New Adelphi Theatre Is One of the Finest In Pennsylvania

New Playhouse Is Practically Completed and Will Open April 7th.

M. M. Fisher's new Adelphi Theater at Reynoldsville is practically completed, the painters and decorators are now giving the last artistic touches, and on Thursday, April 7th, the house will be opened to the public with the production of "The Gentleman from Mississippi," one of the most noted plays of the season. The troupe is large and throughout the season has received a guarantee of $500 per night wherever it played.

In all respects the Adelphi Theatre is equal to any playhouse in the state outside of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. Those who have not visited it since completed can have but little conception of its interior beauty and the convenience of its plan. Over 800 persons may be comfortably seated in it and 1000 might be accommodated. The building is 60 x 90 feet, built of brick and is absolutely fireproof throughout. The main room has a height of twenty-seven feet and has a metal ceiling of unusual beauty. The scenery loft towers 65 feet into the air, and contains a complete assortment of scenery painted by James Brady, one of the most noted scenic artists in Pennsylvania. The stage has an opening width of 29 feet and is 26 feet high. It is separated from the main auditorium by one of the latest asbestos curtains, absolutely fireproof and quick in action.

Next to the beauty and convenience of the interior, probably the most notable feature is the extreme precautions taken to guard against fire in every form. All the walls, the partitions and dressing apartments are of brick, the electric wires are all in conduits, even when running in the brick walls. Two large lines of hose, a tank and fire extinguisher are on the stage and the heaters in the basement are surrounded by brick and concrete. The floor of the auditorium is concrete laid on a solid base of sand and gravel, making collapse impossible. The gallery in the rear is in crescent form and supported by strong iron posts. There are six exits from the main floor and stage of the theater and two more from the galleries, as well as easy exits from the dressing rooms under the stage. Mr. Fisher spared no expense in constructing the building, making the convenience, comfort and safety of his patrons paramount in his plans.

The fifty-foot entrance to the theater occupies the entire space formerly occupied by Rogers cigar store and contains the ticket office. Entering the main room the gaze meets a mingling of the deep rich red of the seats, the prevailing green tone of the walls and the finishing of yellow pine which is exceedingly luxurious in effect. The room is wide, allowing of every seat in the house being placed within a short distance of the stage, an effect which is sought in the costliest metropolitan playhouses. A sloping center aisle leads down to an orchestra pit, while seats branch out from it in circular rows. On each side of the stage are two private boxes, tastefully hung with draperies and beautifully modelled in form. The walls are a dark green in color and artistically stenciled. The ceiling is of a lighter tone and the whole effect is very pleasing.

The acoustics are excellent. A person speaking in an ordinary low tone upon the stage may be heard distinctly in the most distant seat.

Manager Fisher has arranged to have a regular orchestra furnish music, composed mainly of the old "High School" and "Cadenza" musicians so popular in previous years. A magnificent Strick & Zeller piano furnished by Frederick's, of Pittsburgh will be installed before the opening night. It is now on exhibition in Williams' Brothers parlors and is one of the deepest and purest toned in town.

In connection with the theatrical attractions, Manager Fisher will keep the theater open each night after the opening for moving picture exhibitions and vaudeville attractions at the customary low price of admission.

The seats were furnished by the American Seating Co., the same company which supplied the million dollar Pittsburgh base ball grand stand. The heaters are the standard "Wise" manufactured at Akron, Ohio.

The Adelphi Theater was built by M. M. Fisher and will be managed by his son, Melvin M. Fisher, both well and favorably known to the people of Reynoldsville. Mr. Fisher has given the local people a theater finer far than any citizen had ever dreamed of in past years. He further showed the confidence in his home town by commencing the erection of this house in the midst of the severest depression the town has ever experienced. He is deserving of the sincerest thanks from the people and of the utmost possible encouragement and support. For a theatre so fine as the Adelphi is more than a mere private enterprise. It is a positive influence in increasing the prestige of the town and in making it pleasanter for every resident, and the man who assumes the financial risk and burden of management is a benefactor of the community.

Tile Plant Operating.

The Thos. E. Evans tile and building block plant started their factory Wednesday morning. Everything seemed to run much better than was expected after the long winter idleness and they had a very fair day's run of building blocks. Mr. S. Zentz, of Magnolia, Ohio, has burned one kiln which gives proof of his ability as a burner. The kiln is much better than has ever been seen at the yard and is very encouraging to the company. There is no reason to doubt but that the plant will be greatly enlarged during the summer and by fall fifty or seventy-five men will find employment. Mr. Zentz thinks the clay is an excellent quality and might be suitable for the manufacture of conduits. In that event fifty kilns could not supply a ready demand.

