From the Cameron Press.

BASE BALL CLUB. Sr. Marys, June 25, 1867 EDITOR OF THE PRESS :

Dear Sir.-We were not a little surprised at the article in the Elk Advocate, signed "Catamount," commenting somewhat severe. ly on some noise made by outside par-ties, on the return of the "Arpine B B Club " to St. Marys, and hoping the Al pines will be able to explain away, de. As the demonstrations complained of was made by no member of the Club, we have nothing to explain, and dis. miss the subject as unworthy of notice.

In reference to the courtesy of the Catamount club, we can safely say we were the recipicuts of a very small share of it. When the game was con cluded, not one of their number came near the hotel to say a triendly word to us, and we were allowed to depart without receiving the least attention. and all this after a special invitation had been sent to us that if we "would come to Ridgeway to play the second match it would be at their expense,' now if we remember correctly, the Al. pine boys paid their fares to and from Ridgeway, contrary to what had been promised.

One word more, when a Club will accuse a gentleman, who is every way worthy of the respect and confidence of his fellow citizens, with "selling the game for part of a keg of lager," which the Catamounts requested us to take to Ridgeway, promised to pay for, but forgot to do it, it strikes us that they should say very little about courtesy. or gentlementy conduct. There are exceptions to the foregoing—a few in the Club that our remarks do not allude " Alpine."

> For the Elk Advocate. RIDOWAY, Pa., July 1, 1867.

MR. EDITOR :- A Catamount requests short space in your columns to reply to the above squib from the Cameron County Press. In the first place, the Cameron county paper was not the proper medium through which grievanees alloged to have been sustained in Elk county should be ventilated; and, in the second place, the wretched orthography and still more wretched grammar which 'Alpine' employs in poor, defeated 'Catamount' from at- we would like to hear from them. tempting a defence or his Club. In noticing our complaint as to the Alpines on their return home, having given three cheers for their own, and three grooms for the Catamount Club, Alpine says, " As the demonstrations complained of was made by no member, &c , de., we dismiss the subject as unworthy of notice." That is perfectly right, Alpine. A more contemptible fact never had existence; members of the Cata. mount Club, however, beg leave to refuse to accept your summary denial, and transparent whitewashing of your conduct as amending the matter in any respect. Reading further, we find in the second verse of the first chapter of " Alpine," that they were the recipients of a very small share of Catamount courtesy; that when the game was concluded, not one of the Catamounts came near the hotel to say a friendly word, and that they were allowed to depart without re. ceiving the least attention, &c., &c.

Every courtesy was shown to the Alphae Club which was in the power of the Catamount After the game had been played and supper been had, the following Catamounts walked up to the hotel with the Alpines and spont as much of their time as was possible-1st baseman, 2nd baseman, 3d baseman, right fielder, pitcher, umpire and scorer. Some of them accompanied the Alpines to the denot. The Alpine Club were under no expense whatever at the Hyde House ; not only were the suppers for their Club on each occasion paid for, but several outsiders who came with them were treated in like manner. The Alpine boys did not pay their fares to and from Ridgway either time. They came to Ridgway both times on freight trains, and paid nothing. The Catamount Club however, are willing to reimburse the Alpines at any time, not only for what expenses they may have undergone in the matter of railroad fares, but also for the limited amount of treating they may have done, on presentation of bills for the same. The Club does not accuse any gentleman, after the fashion charged by Alpine; neither did the Catamounts ever order a keg of lager, or LOCAL INTELLIGENCE | the Alpines ; but for what the Alpines | S. SHORT. did bring, the Catamounts will pay.

> .. Die, and make no sign.l' When you deny serious charges, be able to substantiate your denial, and when you make assertions, draw on something other than imagination for facts to sus. tain you; and do not travel into Camer. on county to cast a gloom over that cheerful country by your melancholy strains. Tune your sad pipes beneath the orange groves of Elk, and pour forth your translucent soul in dulcet wailings by the meandering Clarion, while the whispering pines sob mournfully o'er the grave of the little Alpine CATAMOUNT. boy.

Cook.-An amusing incident occured at one of the hotels in this village a few days since. A noted D. B. stepped into the bar room, and producing a bottle from under his coat, desired the proprictor to fill it with the "essential."-The proprietor, however, knowing his man, asked him if the state of Lis exchequer was sufficiently plethorie to pay for the liquor. Upon being shown the requisite amount, the landlord bastened to comply with his customer's request, and soon had the bottle filled and set. ting it on the bar, the following colloquy ensued :

D. B .- Is that pretty good? Landlord -- I'ure rye whiskey, cost $5 a gallon in Philadelphia.

D. B .- Did it? Well, you've seen my money, now, have nt you?

Landlord .- [keeping an eye on the whiskey.] Yes, sir. D. B .- Well, I've seen your whiskey,
