Neale, who was terribly injured on a railroad crossing at Kane on February 19th, by having his left leg crushed so badly that it was necessary to amputate the leg close to the hip joint, died in the Kane hospital at 5:30 Tuesday afternoon of last week. Walter, who was nine years old, had put up a brave fight for his life, and was apparently gaining slowly, but death finally won out.

Mrs. Neale went to Kane Wednesday to attend the funeral, which took place Friday afternoon.

Like Tinkling of Bells.

The New York Herald in commenting on Senator Robert L. Taylor's lecture in New York City on "Dixie," says: "He has, too, the happy knack of dialect, and his stories of the negro quarters were in consequence artistic gems. The wonderful versatility of the man can hardly be overestimated. From the broadest humor he jumped in a flash to the highest eloquence. He talked in dialect and blank verse, recited statistics, and then sang plantation songs. Between songs the former Governor would start off on a picturesque description of the charms of the south. It was like the tinkling of bells, the rippling of running water, and the audience seemed to regret the ending when he bowed and retired." At Assembly hall on Tuesday evening of next week, March 15th.

ASTHMA CAUSED DEATH.

Mrs. M. J. Sprague Died at Her Home on Grant Street Sunday Morning.

Mrs. Matilda Jane Sprague, who had resided in Reynoldsville almost a half century, died at her home on Grant street at 8:00 a. m. Sunday, March 6, 1910, after one week's illness with grip. Mrs. Sprague had not been in good health for a year and had been troubled with asthma for several years, but was able to be around until a week before she died when she had an attack of the grip which aggravated the asthma and caused death.

Mrs. Matilda Jane Pentz was born at York, Pa., October 29, 1833, and was in her 77th year at time of death. Just before the civil war she was united in marriage to Hiram Sprague, who was killed in the battle at Fair Oaks, or Seven Pines, in May, 1863.

Deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. James Bailey, of Rathmel Junction, two brothers and one sister, Joseph R. Pentz, of Reynoldsville, George W. Pentz, of Altoona, Anna Elizabeth Pentz, of DuBois. Also survived by one grand daughter, Miss Belle Wood, who lived with her grandmother.

Mrs. Sprague had been a member of the Methodist church for a number of years.

MRS. MALINDA LATTIMER DEAD.

She Passed Away at Her Home on Hill Street Sunday—Funeral Yesterday.

Mrs. Malinda Lattimer, relict of Samuel Lattimer, who died twelve years ago, died at her home on Hill street at 11:45 Sunday, March 6, 1910. Her death resulted from a complication of diseases. Mrs. Lattimer had been ill four years and been confined to bed twenty weeks before she died. Although her suffering was intense at times, yet she was a patient sufferer. She was conscious up to the last moments and was ready and serenely waiting for the Death Angel to call her to the Celestial City.

Malinda Scott was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Scott. She was born in Brookville October 19, 1833, and was 76 years, 4 months and 15 days old at time of death. She was united in marriage to Samuel Lattimer December 30, 1856. Unto them one son and five daughters were born. The son died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Lattimer moved to Reynoldsville in August, 1884.

Mrs. Lattimer united with the United Presbyterian church early in life and ever after remained a member of that church. She was the last surviving member of a family of eleven children.

Mrs. Lattimer is survived by five daughters, sixteen grandchildren and one great grandchild. The surviving daughters are: Mrs. John W. Peters, of DuBois, Mrs. David L. Postlethwait, of Reynoldsville, Mrs. A. F. King, of DuBois, Mrs. Edward Jennings and Mrs. J. V. Young, of this place.

Funeral service was held at her late home on Hill street at 3:00 p. m. yesterday, conducted by Rev. John F. Black, and interment was made in Reynoldsville cemetery.

The Original Reynoldsville Daily.

There are very few people in Reynoldsville now who remember that the town had a daily paper over thirty-two years ago. Through the courtesy of H. Alex Stoke we were shown Monday a copy of the "Reynolds Daily Herald," bearing date August 19, 1878, which was owned by W. O. Smith & Company in Reynoldsville. It is a breezy little four page sheet, made up of short pertinent paragraphs about home and foreign affairs which prove the editor a genius of more than ordinary calibre. The advertisements are quite as interesting as the news, and among others we notice the ads. of Davis McCracken, grocer, M. J. Sloppy, opera house grocer, VanLew's bakery, Penman's grocery, and Wellendorf's hardware. Jacob Schwem was then proprietor of what is now Frank's Tavern, and H. S. Belpap owned the present City hotel. In the church directory Rev. Father B. McGivney's name appears as pastor of the Catholic church, and Rev. S. M. Wilkinson, of the M. E. church. The following remarkable description of Beulah cemetery appears in the issue: "Reynoldsville is now provided with a home for the dead, situate on the summit east of the village, and so beautifully and elegantly located that it seems to have been designed by Nature herself for God's Acre. Its myriad flowers will receive the first kisses of Aurora, and its marble spires will stand sentinel over the valley below, as does Mount Olivet over the beautiful garden of Gethsemane. The spot has been christened Beulah cemetery, suggested by the sublime allegory of Bunyan where he terms Beulah the land of rest and quiet, lying on the hither side of the river of Death, where pilgrims tarry until their summons come to cross over and enter the Celestial City."

Struck a Rock.

Saturday evening the westbound P. R. R. train that is due here at 8:00 p. m. struck a rock in cut west of Summersville and knocked pilot off of engine, but no other damage was done. Monday night the eastbound train due here at 9:40 p. m. struck a land slide near Lawsonham, in which was a large boulder, and the engine was so badly damaged that another engine had to be secured to haul train to destination. The train was two hours late at Reynoldsville.

Tongue of Gold.

Bob Taylor is more than a genius in his way, and to-day stands alone as the great portrayer, upon the lecture platform, of the beauties of nature, and delineator of the humbler character. His is a heart of melody and a tongue of gold.—Chattanooga Times. Senator Taylor lectures in Assembly hall on Tuesday evening of next week, March 15.

On Thursday evening of this week, March 10th, Dr. J. Bell Neff, noted lecturer, will deliver a lecture in the M. E. church at this place under the auspices of the Sunday school. Proceeds to buy new books for the library. Lecture begins at eight o'clock. Admission 25 cents for adults; 15 cents for children under 12 years. Subject: "The Ships that Jack Built."
