A Strong Prescription.

Menelik, emperor of Abyssinia, often dabbled in medicine. Some years ago Mme, Stevenin, the wife of a prominent member of the French colony at Addis Abeba, was laid up with fever. Menelik inquired what treatment she was undergoing and expressed disapproval when he learned that she was being dosed with quinine. The following day a messenger called with a large pot of very rancid butter, accompanied by a letter from one of the emperor's secretaries stating that his reval master hoped that madame would take three glasses daily of the butter sent, which had been stored for two years and would be found an infallible remedy. The present was gratefully acknowledged and promptly buried, and when madame recovered Menelik took to himself the credit of her cure.

Effects of Drugs. Persons employed in India rubber factories sometimes inhale bisulphide of carbon and suffer from frightful dreams of being murdered or of falling over precipices. Opium stimulates imagination; alcohol in excess excites dread and suspicion; hasheesh, from which the word assassin was derived. produces homicidat mania. These drugs have a distinct effect upon the moral sense. Sometimes, as from alcohol, a coarse and stupid brutality is stimulated, or, as from morphia, a gloomy and morose temper, or, as from cocaine, while the manner remains gentle, the victim develops thicving and lying habits.

Blind Justice. We meet our philosophical friend and observe that he is smiling contentedly. "What has gone wrong now?" we

"Nothing has gone wrong," he explains, "Something went right, Spriggans owed Hennett $10,000 and put his property in his wife's name so that Hennett couldn't collect."

"But that isn't anything unusual." "And last night Mrs. Spriggans eloped with Hennett!"-Life.

Some people are born foolish, some acquire foolishness and others thrust their foolishness upon us .- Philadelphia Ledger. Quaint Hymns.

For unreality of sentiment in hymns we must go back to the eighteenth century. Here is an instance:

Ah, lovely appearance of death: What sight upon earth is so fair? Not all the gay pageants that breathe Can with a dead body compare.

It seems strange that death should have been the occasion for a touch of unconscious numor in a hymn. In the collection entitled "Hymns, Ancient and Modern," there was and possibly still is the following verse:

They do not hear when the great bell is ringing overhead. They cannot rise and come to church With us—for they are dead.

The list of things which "they" are unable to do might be indefinitely extended.-London Chronicle.

Microbes in the Scalp

The Latest Explanation i that Microbes Cause Baldness

Professor Unna of Hamburg. Germany, and Lr. Sabourand, c. Paris, France, sharp the hongr of having discovered the hair microbe. Baldness is not caused through a few weeks' work of these hair colerobes, but is the result of conditions brought about by their presence. Baldness may not occur until years after the microbes began work, but it is certain to come sooner or later.

The microbes cut off the blood supply. They feed on the fatty matter about the roots of the hair. through which the blood is absorbed. Finally the fatty matter is consumed, the food supply of the hair is gone and it starves and nally dies. Resorein is one of the most effective germ destroyers ever discovered. Beta Naphthol is a most powerful, yet absolutely safe gerpricide and antiseptie, which prevents development of germ matter, and creates a clean, healthy condition. ne, although not a coloran matter or dye, is an ingredient well established for its power to restore natural color to human hair when loss of color has been caused iv a dinemse.

Borax, because of its well-defined softening and cleansing properties, is most useful in the treatment of scalp and hair diseases. Glycering acts as a stimulant to the hair bulbs, and has a soothing, healing and nourishing influence. Alcohol is indispensable in medicine because of its antiseptic, stimulating and preservative qualities.

We want every one who has scalp or hair trouble to try Rexall '93" Hair Tonic, which contains all these ingredients. If it does not give you complete satisfaction in every particular, we will return every penny you paid us for it. for the mere asking and without question or rormality

Of course you understand that when we say that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will grow hair we do not refer to cases where the roots are entirely dead, the pores of the scalp closed, and the head has the shiny appearance of a billiard ball. In cases like this there is no hope. In all other cases of baldness Rexall "93" Hair Tonie will grow hair, or cost the user nothing. Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. A SAVAGE WITCH.

His Life Was Saved by the Chief of the Quigh Tribe.

The author of "Heroes of Modern Crusades," the Rev Edward Gillian. M A. at one time moster of Harrow school, says in his book that he had years ugo the privilege of meeting the king of the Quiab country, Testi Agamusiong, at Harrow. The Quiah king had been educated at St. Augustine's rollege. Canterbury, and was able to lecture to the Harrovians in good English In his lecture he told a quaint story which brings one nearer to the weird lives of the Quiabs, a small agricultural and trading tribe of Inoffensive characters on the west court "in my country," said the king, "we have no prisons; therefore if a cutprit is brought to me I must chop off something an ear or two, a hand or a foot-and he goes home a sadder and a wiser man. Just before I left for England a chief came to my but. bringing a prisoner.

What has he done, friend?

