WHAT FREE SILVER MEANS.
The New York Advertiser of June 16th says: "Mr. Sibley, who speaks at the Memphis silver mass meeting on Tuesday night, is at least entitled to credit for candor. He does not attempt to beat about the bush. He does not talk about free silver coinage and a sound and honest dollar in one and the same breath. 'We are for free silver silver,' Mr. Sibley asserts, 'because it will advance the price of wheat and cotton.' In other words, he is in favor of free silver because it means the degradation of the currency and an increase in the cost of the necessities of life.
"It is well that the purpose of the free silver movement should be thus frankly stated. Mr. Sibley, however, should have gone a step further. He should have added that free silver would enable every debtor to defraud his creditors of fifty per cent. of his indebtedness due them. While he is appealing to the cupidity of the ignorant and the credulous he should make the job complete. And while Mr. Sibley is about it he should explain how, unless a person be a silver mine owner or a dishonest debtor, anybody is to gain anything by simply doubling the price of everything. Let Mr. Sibley show just how easy it is for a man to lift himself up by the boot straps.

FLAG DAY.
Friday, 118 years ago, Congress selected the Stars and Stripes as the flag of the republic. Apart from the patriotic significance which endears it to every American heart, its color combination makes it a thing of beauty. There is no flag in the world that can compare with it in artistic effect.
It did not come at once. The flag which was unfolded over the patriot camp when Washington took command was like the English flag in general appearance. At the time the notion was maintained of making war in the king's name against the troops of the British parliament. But as the idea of natural independence developed, there came the need of a distinctive national flag, which was at last fully satisfied by the adoption of the Stars and Stripes, a star and a stripe for every state at first, but the stripes were confined to the original thirteen while there is a star for every state in the Union.

I have two little grand-children who are teething this hot summer weather and are troubled with bowel complaints. I give them Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and it acts like a charm. I earnestly recommend it for children with bowel troubles. I was myself taken with a severe attack of bloody flux, with cramps and pains in my stomach, one-third of a bottle of this remedy cured me. Within twenty-four hours I was out of bed and doing my own housework. Mrs. W. L. Dunagan, Bon-aqua, Hickman county, Tenn. For sale by C. E. Belcher's City Drug Store.

A department of interest to housekeepers is home decoration. A great deal of money can be spent in luxurious furniture and costly draperies, but if not tastefully arranged, your rooms have a most uncomfortable appearance. Mr. A. L. Parsons in Modes and Fabrics, (distributed free by Cook, Salmon & Coyden, of Altoona,) for June, gives some very valuable hints on decoration: the beauties of antique furniture, the arrangement of corner windows, etc. The article shows the writer to be familiar with the subject of home decoration as interpreted by an artistic mind.

OLD NEWS LETTER.

He Writes About the Picture Dealers in an Advanced Style.

Had a twenty-one century man been in town Tuesday he would have written of the proceedings in this manner: On Monday two innocent appearing gentlemen were enticed into a large room and terribly abused by the inmates and other persons who came in from the street. The poor innocent creatures having apparently done no harm hardly knew what to do to defend themselves. A picture was brought in from a vehicle outside the building and from the posture I judged the men were released because the picture looked so unlike the man with whom they were holding the argument with. After settling this difference and when about to leave in order to save their lives they were again "waylaid" by another party and made to go into a small one-story building. As I did not understand the language, I don't know what purpose this was done, but from the gestures and loud talking I knew the innocents were in no danger, for when the people make so much noise it is to "preserve peace." After much confusion the unfortunate men escaped from the mob. Truly it was a scene that showed the barbarism of the people of the nineteenth century. Two lone unprotected men almost deprived of their liberty because their good opinions did not agree with the bad opinions of the people. I am sorry I did not have an opportunity to take a picture of the various scenes enacted. Tragedy, comedy, drama, horse play and staccato were in abundance, and from the very nature of things I would have a fine collection of views and one that any school of comedy or drama would pay a good price for, as the scenes would be perfectly natural. Another chance to make a fortune has passed through my hands and I am afraid I will have to brave the cold, heartless, cruel unbelieving world in much the same manner two wayfarers did during this week. MOSES PEAKS.
