novel ventilating system has recently been developed, which consists of a small electric fan connected to the window sill in such a manner that it may be operated either to draw in air from the outside or to exhaust the air from a room. It is suggested that the value of this will be appreciated in a kitchen on ironing day, or when any baking is being done, as it prevents the heat from spreading through the besides making the entire house, besides making the kitchen itself more comfortable to ork in .- Philadelpuhia Record.

The Princess Royal,

Endeavoring to correct a mistaken idea that prevails in England that King George's daughter, Princess Mary, becomes Princess Royal, a correspondent writes to the London Times: "The title of 'Princess Royal of Great Britain and Ireland' is in the same position as that of 'Prince of Wales.' It is not hereditary, but it must be created, and it is entirely within the will and pleasure of the sovereign to do this. When Queen Victoria died the Princess Royal of this country was the late Empress Frederick of Germany, and it was not until her death, which occurred some time after the accession of the late king, that his majesty was able to recreate the title and confer it upon bis eldest daughter, our present Royal Princess (Duchess of Fife), who, of course, retains it during her lifetime." -New York Tribune.

Soft Eggs.

When hens begin to lay soft-shelled eggs it is time to ask yourself, "Where am I failing to give them the food they need?" Don't be satisfied until you can answer that question. Almost always it is due to a lack of shell-making material.

The Future of Dairying.

The increasing demand for milk indicates that there is money ahead for the wise dairyman. Good cows require the attention of a good man order to be profitable. Abundant food, congenial stables and kind treatment are essential. When these can be assured, fill up the stables with high grade cows and success is yours. Remember that the low producer is a ad investment at any price, but that the cow liberally endowed with dairy capacity is always a powerful factor for good upon the farm. The sire is often much more than half the herd and through his purity of breeding the profitable cow must always be sought .-- Farmers' Home Journal.

Supply of Eggs.

The development of the cold storage business in eggs has made it difficult for city people to secure fresh eggs, or good quality eggs, therefore there is a good business for the farmers who will supply good lines of strictly fresh eggs.

During the ten year period, ending in 1910, there was a decided decrease in the supply of poultry products, notwithstanding the increase in popula tion. The ten years ending with 1910, will hardly show that the supply has kept pace with the population.

If the farmers can be made to look at the poultry management from a business point of view, the supply would increase greatly, and yet good prices be secured, better satisfaction all around .- E. C., in Indiana Farmer.

Field Pease For Live Stock.

The Wisconsin Station has published a bulletin on growing field pease for feeding live stock. The value of the pea crop lies both in the worth of the peas as a feed for farm animals and in the beneficial effect of the plant as a soil improver. The average yield of an acre of peas contains more digestible protein than any other common Wisconsin grain crop, and the yield of pease per acre aver ages above wheat. The heavy yielding varieties furnish excellent food for pigs, and sheep may be fed pea straw as roughage with good results, say the writers, since it compares favorably with clover and timothy hay as a feed.

Pea growing for soil improvement is quite profitable upon sandy lands that are especially lacking in humus. Peas are a good crop to sow on clover or timothy sods the first year after breaking, as they greatly aid in subduing the soil. The peas should then be followed by a crop of grain, says the bulletin, and the land seeded down to clover.

The pea crop also increases the nitrogen in the soil, as the plant gathers nitrogen from the air with the aid of nitrogen bacteria. In the case to insert his fingers in the crack of a of new land, the authors write, it is advisable to raise pease twice in succession, so that the land may become rich in the nitrogen gathering.

into Chicago and thence into the stor age warehouses. Few persons realize the magnitude of the egg industry. It is larger in point of dollars than the beef business, and runs around the half billion dollar mark. Eggs come next to corn and wheat in the food items of our country, in the total value of the annual business. Chicago's egg business amounts to about 1,500,-000,000 eggs a year.

April eggs are each year stored to be kept to supply the deficiency in November and December. This is done for very good reasons, April or early spring eggs are "good keepers." Summer eggs are as a rule not in good enough condition to store.

In the height of the storing season an average of 7,000,000 eggs a day are received in Chicago. That is about fifty carloads. A car contains 400 cases, and a case contains thirty dozen or 360 eggs. Fifty carloads 20,000 cases. There have been times when the Chicago receipts reached 40,000 cases in one day.