"'He is a dangerous witch, O king He can turn himself into an alligator. "'Pach! Nonsense! I don't believe that old fashioned stuff."

"'Oh, but we saw him do it down by the big river." "Indeed! Well, chief, tell me all about it. You saw him yourself?" "I did We were hunting by the banks of the river with our rifles when all at once we saw a big alligator lying on a rock in the river. The witch man was lying asleep in a hammock some fifty varids away. Oh, the dangerous creature he is! "Well, king, do not laugh with your eyes like that, for I am speaking the truth I put up my rifle to shoot the afficator; but, to our great fear, as soon as I fired this fellow rolled out of his hammock and fell on the ground and rubbed his back and swore be was hurt

"Now, O king, if this witch had not been juside the alligator how could be have been burt when I fired? "Gentlemen," concluded the king, "I see you are laughing with your eyes. but it is very difficult to rule over a people untaught and given over to

"What did I do? Why. If I had left him free they would have killed him as soon as I had gone on my ship, so I saved his life by chopping off his

MODERN CHESS.

The Game Vastly Different From That of the Ninth Century.

Chess is but a game, a pastime, relaxation, but it has at times absorbed the faculties of the intellectual in every clime. Perhaps the greatest eulogy on the game was the remark of Sir Walter Raleigh, "I do not wish to live longer than I can play chess." It is certain that those who do not play the game are quite unable to form any conception of the high intellectual delights experienced by the chess enthusiast. The origin of chess has been sought in valu. The fact is the game has so changed, developed and improved down the course of centuries that in its present form it would not be recognized by its inventor, if there ever was one. The oldest chess problem on record is thought to be that contained in an ancient Persian manuscript attributed to Caliph Kalifen Mutasin Billah, who reigned in Bagdad A. D. 833 to 842. But the reader would have to learn the old rules before it was intelligible. For example, the queen at a time and that on a diagonal, but a queen promoted from a pawn was allowed to make a move of two squares diagonally. The bishop had no power over any square except the third from which it stood on its own diagonal line, but it was allowed to vault over any piece that happened to be between. In short, it was a totally different game. Chess in the precise form in which we know it and play it today is a comparatively modern game -London Strand Magazine.

Amending a Proverb.

There are a lot of silly proverbs knocking about. Take, for instance. "If pigs had wings they would fly." Now, this is absurd if you like. Do you know what sized wings a pig weighing eighty pounds would require in order to fly? They would measure about thirty yards from tip to tip. A nice state of things to keep pigs in an aviary with wings of that size! The proverb would run much better:

If pigs could fly Pork would be high. -London Scraps.

The Right Way. Little Willie liked ice cream, but he objected to turning the freezer. One day his mother was agreeably sur prised to find him working at the crank as if his life depended on it. "How did you get Willie to turn the ice cream freezer?" she said to her husband. "I offered bim 2 cents to de it, and he wouldn't."

"You didn't go about it the right way, my dear," replied her husband "I bet him a cent be couldn't turn it for half an bour!"

"I dunno, but I guess some of th musical comedy jokes must reach back pretty nearly that far."-Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Do You Really Love Dogs? Perhaps the final test of anybody's love of dogs is willingness to permit them to make a camping ground of the bed. There is no other place in the world that suits the dog quite so well. On the bed he is safe from being stepped upon, he is out of the way of drafts, he has a commanding position from which to survey what goes on in the world, and, above all, the surface is soft and yielding to his outstretched limbs. No mere man can ever be a comfortable as a dog looks. Some per tons object to having a dog on the bed at night, and it must be admitted that he lies a little heavily upon one limbs, but why be so base as to prece comfort to companionship? To up in the dark night and put your hand on that warm, soft body, to feel the beating of that faithful heart-is not this better than undisturbed sloth? The best night's rest I ever had was ones when a cocker spaniel puppy, who had just recovered from stomach ache place one to two soda mints) and was a little frightened by the strange experience curled up on my shoulder like a futippet, gently pushed his cold, soft nose into my neck and there slept sweetly and soundly until morning.-H. C. Merwin in Atlantic.

Absentminded Dyer.

Charles Lamb had a friend named George Dyer who was perhaps the most absentminded man on record. It was Dyer who, leaving Lamb's 1slington home at broad noonday, walked straight into the New river He was known to take up a coal scuttle instead of his but to walk home with a footman's cockaded hat on and even to leave one of his shoes under the table and get well on his home ward way before discovering his loss. He called at a friend's one morning heard that the family was away in the country, left his name in the visitors' book, and a few hours later called again, asked for the book again and was astonished to see his own freshly written name, Once, when Proctor breakfasted with him, Dyer forgot the ten. The omission being noted, he filled the teapot with ginger. Proctor left as soon as he could to get a better breakfast at a coffee tavern, and there Dyer strolled in and asked him how he did, quite unconscious of having seen him earlier.

