Glass Machine Running Again.

Tuesday evening of last week the Colburn machine at the Star Glass Co. plant in Reynoldsville, was started on what it is hoped will be permanent operation. According to statements of officials in close touch with affairs, the machine is giving excellent satisfaction and the product is up to the best standard. Numerous repairs and improvements suggested by the experience gained during the first run, have been made and it is believed that most of the difficulties incident to the building of such a complicated machine, have been overcome,

Will Revisit Italy.

Carmine Marinaro, the banker of Soldier, will leave next Monday for a trip across the ocean to Italy and Spain. He has in view the double object of recuperating his health, which has been impaired by too zealous attention to business affairs during the past few years, and of investigating certain trade conditions in both countries in which he is interested. For several years Mr. Marinaro has had in mind a project for the establishment of a large importing business but his many local interests have hitherto prevented giving the idea serious attention. Now that he has disposed of most of his manufacturing and mining avoided by the council railroading the interests, he has the leisure to investi

Met With Senous Accident.

Arthur Carney, a young man of Sykesville who had been working on the Pennsylvania railroad at Blairsville, met with an accident last week which nearly cost him both his hands. How the accident occurred has not been ascertained but it is stated that the right hand was amputated at the wrist and only one finger of the left hand saved. He was taken to the Allegheny General hospital at Allegheny for treatment and is getting along very well.

Carney was a base ball pitcher of more than ordinary ability and frequently played with Reynoldsville teams in recent years.

Sold Water System Source.

The people of Falls Creek have found t impossible to control a town council of their own election. Despite the indignant protests of the public, voiced at a mass meeting, and of an emphatic veto by Burgess Kyle, the members of the council have passed over the mayor's' head an ordinance authorizing the sale of the source of borough water system to the the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railroad Company for a consideration of $12,000.