RABID CANINES SPREAD TERROR

Three More Dogs Show Symptoms of Rabies; Two Persons Were Bitten.

After the mad dog scare last week many were skeptical of the reality of the canine's malady and it was not until Dr. H. B. King received the following letter that the alarm became general:

Harrisburg, Pa., March 16, 1910. Dr. H. B. King, Reynoldsville, Pa. Dear Sir: On March 14th we received at our laboratory the head of a dog from a suspected case of rabies. The brain contained in this head was submitted to an examination and changes such as are seen in rabies were observed. We beg to advise you that we are this day asking Dr. F. F. Hoffman, of Brookville to investigate this matter for the State Livestock Sanitary Board and place in quarantine all animals that were known to have been bitten or in any way exposed to infection with rabies in connection with this case. S. H. Gilliland, State Veterinarian.

The State Department of Health was notified immediately and it acted with promptness and decision. Dr. F. F. Hoffman arrived Friday morning and placed all dogs under quarantine for a period of one hundred days. Every dog known to have been bitten was killed, among them several very valuable blooded animals.

Austin Shannon, son of John Shannon, one of the victims of the mad dog, was hurried to the Pasteur Institute of Mercy Hospital in Pittsburgh Saturday and will undergo a three weeks' course of treatment. His father accompanied him, but returned Monday reporting the boy doing well.

Clarence Patterson was bitten in the calf of the right leg by a small dog belonging to H. T. Peters Monday morning. The dog showed no signs of being mad, but as a punishment for the act Mr. Peters had the canine despatched Monday afternoon.

Monday evening a dog belonging to Joseph McKernan in West Reynoldsville became rabid and in attempting to kill it, James McKernan was bitten in the right hand. The wound was promptly cauterized and whether the boy will be sent to the Pasteur Institute will depend on later developments. Both of Mr. McKernan's dogs were killed at once.

Among the dogs shot the past week was a valuable bull dog belonging to H. Alex Stoke. Another highly prized bird dog belonging to Francis McDonald was shot yesterday by George McDonald. Mr. McDonald had been offered thirty dollars for his dog less than a month ago and refused it.

The mad dog scare is becoming a serious matter and those having dogs under quarantine—and all others as well—should assist to the utmost in preventing further developments by closely confining dogs for at least three months. It requires from 10 to 100 days time for rabies to develop. It would be well if every dog in town even suspected of being bitten was shot at once. The life of a dog is of little consequence alongside the life of children who may later be attacked.

Business Men Getting Together.

A representative of the National Rating League is in Reynoldsville organizing the work in this locality. It is the business of the league to supply the business men with a guide to be used in extending credit to their customers. For instance if a party has failed to settle his account with any of his creditors, this fact will be made known in a rating report published at frequent intervals by the league. By referring to this book each merchant can find the names of those who refuse to pay their debts and can deny credit to such. Every merchant or business man who is a member of the league lists his dead accounts with the concern, which, after giving the creditor due notice to settle the account, and upon his failure to do so, lists the names in their book and they remain there until the account is settled. Thus debtors are rated all over the United States and wherever they go the book issued by the rating league will tell whether or not they are deserving of credit.

Successful Operation.

George C. Hunter, of the firm of Hunter & Milliron, was taken to Mercy Hospital in Pittsburgh last Friday afternoon and an operation was performed the following day which seems successful. Mr. Hunter was very close to death at one time. His wife accompanied him to Pittsburgh.

'Fiddling Bob's' Lecture

The Tennesseans Address Was a Masterpiece of Diction.

The lecture of Senator Robert L. Taylor in Assembly hall Saturday evening was a masterpiece of rhetoric and diction, an idyll of the southland that transported his hearers from the hubbub of modern commercial warfare to a misty mid-region of fancy and contentment. Taylor has no superior in platform eloquence, his well modulated tones penetrated to every part of the hall, and while there were few outbursts of enthusiasm, there was many a genial smile and laugh at his mellow and kindly humor. A red-blooded youth might wonder at his warbling note to young men to "keep out of politics," but "Fiddling Bob" has been in that game for thirty years or more, never missing a chance to run for office, and surely ought to know. Aside from a few brief passages, the lecture had little to do with practical life, seeming more like a chapter from another "Dream Life" in which the shades of southern characters floated before an audience lulled by the music of Taylor's gentle tones.

