

FROM A WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

The Average Girl.

I wonder why every one is so ready condemn the poor present day girl? The average girl of the present day has many interests and wastes far less time than the maiden of the "good times,"-Mrs. Neish in M. A. P.

Hostesses' Union.

What is wanted is a hostesses' trade union, a powerful combination of soclety women pledged to maintain their own self-respect, and to extinguish socially any man guilty of the slightest lapse of the courtesy which every oman has every right to expect, says the Ladies' Field. The drawback to the formation of such a society lies in the fact that unfortunately being respected neither by men nor each other, most women do not respect themselves either.

Hair, Eyes and Dress.

Women with blue eyes may wear ly color in the daylight, says a dressmaker of renown who has been letting the public into her secrets. She lays down rules by which women who lack judgment in the matter of colors may be guided. She advises women with brown hair to stick to the wide range of browns, tans and creams, but tells them they may wear the softer shades of gray if their eyes have a glint of hazel. Old women, or those of middle age whose hair is turning to white, sae advises to go in for more white in their costumes. Red is the color she gives most attention, for it is the color most women go wrong on, she says. Highly colored complexions may take hat, this authority asserts, if kin is clear, while on the same sciple those women who lack color h their faces should place the red below. If the skin is very good, and she lays stress on the "very," one may wear yellow, but only in the evening. -New York Press.

Remarkable English Woman.

Mrs. Josephine E. Butier, who recently passed away in her seventyninth year, was one of the most remarkable English women of her generation. An untiring worker for the cause of woman in many ways, she levoted years of the most strenuous fort to preventing the passage of a law providing for the state regulation of vice in England. She held meetings in almost every town in England and Scotland, often speaking from the tail of a cart in some market place; visited workhouses, prisons and hospitals, and at last, after seventeen years' hard work, had the satisfaction of seeing the bill voted down in parliament. ater she organized the International Federation for the Abolition of the State Regulation of Vice. Her propaganda was carried on at much personal sacrifice, and often at no little personal risk, being denied lodging in certain botels and turned out of others as soon as her name became known, while often her friends felt obliged to hustle her out of the reach of mobs .ew York Tribune

Encourage His Hobbies.

Women would find men much easier ethered to their own firesides if they would encourage their husbands in some peculiar hobby, and forgive the little extra trouble the brushing up afterward gives them. The encouraging of a hoppy certainly implies selfsacrifice on the part of the wife, but, if she is wise, she will give her "man" a corner of the home as his own den, where he can bestow his properties, ake as much littler as he chooses work out his leisure in the pursuit

Perhaps it may take him many hours to turn a soap box into a corner apboard, but do not laugh at the work art when it is finished. Praise it rather. It is better for a man to do such things in his odd hours than attend a football match, bet, drink, and lose his situation, says an exchange. His example, too, will lessen the labor in the training of your family, for his eye will be on the young people, and they will in "helping father" learn to find home the most blessed spot on earth.-indianapolis News.

How Love is Lost.

Love is lost by thoughtlessness, by inconsideration, and by selfishness more than by any other way.

Because one loves you is that any eason you should be inconsiderate of them?

There is a false idea affoat in the stream of life, that when people love we can be rude to them, that bese they know we love them they will forgive every lack of courtesy.

This is absolutely untrue. The closer two people are united by e bond of love, the more necessary it is for them to observe every law of Love isn't so very difficult to gain, but it's mighty difficult to keep.

You can better afford to be rude to reryone else in the world than to who love you.

Love is a flower that needs constant ttention, and the very minute it is eglected, left too long in the glaring the unselfishness that goes to selfishness, it dies.

And love is never resurrected Give those you love words of affec-on, the looks that tell them so much the unselfishness that goes to make love and without which it is a miserable imitation. Because they love you shall they be the last to be thought of? And this love sent out will come back, making you better, richer and happier and your life really worth while.-New York Register.

Reforming Society.

An enthusiastic motorist must have written the following encomium on the automobile, which is heralded as a sort of saviour of society,

Women who give most of their time and purses to dress have now turned to the motor car. Their machines have taken a newer and greater interest, and one which gives them no personal trouble or discomfort. Many a woman of wealth and position who some years ago would have had half a dozen morning costumes now does with one skirt and a few simple blouses for morning wear.

"Motors are largely responsible, too, for slackness of business on Fridays, Saturdays and Mondays. This is generally felt in the great cities of the world.

"They are also the cause of fewer social functions in the evening. A run in the air induces sleep and a desire for rest after the evening meal. Persons are unwilling to enter the heated theatre or close reception room when overcome with drowsiness.

