EARLY LIFE OF PAUL JONES

He Came to America to Inherit as Relate In Virginia.

There is no record of his having attended any school except that of the parish of Kirkbdan, but he developed a truly Scotch passion for reading and writing. He went to sea when 12 years old and made two voyages during his minority in a slaver, but hating the traffic he left it and the ship too. At 20 he was in command of a fine brigantine. About this time occurred what he calls, in a letter to Robert Morris, "a greet misfortune," adding, "I am mider no concern whatever that this or any other circumstance of my past life will sink me in your opinion." The trouble was a threatened criminal prospection for having had a carpenter flogged, which was the usual mode of punishment in se days. The matter was investigat ed, and Paul Jones was fully acquitted. It is worthy of remark that the magistrate who inquired into that matter notes that Paul Jones expressed great sorrow for having had the man flogged, although the charge of crosty was fully disproved. He returned to Scotland once after this, and although affectionately received by his own family his friends and neighbors seem to have treated him coldly. The smart from this injustice turned the indifference he felt for his he considered himself quite free from any responsibility for having been born and having spent the first 12 years of his life in so inhospitable a country. In his twenty-seventh year a great and fortunate change occurred to him. His brother William, who had emigrated to Virginia and died there, left him an estate. There is no doubt that Paul Jones was often afterward in want of ready money, but it must be remembered that everybody was in want of ready money in the eighteenth century. Certain it is, from his papers preserved at Washington, that he might be considered at the beginning of the war a man of independent fortune. The two years of his life in Virginia are obscure, as might be expected from a man living the life of a provincial country gentleman, which the records concerning him prove. At the outbreak of war with the mother country Paul Jones hastened to Philadelphia, and through Mr. Joseph Hewes, a member of congress from North Carolina; got mission as senior first lisuten in the infant navy of the colonies. It was then he made the acquaintance of Robert Morris, to whom he felt a passionate gratitude and affection, whom he named as sole executor in his will, Mr. Hewes being then dead .-Miss Molly Elliot Seawell in Century.