This is the last of the five numbers of the public school lecture course. As a whole the numbers were selected more with a desire to please the popular taste than the personal preferences of those who arranged the course. In this way it was singularly successful. But there are a few who cannot repress a wish that it had included a few men live and virile enough to stir up the people in Tillman-que style. We have an idea that the day of the stereotyped lecture, no matter how gracefully delivered and a rhetorically correct, is past.

A GENTLEMAN FROM MISSISSIPPI.

Story of the Interesting Comedy of 'Washington Life That Ran All Last Season in New York City and Will Be Played Here April 7th.

Singularly human is the story told by Harrison Rhodes and Thomas A. Wise in their new "national comedy," "A Gentleman from Mississippi," which will be acted Thursday evening, April 7th, in the Adelphi Theater, by the Messrs. William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer's special cast, headed by Robert A. Fischer and Hans Robert. It is a story that is duplicated year after year in the busy social and official circles of the national capital, and it illustrates anew the lesson that has so often been pointed out in the editorial columns of the daily press—that a certain social impression goes a long way toward official success in the case of non-comers in the city where the nation's laws are made.

Death of Former Citizen.

William J. Heckman, a brother of J. Heckman, of Reynoldsville, and a former resident of Reynoldsville, died at Broad Top, Bedford Co. March 19, 1910, and his body was brought to Reynoldsville for interment Sunday. The funeral service was held at the home of J. Heckman on Main street at 2:30 Sunday afternoon, three ministers, Rev. Messrs. A. J. Meek, J. F. Black and Swartz, of Altoona, taking part in the service. Burial was made in the Reynoldsville cemetery under direction of Henry Priester. The deceased was 67 years old. He was a veteran of the civil war.

Seventy Car Loads Of Material Coming to the Steel Plant in 60 Days

A Little of Everything.

An unexpected rush of official and commercial advertising this week compels us to omit many articles intended for this week's issue and abridge others. It isn't often that a Reynoldsville paper is crowded with "ads" and our readers will pardon us for sacrificing news to cash for one week.

Word received from the Mercy Hospital in Pittsburgh indicates that both of the Reynoldsville appendicitis patients operated upon last week, Miss Hallie Burns and Fred Wheeler, are doing well and no further complications are expected.

It is improbable that the Star Glass Co. plant will be started before six or eight weeks. Extensive repairs are now being made by the Colburn people, who will operate it during the next run, both to the tank and lehr, and it will require some time to melt the glass again after the repairs are completed.

G. A. Prescott, of Tawas City, Michigan, is a guest at the home of J. H. Corbett and other relatives in Reynoldsville. Mr. Corbett spent his boyhood days in this place and though wealth and political honors have come to him in Michigan he has still a warm spot in his heart for the local people and scenes.

Mayor Galvin, of Cincinnati, has established a "Kicking Day." Every Thursday he or his secretary is at home to receive complaints on all subjects pertaining to civic welfare. ## Equipment of the Rankin Plant Will Soon be Shipped to Reynoldsville.

A little section of the Pittsburgh district is headed towards Reynoldsville loaded on seventy freight cars.

In about two months' time the whole Rankin plant of the Blaw Collapsible Steel Centering Company will be shipped to Reynoldsville and afterwards the entire operations of the company will be centered here.

The Rankin plant now employs about one hundred and fifty men. The addition of this force to the Reynoldsville plant means that the number of employees here will jump from sixty-five to two hundred before June 1st, and that the pay roll will be easily ten thousand dollars a month.

During their visit to Reynoldsville last Friday Albert C. Lehman, manager of the Blaw company, and Benjamin L. Hirschfeld, a director, met Hon. S. B. Elliott and H. A. Stoke, president and secretary of the Reynoldsville Land Improvement Company, and an agreement reached for the ceding of five more acres of land to the Blaw company, which is absolutely necessary for the carrying out of the industrial plans of this company.

Saturday cards were received in Reynoldsville announcing the dissolution of the firm of Sachs & Hirschfeld, prominent attorneys of Pittsburgh with offices in the Frick building. Mr. Hirschfeld abandons a large and lucrative law practice in order to devote his whole time and energy to the interests of the Blaw Collapsible Steel Centering Company. It was Mr. Hirschfeld who conducted the negotiations in behalf of the Blaw company during the correspondence preceding the purchase and was the first member of the company to favor locating here, for which reason the people of Reynoldsville have an especially warm regard for him.

As the plans of the company gradually unfold it is becoming more than ever apparent that the location of the Blaw company in Reynoldsville was in every respect the greatest event in the industrial history of the town. What has been announced is but a small part of the tentative plans for the future.
