THE LAND OF REGRET.

There is a city whose gates are wide,
Its pavements pure and clean,
Where shadow forms flit side by side,
On the road called "Might Have Been."
But folks walk there with heads bowed low,
And heavy eyelids wet,
For every corner is haunted so
In this, "The Land of Regret."

They meet the ghosts of those other years
In dreams of memory sweet,
And wet with passionate frenzied tears
The graves which lie at their feet;
But never, long as their lives shall last,
Can they again forget
Who once have walked with ghosts of the past
In this, "The Land of Regret."

They feel the touch of a hand grown still,
Its fingers softly press,
The tender passion of kisses thrill
Their own in a fond caress,
Ah, me,—but pity the folks who stay
Where long the sun hath set,
And walk with the ghosts who're laid away
In this, "The Land of Regret."

WHERE RIDGWAY LEADS.

There is one respect in which Ridgway has the advantage over Scranton, Williamsport, Elmira and many other cities and towns in the county. It owns its own water works system. The cities mentioned, with hundreds of others, do not, but are subject to the tender mercies of corporations which do business for profit, and which fix the water rates so as to insure the forthcoming of the same. Of course the people in all these cities have protested, but it has done little good, in most cases, and they are still paying a stiff rate for water. In Elmira the citizens held a big mass meeting only last Friday and adopted resolutions declaring that for the good and future growth of the city it should own and operate its own water works system and urging that the city take steps at once to become possessed of the same. But this is easier said than done. Private owners of waterworks system do not surrender them, unless they are paid a big price. Williamsport has also been agitating along the same line and Scranton has done so on various occasions. In the meantime Ridgway owns its own water works system, and what is more, it is today one of the most perfect systems to be found in any place of equal size in the country. Authorities on such matters say it is adequate to furnishing a supply for a city of forty thousand inhabitants. Ridgway people certainly have reason to congratulate themselves over their good fortune in this respect.—Ridgway Advocate.

LEARNING A TRADE.

Somebody has said that there are more young men in the penitentiary in this country learning trades than there are outside of them. The principal cause of this is, we are educating our young men for gentlemen; trying to make lawyers, doctors and clerks out of the material nature intended for blacksmiths, carpenters, and other "hewers of wood and drawers of water." It is a mistake and a big one to teach boys and girls by insinuation or otherwise that labor is disgraceful, or if labor is necessary for a livelihood to follow a genteel occupation, and that to do nothing for a living is more becoming the society in which they expect to move and have respect. Hang such society! It is rotten to the core and there are many men's sons and daughters who are being educated to play the part of "leading lady" and "walking gentleman" in the great drama of life who will light out for a poor house or penitentiary before they have played their parts and the curtain drops. Go to work.

Editors are all the time trying to make better laws, better markets, better roads, better schools, better farmers, better citizens and better boys and girls. And what kind of a citizen is it who will not take the local paper?

AULD LANG SYNE.

From THE REYNOLDSVILLE PAPER of June 2, 1887, published by F. J. Black & Company. We copy the following items:

M. E. Weed, brother of Fisherman Weed, has been selected to fill the position in the Low Grade offices left vacant by the resignation of L. A. Jackson.

The undertakers of Jefferson, Clearfield and Clarion counties held their regular meeting at the Belnap house Wednesday.

Cam Mitchell dined luxuriously on alligator a couple of times last week. He claims it is even better than Joe Wilson's fried rattlesnake.

George J. Elliott is again a resident of Winslow township, having moved to Rathmel to superintend the work at the Reynoldsville Mining and Manufacturing Company.

Guffy & Co. have commenced the preliminary work for drilling a test gas well at the old salt works three miles west of town. The work will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

A Reynoldsville base ball club went to Brookville on Decoration Day and crossed bats with the Brookville League team. They were surprised and delighted at making six scores to their opponents' fourteen. The Reynoldsville players were, Hemer, McKnight, Schultze, Zettler, Sloppy, Black, Riston, Gillespie and Green.

Dr. Boyles, DuBois' enterprising druggist, spent Sunday in Reynoldsville, his old home. The Doctor is acquiring fame and wealth at a 2:10 gait and credits his success to a liberal use of printers' ink.

The people who wish to enjoy a real pleasant and quiet day should come to Reynoldsville on the Fourth of July. A broom drill, fantastic parade, women's right lecture and a festival are the program of the day.

William A. Berry, the perennial candidate of Keystone state politics, gave an excellent imitation of the bray of a jackass one day last week when he paid his compliments to the newspapers of Pennsylvania in the following effusion:

"I wish I could find a word in Esperanto or some other language to describe the villany of the newspapers and newspaper men of Pennsylvania. You are snakes of newspaper men and should be burned at the stake. That bunch at Allentown thought I would lay down, but they don't know me. Wait until I get back to Harrisburg and I will make that State capitol job look like thirty cents."

The English University of Cambridge has taken over the control and copyright of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, and will publish a new and complete edition about the end of the present year. This Eleventh Edition, which has been eight years in preparation, entirely supersedes preceding editions, and is a wholly fresh and original survey of all existing knowledge in every field of human thought, research and achievement. It will be comprised in 28 quarto volumes, of which the last will be devoted to a full and comprehensive index.

It is proposed to introduce a bill in the next state legislature to force all hunters to secure a gun license, as is now required in New Jersey. There will doubtless be a large sized howl from farmers and hunters if this passes.
