoil and indulge them. They will grow into selfish men and women, and the parents will be the first ones to reap the benefit of their foolish training.

Treat your elders with courtesy and respect and your mother with the tender love and homage that is hers by right.-New York Journal.

Commence How Carnegie Has Wasted $12,000,000

> By Richard T. Crane, Sr., Millionaire Manufacturer of Chicago.

HY do men like Carnegie and Armour put their money into the technical schools, when their money was made by men who had no such education? Look at the inconsistencies between what Mr. Carnegle says and what he does.

I quote from Mr. Carnegle's "Empire of Businezs," the chapter headed "How to Win Fortunes," written by Mr. Carnegle five years ago:

"But the almost total absence of the technical school graduate from high positions in the business world seems to justify the conclusion that college education as it exists seems almost fatal to success in the business domain. The poor clerk and mechanic is the one

Now, after all these illustrations, based on his own experience and observation, in favor of practical men against technical men-against the graduate-Mr. Carnegie enters into the field of pure speculation and backs his fancy to the extent of a $12,000,000 technical institute. This is only a whim of Mr. Carnegie's. He might take his $12,000,000, add $12,000,000 to it and throw the whole into the ocean, and this country would be better off. Is it for the benefit of the public to turn out men who will be distanced by clerks and mechanics? Has he taken the sound business course? I would call his institute the Carnegie Twelve Million Dollar Blunder.

Now, I wish to say that I give Mr. Carnegie a chance to answer this attack. I wrote him a letter and told him what I was going to do and asked him four questions. I agreed to read his answers, but I have had no response from him. These were the questions I asked him:

Do you owe your success in business to the technically educated men is your employ or to those not so educated? If you owe your success to the technical men what is the proportion of these men in your employ to the men not so educated? Have you observed in your business life that technically educated men are more successful than those not so educated?

The best education is long experience and observation in an up-to-date factory." He continued: "Four years in the shop is the training to get." All an apprentice needs is to understand English, be able to write and do plain arithmetic and draw. He can get this at the night school or at home.
