Little Jakob finally broke out into bitter crying, that on this holy eye he was to have nothing but a bare tree, which seemed to him the greatest sorrow that this world could hold. The mother, with a sudden impulse, said to her husband : "In two hours I am back again. It is Christmas eve, and no child ght to be allowed to go empty handed. Don't you think I could get something for our little boy?"

"Yes, yes," he nodded in assent. "I ng a little dumpish yet. When I've had a sleep, I shall feel better." "Listen, Jakot." The mother then urned to the boy. "Watch closely.