"Decidedly the motor car is revolutionizing the world of society, which is bad from the tradespeople's point of view, but good from that of the world at large.

One of the City's Throng. Recently a pleasant faced, elderly, gray haired woman was riding in a southbound elevated train. Her attention was attracted and her interest excited by a bevy of bright and happy looking young girls who entered the car at one of the uptown stations. They fluttered in and quickly but quietly found seats. One of them sat next to the traveler first mentioned. Their glances met, and with the privilege that age confers in such circumstances, she addressed some pleasant remark to her pretty young neighbor. She was surprised and a little hurt when the girl, without making any response, turned her head and looked the other way. When the train stopped at 28th street the whole party arose and crowded eagerly toward the door. As this was where the older woman intended to alight, she arose also, and so found herself standing next to her seat-mate. She took occasion to say: "I have traveled all over the world, and I have never hesitated to speak a pleasant word to strangers when I have felt attracted by them, and I should otherwise have spent many lonely hours and missed making many charming friends. I think that this is the first time that my well meant advances have met with a rebuff." The girl again looked into the woman's face with an absolutely unanswering gaze and then hurried gayly after her companions. This second ignoring of her remarks by the little maiden was a shock to the traveler, when it suddenly occurred to her how stranger teen or twenty girls had been-going, too, as it now appeared, to the circus. She tried to recall if one of them had spoken a single word-and then, in a flash, she realized that they were a Barnum & Balley bound delegation from the School for Deaf Mutes. The ticket chopper is probably still wondering what set that quiet appearing gray haired woman off into a fit of almost uncontrollable laughter as she stood there on the platform.-New York Tribune.

FINANCE AND TRADE REVIEW

BUYERS ARE CONSERVATIVE

Best News of Week as to Manu ufacturing Conditions Is from Leather Industry.

New York.-R. G. Dun & Co's weekly review of trade says:

"Retall trade in spring goods has made further progress and the con-servative buying by dealers in preparing for current distribution is now providing a good supplementary de-mand from wholesale and jobbing houses.

Unusually advanced weather in many sections stimulates business, and agricultural work is making an early start. In the leading indus-tries there is evidence of gradual increase in contracts, many plants preparing for greater activity on April 1, while proposed reductions wages have produced no threats of strikes.

"The best news of the week as to manufacturing conditions comes from one leather industry, although ship-ments of footwear through Boston are only about two-thirds those of the same week last year. Dispatches from the West and South are most favorable as to the general commercial situation, a few cities reporting the volume of business fully equal to last year's, and these state-ments are supported by bank exchanges at these points about the same as in 1907. There is still com-plaint regarding mercantile collections, although improvement is noted, "Progress in the iron and steel industry continues frregular, activity increasing in the wire and plate departments, while heavy lines await a revival of normal demand. The outlook is encouraging, however, be cause improvement in the financial situation continues.

"In the primary markets for tex tile fabrics there is more inquiry, es pecially for small quantities of cot tons to be shipped promptly. Ur gency of demand for immediate shipnent indicates that stocks in dis tributing channels are light and goods must be secured for delivery on orders that were taken but that lower prices would be named by pro ducers before retailers called for them.

A Giant Apple Tree.

At Cheshire, Connecticut, stands an apple-tree which is known to be 190 years old, and is believed to be much older than that. The trunk is 171-2 feet in circumference near the ground, and the height of the tree is about 70 feet. There are 8 large branches. Five of these bear fruit one year, and the other three the next year. One year this remarkable tree yielded 130 bushels of apples. The tree is regular in form, and the circle shaded by its branches is 136 feet in diameter.-Youth's Com-Denion

TO LIGHTEN_A NORTH ROOM. No one wants a gloomy room, but what to do with one facing north is often a difficult problem.

Some people do without curtains to allow all the light possible to come into the room; but it is not so much light that one needs as sunshine, and when this cannot be had, one must make it, or, rather, get the eftect of it. Try having it papered with a soft yellow paper. A good plan is to have a light yellow on the walls as far as the picture moulding, and a lighter shade, almost a cream, above this and on the cell-Then yellow silk sash curtains, ing. pulled back, tend to make a room appear sunny, says Home Chat.

Brass can make a wonderful difference to a dreary room. A large jardiniere, with a plant in it, placed in a dark corner, will lighten up the corner marvellously. Brass fireirons, too, will give a cheery reflection, even candlesticks help, and little trays and bowls, be they ever so small. The importance of brass in a sunless room cannot be too strongly emphasized. Mirrora brighten it up, and so do some pictures, with well polished glasses and gilded frames,-Pittsburg Dispatch,
