Gave Him All the Lot.

"So that is your final word?" said the rejected one. "Very well, then, Arabella. In your presence I will end the life you have blighted."

He drew forth a small bottle labeled "Poison," drank off the contents and fell senseless at her feet. Did she sink beside him sobbing with remorse? No. She hastily left the room and in two minutes had returned and was kneeling beside him. Then she forced between his lips the following: Half a cup of turpentine, one pint of milk, a cup of warm soapsuds, a tablespoonful of aromatic ammonia, a cup of black coffee, a glass of mustard and water, a gill of vinegar, the juice of a lemon, the beaten whites of six eggs and one cup of flour and water.

"Algernon," she observed coldly as he slowly opened his eyes, "it is evident you had forgotten that I am a graduate of a correspondence course in first aid. My one regret is that, as I could not on the instant ascertain whether you had taken an acid or an alkali, I was compelled to administer all the antidotes I had learned."—London Scraps.

A Picture Romance.

It is said that one of the most beautiful ladies in French society today was first revealed to her husband on the walls of the salon. It was while visiting the salon in 1878 that the youthful Marquis de C. was struck by the childish beauty of a young girl, one of the prominent figures in a picture of a village fete. Her tumbled golden locks, her dancing blue eyes and the freshness and graceful abandon of her figure so fascinated him that he sought out the artist and learned from him that the "little witch" was the daughter of a poor peasant near Avranches, where the picture was painted. To seek out the peasant and to make the acquaintance of his fascinating daughter, child of nine summers, was soon accomplished, and the marquis lost his heart even more completely to the real than to the pictured maid. With the father's approval he had the girl educated at one of the best schools in Paris, and nine years later, on her eighteenth birthday, the maid of the village fete blossomed into the still more lovely Marquise de C.

The Bolster.

The crusaders are said to have brought home with them the bolster, and, according to Dr. Cantle, their wives, in ignorance of the only rational way of using the article (i. e., lengthwise as a support for the back of a person when lying on his side) and not knowing what else to do with it, put the bolster where it is still found on the beds of those who have not learned the wisdom of discarding it altogether—under the pillow.—London Chronicle.

Truth in a Turkish Bath.

"Judge," said the colored witness, "I'm hongry now. I been tellin' de truth fer two hours!"
"Is that the longest time you ever told it?"
"Yes, suh, an' it's had me sweatin'!"—Atlanta Constitution.

A Reassuring Truth.

A lady on one of the ocean liners who seemed very much afraid of icebergs asked the captain what would happen in case of a collision. The captain replied, "The iceberg would move right along, madam, just as if nothing had happened." And the old lady seemed greatly relieved.—Success.

Where Did They Come From?

The woods around Big Run, or three miles beyond, along the east branch of the Mahoning are infested with jack rabbits. Big, long, lanky fellows with hind legs twice as long as their bodies and as hard to shoot as a mosquito on the wing.

Not being a part of the natural order of things in this part of the country, hunters are anxious to know how they came to be so thick in that section.

Not many years ago a number of German hares were set at liberty in that vicinity and some are of the opinion that the big white jacks represent the posterity of that half-dozen German hares. Such, however, is not the case. The German hare is in a way of a domestic nature, not wild enough to keep clear of the many enemies of the rabbits, of which the woods are full, and the chances are that six months after the time they were liberated they were extinct.

The jack that abounds in that vicinity differs from the western jack inasmuch as its ears are only about half as long and that most of the big fellows around here are perfectly white, with now and then a gray one.

Where did they come from?—Punxsutawney Spirit.

Rheumatism Cannot Be Cured Unless Uric-O Is Used.

Sudden Deaths, Heart Failure and Paralysis Are Caused By Poisonous Uric and Rheumatic Acids.

The rheumatic person is sceptical regarding the claims of almost any remedy advertised as a cure for rheumatism and no one can scarcely blame him for doing so. All the plasters and liniments combined never actually cured a case of rheumatism. They may relieve it in one quarter but it is sure to break out somewhere else. The only true way to cure rheumatism is to drive it from the system, for as long as the uric and rheumatic acid remains in the blood, one is never entirely free from the trouble. Uric-O seeks out the rheumatic poison in the blood, muscles and kidneys, renders it inert and harmless and drives it out of the system. It is composed of perfect antidotes for the rheumatic acid poison in the system, and the secret of its wonderful success lies in the fact that it is designed to cure rheumatism only. Uric-O is sold by druggists at 75c and $1.00 the bottle. A liberal sample may be procured by writing to the Smith Drug Co., 110 Smith Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y.
