HOME OF EXILED KING IN ENGLAND

ONDON, England.—Manuel of Portugal, who is now domiciled at Wood Norton, the country home of the duke of Orleans, is still known as King Manuel and is treated with all the respect due to royalty. Before long Manuel and Queen Amelie probably will set up their own establishment at Craycombe, an old house on the duke of Orleans' estate, perched on a hill among thick game woods. Though old and not very large, it is charmingly situated. Queen Amelie knows the place well, for she lived there for a short time before her marriage. Wood Norton itself is far from being palatial, but it is a large house and its royal pretensions are emphasized by the fleurde-lis that appear everywhere about it. Its great gates once stood before the palace at Versailles.

J. Montgomery Gubbins Makes Contrivance to Absorb Silly Chatter of Neighbor and Throw It Back at Her.

New York,-"See this funnel?" said Montgomery Gubbins the other afternoon. He held up an ordinary tin funnel-the kind grocery men keep near the vinegar barrel.

"This funnel," continued J. Montgomery Gubbins, without waiting for a reply, "contains my own arrangement of violin strings and syphons and along this snout you see there is a little keyboard. It will find any person's 'note' and I call it 'the Gubbins silencer and word catcher."

"I was forced by circumstances to invent this contrivance for the protection of my family and my own peace of mind. It happened this way:

"The wife of our next door neighbor on the left of our Omaha home is a bore. It was her habit before this," and he waved the funnel, "to call on us several times a week just at dinner time. She always came to borrow something-a cupful of sugar, a pint of milk or an egg.

Fish Live to Solve Cancerous Mysteries.

Animals to Drink Water in Which

East Portland, Me.-Is cancer communicable through fish to human be-

Through the establishment of a test bureau at the United States fish hatcheries here the government intends to try and settle for all time this much mooted question. Dogs are to be used in the experiment. A halfdozen little mongrels which will be enrolled as charter members of the "cancer squad" have just arrived, accomparied by Dr. Harvey R. Gaylord, director of the Gratwick cancer laboratory at Buffalo, N. Y. The doctor has achieved fame through his discoveries that the laws of immunity apply to cancer.

The dogs are to be fed on the best and most healthful sterilized food, have the best sanitary quarters and have a canine physician all their own. To appease their thirst they are only allowed to drink of a pond in which there are fish. These fish and the dogs, carefully tended, may thus be made to solve another of the great puzzles of the medical world. That is, if the cancerous proclivities of the fish are transmitted through the water, then the dogs, it is believed, will show it and prove that the danger of this disease is ever present for human beings who drink water in which fish live.

Prof. Charles G. Atkins, in charge of the hatchery, says:

"We now have a number of dogs and expect shortly to receive more sent here to aid in investigating the cause of the throat disease known as goltre, which is one of the numerous forms of cancer.'

That the cancerous disease affecting both dogs and fishes is similar in nature has already been established. That it is identical remains to be demonstrated. The relation between the two has not yet been worked out, and that is just what the scientists want to learn, among other things. Dr. Harvey R. Gaylord, who is in charge of the experiments being made,

The United States government is at present taking under consideration the advisability of establishing a permanent station here where experiments in connection with cancer may be made upon dogs in lieu of human beings.
