Seventeen Years Old.

Seventeen years ago THE STAR was launched on the sea of journalism by the present editor and publisher and with this issue the paper enters its eighteenth year. During the past years we have labored to make THE STAR an interesting local paper, giving all the news of the community every week, and we expect to continue giving all the news of interest each week. Of course we have failed to please all our subscribers all the time. People have gotten mad because we published matters that they were interested in, and other people have gotten mad and threatened to boycott THE STAR, because we did not publish some "sweet morsel of gossip" that hit other people. Therefore, it is utterly impossible to publish a newspaper to please all the citizens of a community, and it will be our policy to continue to use our own judgment in publishing news in THE STAR. We have always endeavored to be fair and impartial with all the people of the community, whether subscribers for THE STAR, borrowers of their neighbor's paper, or not readers of THE STAR. Rich or poor, high or low, have always received fair treatment in the news reports of this paper. Occasionally, not often, however, we miss local news—people go visiting or have visitors, a party, &c.—but the items are omitted because the editor has not been informed, and not omitted intentionally. The safest way is for each person that has a news item to see that the newsgatherer gets the information. In these days of penny postage in home town, rural routes and telephones it should not be much trouble for people who have news items to get the news to THE STAR office.

Erroneous Impression.

"No mail order business will be tolerated," is the edict sent out by the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, to the manufacturers and wholesalers of the Smoky City, who are to be on the big special train while on a visit to Reynoldsville on the morning of May 28. While this injunction is not necessary, it is issued to dispel an erroneous impression existing in some sections. It is desired to see the local merchants only in the various places that are to be visited. Reports from Pittsburgh indicate that it will be the most successful trip of the kind ever taken by that body. Every day applications are being received for space on the train, and the representation promises to be more diversified than ever. Special efforts are being made to arrange the details of the schedule so that the train will arrive and depart on schedule time, so as to prevent delays, loss of time and disappointments. To accomplish this the railroads will have special transportation officials on the train at all times.

While the stop here will be comparatively brief, it promises to bring about mutual benefits. The possibility of some of the local merchants going to Punksutawney the night previous, to join in the reception to be given at that place, where the visitors will remain all night, will give more time to get better acquainted and add to the enjoyment of the visit.

A Subtle Charm.

The advertising columns of a newspaper have a subtle and indefinable charm. This is especially so when the ads are prepared with care and with the intent to interest. One picks up a newspaper and even before reading the news department have their attention attracted to some ad, and without realizing that they are doing so, turn the paper over to read the store news. This is especially the case with the ladies. Some of them actually pay more attention to ads and are more interested in the advertisements than any other part of the paper. And the shrewd merchant, knowing this, always has his store story in the columns of newspapers. He finds that it brings him big returns.—Kittanning Daily Leader.

Deserved Tribute.

The Brooklyn Daily Eagle, published in New York City, in its Sunday edition of May 2, 1909, contained a large picture of James W. Stevenson and a page write-up of his work in the great metropolis as bridge commissioner. As Mr. Stevenson is one of our home boys, son of Henry Stevenson, of Sandy Valley, and personally we are very much interested in his success, it is a pleasure for us to reprint any favorable comment made of him by the New York City papers. In its issue of May 2nd, editorially, the Eagle said:

"The men who assembled at the Waldorf the other night to honor Bridge Commissioner James W. Stevenson expressed the general sentiment of this community towards that most excellent official. No compliment paid to the guest was undeserved. No estimate of his services overstated the intelligence, industry and energy displayed by him in the service of the city. Mr. Stevenson's experience in journalism revealed him as a good newspaper man and prepared him to become a good public servant. No responsibility thrust upon him has ever been evaded. No duty has been inadequately discharged. Under his administration the carrying capacity of the Brooklyn Bridge has been increased, the equipment of the Williamsburg Bridge has been enlarged, the Queensboro Bridge pushed to completion and a record made in the building of the Manhattan Bridge of which the history of suspension bridge construction affords no parallel. These are achievements which easily make Mr. Stevenson's administration as Commissioner of Bridges the most remarkable of any since consolidation. The Eagle presents its compliments and congratulations to the Commissioner, and hopes for him as long a term of office as he may be inclined to accept."

Bad Sidewalks.

By referring to the minutes of the town council, published elsewhere in this issue of THE STAR, it will be seen that the council has instructed the street committee to see that dilapidated sidewalks are repaired, and when necessary rebuilt. Last year a number of substantial sidewalks, either cement, brick or stone, were built in Reynoldsville. We understand that the street committee, on a tour of inspection, found about forty sidewalks in town that need repairing or new sidewalks, and any person taking a stroll over the back streets might doubt whether the committee had found all the defective walks if only forty were reported. If the ordinance is enforced a number of new sidewalks will be built this year, and as the new walks must be cement, brick or stone, they will all be substantial walks. In a few years, wooden sidewalks will be a thing of the past in Reynoldsville.

Don't Knock.

Town people sometimes fall into the habit of running down their own place in conversation. This is almost as bad as saying you wish you had married another woman instead of your wife. If you said that and your wife heard of it, probably you would have a chance to get another woman. But you'll never have much of a chance to get another town until you improve the one you're in so that you'll love it for its own sake. Be kind to your home place and it will be kind to you.—Brookville Republican.

By virtue of a recent act of assembly of this state, a married woman whose husband dies, leaving no will and without issue—that is children or their descendants—inherits his entire estate, real and personal, without any restriction to the value of $5,000. Heretofore the widow was only entitled to a dower interest, that is, a third ownership in real estate and $300 in personal property, and in case there are no direct heirs the residue of the estate went to collateral heirs.

"Think of people's faults and you will find all people faulty. Think of their virtues and your world will be peopled with good men and good friends."

Melancholy Days Here.

The melancholy days have come—the saddest of the year; the carpet's on the clothesline and incessant whacks we hear. The bedding in the kitchen and the beds are in the hall, the pictures are upon the floor while some one dusts the wall. The melancholy days are here—the days of soap and brush. Stove polish daubs the silverware (there's pie on Shakespeare's bust), piano holds some frying pans—the bath-tub's lined with books—the women folks, oh! who could tell who they were by their looks? Sing hey! The glad house-cleaning time of dust and soap! It is a gladsome sight to see—through a big telescope.—Exchange.

The Heart Can't Stand Rheumatic Acid Poisoning

The Uric-O Treatment Expels the Poison from the Blood.

Those sharp, shooting pains through the chest around the region of the heart mean that poisonous uric and rheumatic acids are there ready to spring and grip tightly the muscles controlling the heart's action. Don't neglect these warnings. You must neutralize and drive these dangerous poisons from the system, or sooner or later they will overcome you.

The only true way to cure rheumatism is to get at it from the inside with Uric-O. It acts with marvelous swiftness upon the muscles, kidneys and the blood. Cleans out the sand-like deposits in the muscles, forces the kidneys to perform those duties for which they were designed and neutralizes the acid within the blood.

Uric-O is a liquid taken internally 3 times daily, and does not contain any morphine, opium or other so-called "pain deadeners." Sciatics, muscular, inflammatory and articular rheumatism all yield readily to Uric-O.

Uric-O is sold and recommended by Stoke & Feicht and by druggists everywhere at 75c and $1.00 the bottle. They will furnish samples and literature upon request or same can be obtained by writing to the Smith Drug Co., 110 Smith Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y.
