Jorevin de Rochefort, who published In Paris in 1671 an account of his travels in England, tells the following: "While we were walking about the town (Worcester) he asked me if it was the custom in France as in Engfand that when the children went to school they carried in their satched with their books a pipe of tobacco, which their mothers took care to fill early in the morning, it serving them instead of breakfast, and that at the accustomed hour every one laid aside his book to light his pipe, the master smoking with them and teaching them how to hold their pipes and draw in the tobacco.

In England at the time of the great plague it was reported that no one living in a tobacconist's house fell sick of the disease. This caused a great demand for tebacco. Hearne says in his diary, "I remember that I heard for merly Tom Rogers, who was yeomen beadle, say that when he was a school boy at Eton that year when the plague raged all the boys of that school wer obliged to smoke every morning and that he was never whipped so much in his life as he was one morning for not

In the Nick of Time.

The steamer was on the point of eaving, and the passengers lounged on the deck and waited for the start. At length one of them espied a cub In the far distance, and it soon being his level best to catch the boat.

Already the sailors' hands were on the gangways, and the cab's chances looked small indeed. Then a sportive assenger wagered a sovereign to shilling that he would miss it. ffer was taken, and at once the deck ecame a scene of wild excitement.

"He'll miss it!" "No; be'll Just do it!"

"Come on!" "He won't do it!"

"Yes, he will. He's done it! Hur

In the very nick of time the cab arrived, its occupant sprang out and ran up the one gangway left. "Cast off!" he cried.

An East Indian Verdict.

In a case in one of our Indian courts jury had before it evidence that could not be in any way shaken. When the concluding stage had been reached the following interchange of conversation took place between the judge and his colleagues in the administration of

"Gentlemen, are you ready to give your verdict?"

"What is your verdict?"

"Our answer is, sir, that you can do as you like with the men that have confessed, but we acquit all the rest. But is it possible that you have welg had the evidence?"

"Evidence like this can always be fabricated." "Do you find that as regards these prisoners it has been fabricated?"

"Evidence can be fabricated." "So the evidence is untrustworthy?" "Unless a man confesses who can tell be is guilty?"—Bombay Gazette.

The Fun of the Farce.

It is related that the manager of a theater consented to hear in his room s young man who had an unfortunate impediment in his speech read a short farce, the sole condition being that it should not occupy more time than it took to finish the cigar the manager had just lit. They both started, the one reading, the other smoking, but as mild Havana gradually grew shorter the worse the young author spluttered. They firlshed together. Of course the question was immediately put, "What do you think of it?-"

"Well," replied the manager, "It's not a half bad idea. Father, mother, lover, daughter, all stuttering, will be novel!" The author, furious, exclaimed: "They don't stammer! It is only my misfor

"Oh, then, the play isn't funny at all! Sorry that I can't accept it," returned the manager.

"This kitchen wasn't made for tall people," she explained falteringly. "It was made for little ones."-New York Press.

Crude Logic. It is told of an East Indian law student that he once threw his examiners into confusion by declaring matrimony to be an illegal state. "How so? How so?" he was asked by the perturbed examiners, many of them married men. The student smiled beatifically. "Marriage," quoth he, "is a lottery, and lotteries are forbidden by law."

A Frequent Insincerity. "The man's own words prove him a prevaricator," said Mr. Quibbles. "In what way?"

"He writes me an insulting letter and signs it 'Yours respectfully."—Wash-Ington Star.
