Greatness in Art. Great works of art are only great because they are accessible and comprehensible to everyone. The story of Joseph, translated into the Chinese language, touches a Chinese. The story of Sakya Muni touches us. And there are, and must be, buildings, pictures, statues, and music, of similar power. So that, if art fails to move men, it cannot be said that it is due to the spectators' or hearers' lack of understanding; but the conclusion to be drawn may, and should be, that such art is either bad art, or is not art at all.—Tolstol.

Charlemagne's Poem. Cardinal Rampolla, in answer to a letter of inquiry as to the Charlemagne manuscript which was recently discovered by him in the Vatican, as announced some time ago, says: "There can be no doubt as to its genuineness. It is well known also that he had often expressed himself in poetry, and a good example of his composition and style is the epitaph on Pope Stephen. The discovered document is an elegy on the death of his son, written in Latin, and when found was in two pieces, the joining of which was a laborious task."—London Globe.

MAY LEARN FOR JAPAN

Her Schools Have Courses That Make Good Scholars. Japan has no laws prescribing the age which pupils must attain before being permitted to leave school. Instead there is a law that a child must complete an elementary course corresponding to the first six grades in American schools. Thus the brighter and more industrious pupils, the sooner he may leave school, if his parents desire it. There is no holding back smart scholars for the sake of the dull and indolent. Neither is there any injurious forcing of immature intellects. It is said that the "bad boy" is practically unknown in Japan, that the playing of "hooky" is never indulged in by the youth of the Flower Kingdom, so eager are they to obtain an education, says the Pittsburgh Gazette Times. In this respect America can hardly hope to duplicate her ancient neighbor. The irrepressible bad boy we shall always have with us. He is indigent, and we like him better, on the whole, than his unnaturally good brother. But in one or two respects we might well take a leaf from Japan's book of education.

Benefits of the Farm Garden.

A striking case in which the benefits derived from the farm gardens are shown is that of a German widow who has supported herself and six children since the death of her husband last year and has supplied her table almost entirely from the truck she herself has raised. There are many other similar cases, and it is said that the Vacant Lots Cultivation Society, which is responsible for the distribution of these little farms, is very much gratified with the results obtained. More lots are needed, however, and this is a charity that must appeal to everyone. It is to be hoped that the scope of the work may be broadened to the extent the society wishes.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Sense of Taste.

At an adjourned town council meeting in the north a member casually mentioned that a person could not enjoy or even distinguish between drinks in the dark. A worthy belligerent denied this and offered to bet that, blindfolded, he could name any drink given him. The bet being accepted and the bottle blindfolded, the test commenced. The belligerent drank everything submitted, smacked his lips and correctly named the drink, until the taker was in despair. Then "Try him w' water," whispered a councillor, and the hint was taken. Sip—smack—sip—a shake of the head—"I cannot just mind the name of this, but I mind o' tasin' it when I was a wee laddie."—London Chronicle.

FIVE YEARS OF PAIN.

A Tale of Terrible Kidney Suffering. Mrs. J. F. Kibbie, 62 Stevens St., Wellsville, N. Y., says: "I cannot describe the suffering I endured from kidney trouble for over five years. My back was so lame and painful I could not turn in bed without assistance, nor raise my arms above my head. I often became so dizzy that I fell. The kidney secretions were dark, thick and scalded. I received no relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. My improvement was so rapid that my family did not think it would be lasting. In six weeks I could do a hard day's work with ease." Remember the name—Doan's. For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Recipe for Longevity.

A New Jersey man died the other day at the age of 115. He had always chewed tobacco, drank whisky and voted the Democratic ticket. His longevity is not ascribed so much to his having used whisky and tobacco as to his having voted the Democratic ticket and to having just hung on for the past 40 years in the hope of seeing Bill Bryan elected president.

THE FARMER'S HOME AND ACRES

Silage For Cows. Silage provides a succulent food, and milk cows fed on silage will produce as much milk in midwinter as they will in June, other conditions being similar. Silage and cotton seed, either whole or ground, will make the best possible feed for beef cattle, and and thousands of cattle in the northern states are fattening on these rations. Silage solves the feed problems of winter or a dry fall, and with silage but little hay or roughness is needed for either milk stock or beef stock.—Farmers' Home Journal.

Rid the Pasture of Weeds.

The cheapest way to rid the pasture of weeds, as well as other parts of the farm where sheep can be allowed to run, is to keep some sheep grazing upon it. I believe it is also the best way to keep down weeds as the sheep wander over the same land day after day and keep the weeds closely picked down all the time, while if you depend on mowing the weeds, it can only be done occasionally and not very often at best. A good sized bunch of sheep will do more weed killing than a man, and do it at a profit to the owner, while the man would be quits an item of expense.—Farmers' Home Journal.

Profitable Stock.

We are daily coming in contact with the products of the dairy cow in one form or another, thus it is to the interest of the owner of the dairy breed of cattle to carefully select animals when laying a foundation for his herd, which will yield him the best profit, not only selecting animals which are from a good healthy stock but animals which are good profit producers, or in other words, that yield a flow of milk, containing sufficient butter fat, to warrant the animal worth the while of keeping upon the premises.

While it is always essential that animals be well fed and cared for, it is oftentimes found that the animal producing the largest amount of milk is not necessarily the animal which devours the most feed and for this reason the owner should learn the temperament of each individual animal and feed it accordingly, in this way realizing profits which might otherwise be wasted.—Farmers' Home Journal.

The Best Ration for Hogs.

In a recent bulletin the College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri has published the results of a number of swine feeding experiments, by E. B. Forbes. These experiments prove that corn—good corn—is a good feed for any animal and that there is no reason for withholding it from any animal needing food. At the same time, it is shown that corn alone is not nearly so good or so profitable a feed as corn supplemented by some protein food such as tankage, linseed oilmeal, or soy beans.

If hogs fed exclusively on corn the animal becomes very fat and chubby and does not develop properly; the bones are brittle and easily broken. Sixty-five hogs were used in this experiment and they were divided into lots of five each. Twelve different rations were used with corn alone in two of them and corn supplemented with some other feed in the others.

The hogs fed on corn and linseed oilmeal and those fed on corn and tankage gained the most; those receiving corn alone were most unsatisfactory.

Horse Distemper.

It is known that a horse with distemper can communicate it to a healthy horse, and the germs are found in the discharges of the nostrils. In most cases distemper appears before horses are five years old. The veterinary of the Colorado agricultural college says: "The Constitutional disturbances caused by the shedding of the teeth, and cutting same, as well as impure air in poorly ventilated stables, overworked and poorly fed animals, are factors that weaken the resistance and make infection possible to produce the disease.

The disease is more common in the spring and fall of the year, particularly the former, on account of the chill received as a result of the sudden changes at these seasons of the year. The disease can also be transmitted from dam to offspring through the milk.

Young animals should not be brought in contact with those affected nor watered out of the same bucket, nor come in contact with any other property until it has been thoroughly disinfected. An animal should not be castrated while suffering with distemper.

A vaccine made from the specific germ causing this disease is prepared in the laboratory of the Veterinary Department of the Colorado Agricultural College.

This vaccine is very useful in combating distemper, both as a preventive and as a cure, and promises to be of as great value as the antisyphilitic vaccine made in the same laboratory from the germs which cause poll evil, fistula, and wound infections. Like the antisyphilitic vaccine, to get the best results it must be used by one who is trained in the seasons
