HER ONE QUESTION.

The Woman in the Case, as Usual,

Had the Last Word. When Mr. Jenkins went to his bed room at half past I it was with the determination of going to sleep and with another determination that be would not be interviewed by Mrs. Jenkins. So as soon as he had entered the door and deposited his tamp upon the dressing table he commenced to undress and to make his speech:

"I locked the front door. I put the chain on. I pulled the key out a little bit. The dog is inside. I put the kit ten out. I emptied the drip pan of the refrigerator. The cook took the silver to bed with her. I put a came under the knob of the back hall door I put the fastenings over the bath room windows. The parlor fire has coal on. I put the cake box back in the closet. I did not drink all the milk, It is not going to rain. Nobody gave me any message for you. I mailed your letter as soon as I got downtown. Your mother did not call at the office Nobody died that we are interested in Did not hear of a marriage or engage ment. I was very busy at the office making out bills. I have hung my clothes over chair backs. I want a new egg for breakfast. I think that is all, and I will now put out the light.

Mr. Jenkins felt that he had hedged against all inquiry, and a triumphant smile was upon his face as he took hold of the gas check and sighted a line for the bed when he was earthquaked by the query from Mrs. Jen kins, "Why don't you take off your hat?"-Argonaut.

A STORY OF MEISSONIER.

The Painter's Two Breakfasts With Stingy Art Patron.

Meissonier once got acquainted will a Parisian grandee, very wealthy, very fond of posing as an art patron, but slightly penurious. One day Melsso nier, breakfasting with the grandee. was struck by the beauty of the texture of the tablecloth. "One could draw upon it," he remarked, and, suiting the action to the word, he produced a pencil and made on the smooth snowy nap a wonderfully able sketch of a man's head. The particular tablecloth in question never went to the wash. The "economical swell" had the head carefully cut out of the damask and hastened to frame and glaze his prize. A few weeks afterward Melssonier again breakfasted with his patron and found by the side of his plate at the corner of the table assign ed to him a neat little sheaf of crayous and holders, with a penknife and some india rubber.

While the guests, at the conclusion of the repast, were enjoying their coffee and cigarettes the host saw with delight "from the corner of his eye" that Messonier was hard at work on the tablecloth, this time with a superb little full length of a mediaeval halberdier. The party broke up, the guests departed, and the "economical swell" rushed back to the dining room to secure his treasure. But, alas, the painter had for once shown himself es ceonomical as his patron! He had made disastrously good use of the peakulfe, and one corner of the inblectoth was gone, hatterdier and all!

Bismarck on the Throne of France. Bismarck on the throne of France: Bismarck was once spoken of in that connection, and by Napoleon too! It was during the detention of the de throned emperor at Wilhelmshohe in 1871, when Napoleon and some mem of his staff were discussing the probability of Napoleon reascending the French throne and news of the doings of the commune was brought in.

"Horrible-too horrible!" exclaimed le petit empereur.

And then after a long silence he re sumed, "I know a fan who if on the French throne would be master of Germany in six months." "His name, sire?" asked his nephew,

Prince Murat. "Bismarck." replied the emperor a

A Curious Barometer.

A curious barometer is said to be used by the remnant of the Araucanian race which inhabits the southernmost province of Chile. It consists of the castoff shell of a crab. The dead shell is white in fair, dry weather, but the approach of a moist atmosphere is indicated by the appearance of small red spots. As the moisture in the air increases the shell becomes entirely red and remains so throughout the

HIS VERY WORDS.

The Property Man Cheerfully Quoted Them to Beerbohm Tree.

Beerbohm Tree, the English actor. had a comical experience on his first appearance as the corpulent Faistaff. In the last act he had arranged that Falsiaff, disconcerted by gibes and buffets of the fairles in Windsor for est, should make one herculean effort to climb the oak tree. The pegs that were to serve as supports for that tree were always conspicuous by their absence. On the morning before the performance Mr. Tree was told they should positively be fixed on the tree. The morning came, but with it no pegs. Eloquence was stifled; even invective faltered. He pointed to the tree and with the calm of despair blurred out to the defaulter, "No pegs!"

