Pies and Profits.

When Solomon Andrews died at his Cardiff home in England not long ago he left a fortune of $750,000-which in Cardiff is looked upon as a mighty estate, Solomon Andrews was the prince of plemen. His ples were meat ples and Solomon peddled them from a tray. They were good ples, made on honor, and Solomon's trade increased. As custom came to him he invested in a horse and cart—but he didn't let increased expenses affect the standard of his pies. In time he added a bakeshop, and then people came to him for the ples, and the peddling cart became a delivery wagon. A confec-tionery department still further ind his trade, and later on he branched out in varied mercantile di-rections. He became a commercial Pooh Bah, being in later years not only a baker and confectioner, but also a bus line owner, a tailor, an un-dertaker, a cab proprietor, a restaurant keeper and a coal mine owner. We are told that in each of these lines of trade he proved successful.

Cured Sweency and Removed a Spavin.

Dr. Sloan's Liniment and Vetinary Remedies are well known all the country. They have saved over the lives of many valuable horses and are a permanent institution in thousands of stables.

Mr. G. T. Roberts of Resaca, Ga. R. F. D. No. 1, Box 43, writes:-"I have used your Liniment on a horse for sweeney and effected a thorough cure. I also removed a spavin on a mule. This spavin was as large as a guinea egg. I regard Sloan's Liniment as the most penetrating and effective Liniment I have ever known." Mr. H. M. Gibbs, of Lawrence, Kans., R. F. D. No. 3, writes:-"Your Liniment is the best that I have ever used. I had a mare with an abscess on her neck and one 50c, bottle of Sloan's Liniment entirely cured her. I keep it around all the time for galls and small swellings and for everything about the stock."

Dr. Sloan will send his Treatise on the Horse free to any horseman. Address Dr. Earl S. Sloan, Boston, Mass., Station A.

Making Farming Pay.

Secretary Wilson in a recent ad dress summarized in a few sentences the processes of a farmer who suc ceeds in making farming pay. This successful farmer he thus describes:

- "He rotates his crops.
- "He has good pastures.
- "He has a good garden. "He tile-drains his lands.
- "He keeps up good fences.

"He puts all manure promptly on the fields.

"He keeps dairy cows or mutton sheep, or both.

A Handy Barn.

Here are plans for a handy barn. It will hold seven head of horses and about ten head of cows. A crib op-posite the feedway will hold about 600 bushels of corn and an oats bin adjoining this will hold from 1000 to 1200 bushels of that grain. This leaves a space fifteen by eighteen for implements, hay or anything that the farmer may wish to put in it. The doors on the cow shed are wide enough so you can drive through them with a wagon or manure spreader. The horse stable has double stalls ten feet wide and fifteen feet from inside of manger to the wall. This, together with the fact that the doors are eight feet wide, enable you to get out with your team very easily. The size of the structure is thirty-five by thirty-eight feet, with a hay mow over the lower floor. The eaves are six feet, affording more than usual protection to the outside

"MEMOIRS OF DAN RICE," THE CLOWN OF OUR DADDIES.

At Last, There is on Sale a Book Brimful of American Humor. Any bookseller will tell you that the constant quest of his customers is for "a book which will make me laugh." The bookman is compelled to reply that the race of American humorists has run out and comic literature is scarcer than funny plays. A wide sale is therefore predicted for the "Memoirs of Dan Rice," the Clown of Our Daddies, written by Maria Ward Brown, a book guaranteed to make you roar with laugher. The author presents to the public a volume of the great jester's most pungent jokes, comic harangues, caustle hits upon men and manners. lectures, anecdotes, sketches of adventure, original songs and poetical effusions; wise and witty, serious, satirical, and sentimental sayings of the sawdust arena of other days. These "Memoirs" also contain a series of adventures and incidents alternating from grave to gay; descriptive scenes and thrilling events; the record of half a century of a remarkable life, in the course of which the subject was brought into contact with most of the national celebrities of the day. The book abounds in anecdotes, humorous and otherwise; and it affords a clearer view of the inside mysteries of show life than any account heretofore published. Old Dan Rice, as the proprietor of the famous "One Horse Show," was more of a national character than Artemus Ward, and this volume contains the humor which made the nation laugh even while the great Civil War raged. This fascinating book of 500 pages, beautifully illustrated, will be sent postpaid to you for $1.50. Address Book Publishing House, 134 Leonard

Earth In a Quiver.

