REMARKABLE DEPICTION OF REAL LIFE WITH INTERESTING PLOT.

An Adventure Novel, Mary Thiers, the Woman in the Case, Historical Facts, the Story of the Execution of a Cleveland Executioner.

A drama of real life, the most extraordinary in the history of the world, the story of the execution of a Cleveland executioner.

The executioner, Dr. Emerson of Berea, a Cleveland suburb, was arrested on the charge of being a murderer. The trial was sensational, a public feature being the display of his young and beautiful wife, who sat constantly by his side during the trial.

Mrs. Emerson's love turned to hatred. She instigated all proceedings and was granted a divorce. Then she consulted an attorney in regard to the legality of the marriage. In his investigation, the attorney discovered that Mary Thiers had been living with John Thiers, who was not her husband.

Several days after the attorney received a letter from a man named Wittman of Buffalo. The writer said he had read the name of John Thiers in the death list of a Cleveland newspaper. He asked the attorney to make inquiries and see if John Thiers was not in reality Casper Wittman, the writer's father.

The letter concluded with the statement that if Emerson and Wittman were the same, the attorney should immediately institute proceedings to contest the will, as the writer should maintain that his mother and children were Casper Wittman's legal heirs.

An investigation of the will settled the question of identity. It is signed John Thiers, but he says he was formerly known as Casper Wittman. Now comes another complication. In his will Wittman speaks of his "former wife." The court records show that he was never divorced in Cleveland, and the attorney claims that Wittman fraudulently obtained a divorce in another state.

The grand opera at St. Paul's Protestant church in Kalamazoo, N. J., brought the services to an abrupt close Sunday morning. The choir had begun to sing when something happened to the organ and every pipe began to sound. It was several minutes before the organ could be shut off and the noise ceased.

How I Love Thee. How do I love thee? A first step of the mountain top. One, and I love thee, I love thee more. And my heart is ever with thee, O'er the mountains and the valleys.

TALE OF A PURSE.

It's a Pretty Tough Year, but You May Believe It if You Wish.

It would be hard to make up the tale of a purse, which was found in the pocket of a man in the London and Westminster bank, who was working there.

A recent mail brought to the bank a packet from a lawyer in a little town in Belgium. Wittman was the name on the envelope, but with contents intact.

The other night a quiet wife of Jeffersonville, Ind., married William Bratton and Miss Marie Morgan, a handsome young couple from California, Ky., whose marriage was a decided romance.

The matter in which David R. Locke, Portland, N. Me., is the plaintiff, is known as "Letters from the Continent." It is a story which during wartime and for some time thereafter attracted attention.