Such an ejaculation, spoken more in sorrow than in anger, would, he hoped. appeal to that last remnant of conscience which even the papier mache bosom of a property man might be supposed to retain. In the evening there was a dress rehearsal, but still no pegs could be seen. Mr. Tree's form quivered-beneath the paddingwith pentup emotions, and in a torrent of passion and a voice shaken by righteous wrath he exclaimed:

"Where are those pegs?"
"Pegs-pegs!" exclaimed the property master, with exasperating affability. "Why, guv'nor, what was your words to me this morning? 'No pegs.' And there ain't none."-London Tit-Bits.

Feats of Diving That Are Performed by Swedish Swimmers.

WATER EXPERTS.

The Swedes delight in "combination diving," and two men will perform many clever feats together. One of the most grotesque of these is when one man stands upright on a springboard and tightly clasps another man's body round the waist, holding him head downward and putting his own head through the man's legs. When the upright man springs from the board he throws his legs into the air so that the two men, clasping each other tightly round the walst, turn a somersault, and when they reach the water the man who started upside down arrives feet foremost.

The handspring dive is a very effective specialty of Swedish swimmers. The performer takes off from the diving board with hands instead of feet. turning his body in order to descend feet foremost or somersaulting to arrive head downward.

Very graceful also is the back dive in which the spring is made backward, the body turning toward the spring-

Double somersault dives are made from platforms thirty to fifty feet high, the diver making two turns in the air and entering the water feet foremost.-London Saturday Review.

An Effective Alarm.

Flannigan had been discharged from the artillery and went to live in a cottage in his native village. One day he left on a week's visit to some distant relatives, and a day later the village constable was standing at his door when he heard the sudden boom of the rusty cannon Flannigan had mounted on his front hedge.

An instant later a brick whizzed past the constable's ear and smashed his door to smithereens.

The indignant officer, followed by the populace, rushed to Flannigan's cottage and found it still tenantiess. but showing signs of recent burgling.

When Flannigan returned the next week he heard the news and was de lighted.

"Oi prepared for burglars afore Oi wint away," he said, "by thrainin' the gun on ver front door, constable, and connicting it by sacret wires to the doors and windles and londing it wid An' it hit the door slap in the middle? Bedad, Oi wasn't a gunlayer in the artillery for nothin'!"-Pearson's Weekly.

Why Hale Would Not Do.

When N. O. Nelson, the profit sharer, decided to transfer his co-operative business from St. Louis to the country he looked about carefully for a favor able location. His personal friend Edward Everett Hale accompanied him on one of his tours in search of this. A site was chosen, and a name for it was then in order Among others, Hale was considered. but rejected because, as Mr. Nelson said, "the name differs from its distinguished owner in being only four letters long, while he was six feet four or therenbouts." So Leclaire was chosen in honor of the pioneer French profit sharer.-World's Work.

A Case of Overcrowding. "I don't see why I keep on getting so much fatter. I only eat two meals a day." "I know, my love, but you shouldn't insist upon crowding your breakfast and luncheon into one meal and your dinner and a late supper into the other."-Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Lincoln Story.

When Lincoln, a struggling lawyer, was doing circuit duty in Ohio he once visited a country town where the general storekeeper had the reputation of adulterating, even to the danger point, his cider. In the midst of a general condemnation of this storekeeper Lincoln rose one night from his seat by the hotel stove.

"Come on, boys," he said. And he led a party of a half dozen lawyers and judges to the general

"Let me bave a quart of cider," he said to the storekeeper.

"Yes, sir," was the cordial reply. "And which grade, sir-the ripe, at 3 cents; the mellow, at 2, or the new, at

"It doesn't matter which grade, mister," Lincoln drawled. "I only want to poison a dog."

The Inventor of the Match. The first match was the product of the ingenuity of John Frederick Komerer, who early in the nineteenth century was imprisoned in the peniten-tiary at Hohenasperg, in Germany. He invented the lucifer match while in his gloomy dungeon. The German government forbade the manufacture of matches on the ground of public policy because some children playing with them had caused a fire. Komerer was ruined by Viennese competition when he was released from prison and died a pauper. Up to 1862 the Vienna manufacturers controlled the match business of the entire world.

A Way Out. "I have six doctors, and they can't agree on what alls me. Three think it's one thing and three think it's another. What would you advise me to do. Discharge them all?"

"No. Hire one more and give him the deciding vote."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Time's Changes.

"And now," said the thoroughly indignant athlete, "some of 'em are content to win with a one horse referee. -Washington Star.