Prof. G. H. Darwin, son of the great Darwin, in a recent lecture in London confirmed the discovery of the German astronomer, Hecker, that there are tides in the earth's crust itself. similar to those of the ocean, but very much less, of course. In other words the earth's crust moves up and down one-third as much as if it was liquid throughout. In the latitude of London, the speaker said, the vertical rise and fall was from 4 to 5 inches daily For six years, Prof. Hecker worked. day and night, inside of a chamber cut inside of a well, 80 feet deep, and discovered this regular undulation of the earth's crust and at the same time he learned that the earth itself was about as stiff as steel throughout. It does not seem that the patient professor has evolved any theory from this interesting fact, or to illustrate with / it, any phase of the cosmical evolution. That will probably come is not enough found in any leading brand to have any effect. To the other ingredients separately no serious objection is made in view of the very small percentage in which they exist. We must believe, however, that in combination they all help to produce certain chemical results, which more or less affect the flavor of butter. of the building. The accompanying plan, says the Journal of Agriculture, will give the reader a better understanding of the interior arrangement.

Plowing Under Green Crops,

My experience in trying to improve land by plowing under green forage crops leads me to believe that unless we make a wise selection of crops to be turned under our work is often done at a loss. To be of value the crop that is plowed under must be one that obtains a large percentage of its plant food from the atmosphere, either directly or indirectly, or else one that has a deep rooting system and brings up much of its plant food from below the depths reached by the plow. Any plant that obtains all of its food from the top soil adds nothing to the fertility of the land when plowed under, except that it may in some land make the soil more productive by improving its texture or mechanical condition. Red clover we have found especfally adapted for this purpose. It and other members of the legume family are, in my opinion, the only plants we can afford to use in the work of improving our soils.

The clover and legumes alone can not maintain soil fertility, but when they are rotated with other farm crops, and where these crops are fed to live stock and the manure saved and returned to the field, they make it possible to increase the fertility of the soil every year .--- Epitomist,

Caring For the Ram.

The management that should be given rams, young or old, before and after service will depend largely on the size of the flock. If a strong, well-grown ram lamb runs with a flock of eight or ten sheep which have an ample provision of variable pasture the two may run together during the season of service and it will not be necessary to feed grain. The same will be true of a vigorous shearing ram running with a flock of, say, twelve to twenty ewes. But should the number of the ewes be increased beyond the limit named,

Be Gentle to the Cow.

Mrs Durand of Lake For

Mrs. Howie is assisting Professor Hoverstad, of the North Dakota Agricultural College, in his institute work in the State. She is instructing the farmers in the temperament of the cow, and she asserts that the gentle creature is lacteally responsive to considerate treatment.

At. Mrs. Howle's dairy farm, seven miles from Milwaukee, each cow is groomed every day. The bovine is brushed, washed and her hoofs and horns polished. "Some people might laugh at this," says Mrs. Howie, "but it has brought results."

The gentling improves the cow's self-respect, and self-respect in cows is profitable to the owner-that is

Mrs. Howie's proposition. The cow like the prima donna, is possessed of a temperament, which must be consulted if maximum results are desired. The cow has a psychology, but, like the psychologies of every other living thing, it yields to treatment. Mrs. Howie's prescription is simple: "Good, common-sense principles, soap, fresh water and kindness.

What kindness will do for horses is notorious. Why not for cows?

This agricultural business every year becomes more interesting. It is getting fashionable, moreover, The day of the "rube" is about over. The farmer is becoming every day more the scientist. All he can know of chemistry, of botany, of zoology, he can pretty well apply. And now, lo and behold! he is lectured to by soclety women, like Mrs. Durand and Mrs. Howle, who, having become bored to death with stupid society, have turned to cow culture in order to be interested .--- Minneapolis Jour-

Poor Lo, the Indian.

The bureau of Indian affairs is endeavoring to save the Indian. The menace which it is fighting is tuberculosis. Unless this is successfully fought, the race will follow the buffalo into utter extinction. While the In-dian roamed free in his hunting grounds, living in the open air, and taking the storms as they came, he was safe from the white plague, but when he was subjected to the pains and penalties of civilization, he be-gan to suffer, his people to decrease. The bureau contemplates a scheme of education, in the way of sanitation, personal cleanliness, and preventive measures, and by this way it is hoped to cut down the frightful death roll that has been increasing year by year. It is said the Indians are dying off this now of this malady at the rate of a thousand a year, and this number is increasing, so that in a few years Poor Lo will be no more. The bureau takes its stand on the humanity side of the proposition, but still, there is something romantic in the idea of letting the Indian live on.
