boards about two and one-half feet long and taper down on one end about four inches. Then get two two by four two inches longer than your wagon box is wide. Use eight-penny nails in nailing the floor to the two by fours and six or eight-inch boards

The Way It Opens.

for the floor of scoop board. Nail together and bore a five-eighths-inch hole through the outside floor board about eight inches from the end for the rods. Use three-eighths or one-half-inch rods with one joint about four inches from the upper side boards at the ends and nail two cleats on the upper and lower side of the five-eighths-inch holes so it won't split out when scooping from the board. Bolt a two by three piece to the end piece of the wagon box, using bolts three-eighths by six and one-half inches long. Bore two holes in a piece of side board iron or thin iron about one inch wide and eight inches long for screws, bending it as shown in small end, to fasten the rods and hold them in place to keep the board closed.

New Tomatoes For Forcing.
In the propagating houses of the Department of Agriculture, the Bureau of Plant Industry has been making experiments with a view to procuring an ideal tomato, which in the language of an official of that bureau is a fruit without a depression at the stem end; a round fruit with ridges; a fruit with the interior well formed and compact and a fruit of medium size growing in large clusters. The forcing of tomatoes under glass has assumed considerable proportions in the Middle and Northern States, and the demand for the greenhouse grown crop is steadily increasing. This is due, it is stated, to the fact that tomatoes when grown under glass are superior to those that are grown in the extreme Southern States and which must necessarily be picked partially green and shipped long distances before reaching our markets. For special table use, such as is demanded by large hotels, the greenhouse-grown fruit will always be in demand.

While a number of the varieties of fruit on the market to-day is good, none has all the characteristics which would render it ideal. The Bureau of Plant Industry has for the last three or four years been crossing varieties with a view to securing types with characteristics approximating the ideal. Out of a large number of forms a few kinds have been secured which give good promise of finally producing a form which will fill the present void.

Good Fruit Finds Good Market.
Although New England is the home of the commercial apple, and the leading variety, the Baldwin, has been grown here for many centuries, yet our farmers have allowed fruit interests of other sections to surpass them in applications of the best methods of culture, harvesting and marketing. It is pointed out by our leaders in horticulture that immense profits are being lost through lack of cultivation and general care from planting the trees to marketing the fruit.

First rate apples are never without a good market. It pays to raise apples that are too good to be barreled but good enough to be wrapped in paper and carefully packed in new boxes. Such fruit needs only to be shipped a few miles and is able to compete with the Pacific Coast fruit that comes 3000 miles. All that is needed is good soil, fertilizing and culture with careful handling and marketing. Our farmers have the market for retail apples all to themselves, yet produce hardly any fruit that can be ranked as first class in the early part of the season. There is no reason why farmers should not raise fruit that will sell for as much by the box as most apples now bring by the barrel. Apples at $1 per box in average seasons would be profitable, while $1 per barrel hardly pays expenses. In some years our farmers would be favored by good crops at a time when there was a shortage in other sections, and the average price of the fruit from year to year would be at a high level. Both the yield per acre and the price per bushel might be doubled by careful methods.—M. D. P., in the American Cultivator.

Planting Rules.
Thoroughly compact the soil about the seeds and so hasten germination. Remember that rows which run north and south allow the sun's rays to reach both sides of the plant—a distinct advantage.

Plant seeds of string beans every fortnight, so that there will always be a supply of tender pods. Forget that potatoes were ever planted in hills; level culture is much better. Plant the tubers in deep furrows.

When planting large, flat seeds, set them in the ground edgewise. Germination is more certain. Make sowings once a week of such quick-growing vegetables as lettuce and radishes, to insure a continuous succession.

Sow radish seeds in the same row with slow-germinating seeds. They will come up in a few days and mark the rows for cultivation.

To get the earliest cucumbers, melons and summer squashes, sow the seeds early on inverted sods or in small pots in the house or coldframe. Do not follow your grandfather's custom of planting beets, lettuce, onions and such vegetable in raised beds. They dry out too quickly, as well as being difficult to cultivate.

Do not expect peas to mature well in the hottest weather. You will be disappointed. But sow the seeds of an early variety in August and you will get a good crop in the fall. Spray with a potassium sulphide solution to keep down mildew.

Rotate the crops in the garden. Land that grew any of the cabbage tribe last year should be planted to beans or some other class of plants this year. Many troubles like club-foot will thus be avoided. As a rule, follow root crops with those which grow above ground.—Suburban Life.

Farm Notes.
For hogs rape has proven to be a great feed.

Broilers shrink about half a pound each when dressed.

Rape is an excellent forage for both beef and dairy cattle.

Prune and spray if you want good fruit. Now is the time.

The shell of an egg contains about fifty grains of salt of lime.

Forty dressed ducklings are packed in a barrel for shipment.

From thirty-five to forty ducks and drakes are allowed in a pen.

The duck averages ten dozen eggs in about seven months' laying.

Sheep also like rape and thrive when allowed a liberal supply.

An apple grower in Ohio credits his extra large and fine crops of apples to faithful and persistent spraying.

When cultivating the plum or cherry orchard, the work must be done shallow that no roots will be broken, for broken roots send up shoots that sap the life of the tree.

RAISED FROM SICK BED.

After All Hope Had Vanished.
Mrs. J. H. Bennett, 59 Fountain St., Gardiner, Me., says: "My back used to trouble me so severely that at last I had to give up. I took to my bed and stayed there four months, suffering intense pain, dizziness, headache and inflammation of the bladder. Through without hope, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and in three months was completely cured. The trouble has never returned."

Awful, Crusted, Weeping Eczema on Little Sufferer—A Score of Treatments Prove Dismal Failures—Cure Achieved by Cuticura.

"My little boy had an awful rash all over his body and the doctor said it was eczema. It was terrible and used to water awfully. Any place the water went it would form another sore and it would become crusted. A score of more physicians failed utterly and diamally in their efforts to remove the trouble. Then I was told to use the Cuticura Remedies. I got a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, and before we had used half the Resolvent I could see a change in him. Pretty Women Criminals.
It is difficult to obtain a verdict of guilty against any woman charged with capital crime, triply difficult if she happens to be young and of attractive personality. Preachers of woman's rights have held that women should be tried by female juries. No jury of women could possibly be more lenient to a woman than is the usual male jury in this country. It is, even, not impossible that women hearing a case against a woman would be less swayed by sentimentality than are the masculine juries that almost invariably fall victims to a pretty face and a woman's tears.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CAPTURE OF VERA CRUZ

Anniversary of an American Triumph in the War With Mexico.

During the war between Mexico and this country, Gen. Winfield Scott, with an army of about 12,000 Americans, landed in the vicinity of Vera Cruz, on March 9, 1847, and immediately invested the city, which, with the castle of San Juan de Ulloa, contained a garrison of about 4,500.

Scott demanded the surrender of the city and fortress, which was refused, and then tried to induce the authorities to send the women and children out of the city, but this also was refused. On March 22, assisted by a fleet under Commodore Conner, Scott began a bombardment which continued with but little intermission for four days, the shells doing great damage and causing much loss of life. On March 26 the Mexican commander made overtures for surrender, and on the 29th that event took place. The Mexicans marched out to a plain about a mile from the city, and there laid down their arms, gave up their flag, and retired to the interior on parole. The city and fortress, with 500 pieces of artillery and a large quantity of munitions of war, passed into the possession of the Americans. During the siege the Americans lost but 11 killed and 56 wounded, while the Mexicans lost fully 1,000 in killed and a large number of wounded.
