A new bridge is needed over the Sandy Lick creek at the foot of Main street. The present structure was suitable in its day, but it has become unsafe for the heavier traffic now passing over it, and besides is in very poor repair. There is no bridge in the county over which more traffic passes in the course of a year than this one.

The club was organized several months ago and notwithstanding sundry difficulties in the way of financing the proposition, and even of being partially burnt out in the fire of December 5th, the young men have held together. They have just opened another room in their quarters over the Bijou nickelodeon to accommodate the increasing membership and need more funds. The people of Reynoldsville should see that they get them on the evening of February 18th.

One of the Brightest Men in Congress.

With the exception of the Speaker, no man in Congress is more famed for his witty epigrams and bright comparisons than Jonathan P. Dolliver. It was he who described the attitude of the democrats on the tariff question as that of "men emptying hard coal ashes in a high wind, with their eyes shut and their backs to the subject." "Mugwumps," he said on another occasion, "treat their consciences like the stock in trade of a baking powder company; they solemnly insist that everybody's conscience has alum in it except their own."

It was he who first characterized Major McKinley as "the advance agent of prosperity."

But Mr. Dolliver is more than a humorist. His speeches are noted for their breadth and thoroughness, as well as for their striking interest. He has spoken in every large city in the country. Among his most noted addresses were those at the McKinley banquet in Madison Square Garden in 1890, at the Lincoln dinner of the Republican club in New York, before the Boston Merchant's Association and to the veterans on Memorial Day at Gettysburg and at Arlington.

Senator Dolliver will speak in Assembly hall, Reynoldsville, in March, being the last number of the public school lecture course.

The above directors own and hold in their own names real estate and other property worth at least $400,000. They pay 4 per cent on time deposits with liberal withdrawal privileges.