When the receipts in the spring reach 20,000 cases per day, the cold storage men start to put the eggs away for use in the fall and early winter when the supply falls far be-low the demand. In the city of Chicago alone the normal, average egg appetite calls for about 2,000,000 eggs per day, the spring is considerably more, seldom falling below 3,000,000 In addition great quantities of eggs are shipped from Chicago to other points where the same spring appetite is in working order. This is why a supply of 6,000,000 or 7,000,000 eggs per day are necessary in the spring before there is any surplus left for storage.-Indiana Farmer.

Keep the Best Stock.

Many farmers are in the habit of selling their best animals because they will bring the highest price. A greater mistake cannot be made. A difference of 10 or even 25 percent in the price of a single animal is a small matter compared to this difference in Judge. a whole herd. By keeping the very beat to propagate from, the whole may be made of equal excellence, and in the course of a few years numerous animals might be produced having the excellent qualities that now distinguish some few of the best.

What would you say of a farmer who sold his valuable varieties of potatoes and planted other kinds that were inferior? In consequence of this imprudent measure, his next crop would fall short. Everyone will condemn this course, and few, if any, are so wanting in discretion as to pursue it. Yet many take a similar course in selling their best animals and propagating from the poor. Not only is this true of animals for breeding purposes, but those for work as Who does not know in his own well. experience of farmers who sell their best work horses and keep the poorer ones? Well, the consequence is that the poorer one costs a great deal more to keep each year and do less work, and in the end is the most expensive animal. The policy should have been to keep the better one, and to have sold the inferior. This is true in every case.

And doubly so, I believe, when the

The Dominion of Man Over Beasts Does Not Include the Rodents:

Aurochs, cave bear and mammoth we put down with stoneheaded arrows. We have wiped out the buffalo; the lion and the elephant will soon be gone. But still the rabbits of Australia cost the colonies millions a year; traps, ferrets and poison still fail to make head against the rats, mice and gophers of the United States. While animal enemies have become our smaller in size, they have grown more numerous. It is as if nature, after trying vainly to chastise her insurgent son with a catapult, had gone after him with a shotgun.

The fact is that of all warm-blooded creatures there are just two that are really dominant, successful, increasing in numbers and range, and able to maintain themselves anywhere in the world against all rivals. ### Live Stock and Manure.

The Wisconsin agricultural college by Prof. Wall has been carefully looking into the matter, and has published a bulletin o nthe subject from which we quote as follows:

The conservation of fertility in the soil may be accomplished by either of two methods.

1. By feeding crops and purchased concentrated feeds to live stock and applying the stable manure to the land.

2. By the application of commercial fertilizers and culture of legumes and other crops to maintain the humus content of the soil. But the former method if live stock is kept in sufficient numbers to consume most of the crops grown on the farm, together with a certain amount of concentrated feeding stuffs which are purchased.

The care of stable manure is of special importance in connection with five stock farming it is pointed out, and proper handling will prevent much of the loss which now occurs. The total value of the manure produced annually in Wisconsin is estimated to be over $64,000,000, which is nearly twice as much as the value of the crops annually removed from the soil. The manurial value of feeds, fully outlined in this bulletin, needs to be studied carefully by stockmen in relation to fertilization. The use of commercial fertilizer is necessary to maintain the fertility of farms upon which live stock is not kept. The use of these fertilizers is constantly increasing in Wisconsin, and their advantages for special crops, ease of handling, quick availability to plants, as well as freedom from weed seeds are being appreciat-

Perfect cleanliness will cut short the louse crop of chickens.

With proper raising, April hatched chicks will be the money-makers next fall and winter.

When the checks can get away fsom it at will, plenty of heat under the hover is a good thing.

Don't crowd the chicks. Small flocks do best and give each individual chick a better chance.

Rape pasture for sheep is most excellent. One of our sheep growers tells us that he has tried it for ten years and finds rape very fine for his sheep.

Have crates and baskets for shipping strawberries, raspberries and blackberries on hand, and arrangements with your compassion mer chants for handling these as soon as ready.

Farmers often lack the proper amount of rotten manure for melons and cucumbers. By stacking several loads a year in advance of planting there should be no trouble from this sources.

Tomato, pepper and egg plants should be kardened off as soon as they are large enough, in the meantime being kept growing steadily, but not drawn into spindling plants. A stout stocky plant is what is needed.

Some days her mail is heavier than mine, and so much superior in style that I am ashamed for her to see the common envelopes in which tradesmen, chance acquaintances and even dear friends who write to me sometimes inclose their communications. My maid shows her scorn when handing out my poor little letters.

'This is for me,' she says, holding back her own fashionable correspondence, with 'this' and 'me' properly emphasized.