A remarkable specimen of a lawyer's invalid will was that of Sir Joseph Jeckyll, master of the rolls, who died in 1738 and bequeathed his fortune after his wife's death to pay off the national debt. "Sir Joseph was a good man and a good lawyer," was Lord Mansfield's comment, "but his bequest was a very foolish one. He might as well have attempted to stop the middle arch of London bridge with his full bottomed wig." The testator's patriotic intentions were therefore treated as proof of mental weakness, and his will was promptly set aside. Among the many blundering wills that lawyers have made for their clients, if not for themselves, the strangest on record was that of a Dublin gentleman who left all his money to the elder son of his brother and, if he had no elder son, to the second.-London Chronicle.

Drops of rain vary in their size perhaps from a twenty-fifth to a quarter of an inch in diameter. In parting from the clouds they precipitate their descent till the increasing resistance opposed by the air becomes equal to their weight, when they continue to fall with uniform velocity. This velocity is therefore in a certain ratio to the diameter of the drops; hence could, with moderate repairing, be thunder and other showers in which the drops are large pour down faster than a drizzling rain. A drop of the twenty-fifth part of an inch in falling through the air would, when it had arrived at its uniform velocity, acquire a celerity of only eleven and a half feet per second, while one of a quarter of an inch would have a velocity of thirty-three and a half feet.

'A Peacemaker.

It is a commonly accepted belief that nothing short of being pried loose will induce a bulldog to give up his grip on another dog or on an intruder, but this is a mistake. A little household ammonia poured on him as near his nose as circumstances will allow will make him let go immediately. The fumes of ammonia are so overpowering that a dog cannot possibly maintain his grip and his breath at the same time.-Country Life In America,

THE WRECK MASTER.

He Doos Some Tall Hustling When the Line Is Blocked.

When a wreck blocks the line the wreck master is the biggest man on the raffroad. Even the president, if by unhappy chance he happens to be there, steps aside and keeps silent after the wreck train halts with a jerk of grinding brakes and hissing air be fore the indescribable confusion of shattered wood and twined steel which clutter the tracks. The wreck master's feet are on the ground before the shricking wheels have ceased turning. There follow at his heels a half score of men, all experts, but of less degree than their leader.

He shouts an order that seems as unintelligible as a drillmaster's com-mand, then another and another. There is instant action. At one end of the train a locomotive begins to creep cautiously away with the conches that have stayed on the rails. An express car up toward the forward end of the passenger train is tilted tremblingly on its trucks. It is loaded with bales of silk perhaps or with other costly merchandise. The wreckers do not stop to inquire. To them it is simply an obstruction that has to be removed immediately. There is a heaving chorus, and it plunges down the embankment. A hundred yards away a loaded freight car in the opposite train is hanging over the edge. Fifty crowbars give it a tip that sends it down to the foot of the hill. As it lands there is a crash of discordant, tortured strings, an inharmonious outburst as though half a hundred cats had landed simultaneously on half a hundred keyboards. "Pianos," remarks one of the panting workmen to another standing at his shoulder. They do not pause even to grin. An instant later they are heaving away at something else.-Thaddeus S. Dayton in Harper's Weekly.

CHINA'S GREAT WALL.

It Would Be a Mighty Task to Duplicate It Today.

What man has done, we are told, man can do. But to erect today a great fortification comparable to the Great wall of China would be a heavy tax on both the resources and the resolution of Europe. A score or two of warships are all very well, but the cost of labor and the will involved in building fleets can hardly be compared to those devoted to the building of that great barrier about two centuries before the coming of Christ, when Rome was struggling with Hannibal.

Two thousand five bundred and fifty miles, including spurs, arms and loops is the length ascribed to it by Dr. W E. Gell, the only white man, we believe, who has traveled the whole length of it. It has been said that the Great wall is the only object of man's handlwork which could be discerned from the moon, and one calculation has it that if the material of the wall were disposed about the globe at the equator there would be a wall girdle eight feet bigh and three feet thick around the earth. One can believe that to this day the name of the Emperor Chin is cursed all along the wall by the posterity of the wretches who were forced to the gigantic task of building it. In the days of its greatest importance, when it was still holding back the Tartar hordes, it is believed to have had on its line 25,000 towers, each capable of holding 100 men, and 15,000 watchtowers. Even today there remains 20, 000 towers and 10,000 watchtowers with some 2,000 miles of wall that made into a formidable military work -London News.

Giants and Dwarfs.

In the seventeenth century all the abnormally large and small folks of Austria were assembled in Vienna in response to a whim of the empress As circumstances required that all should be housed in one building, there was a fear that the imposing propertions of the glants would terrify the dwarfs. But the dwarfs teased and tormented the giants so that these overgrown mortals complained with tears in their eyes, and as a conse quence sentinels had to be placed to protect the giants from their pygmy persecutors, for the smallest men had the biggest brains and the longest tongues.
