WHAT'S THE HURRY? So far as we know, says the L. A. W. Bulletin, but very few riders of bicycles are killed or injured by riding too slow.

In there any excuse for allowing him to cut off? Why is he in such a hurry? Is he going for the doctor or to ring in a fire alarm? Well, he may be, but the chances are he isn't.

If he should hire a livery horse and attempt to lurch it about the neighborhood all day at a killing pace, the police, the public, and the humane society would soon gather them in as a nuisance to peace and safety.

Any one wishing to ride at a racing pace should do so on an inclosed track, or else on a highway free from other travel and without grade crossings.

There are times and places where something may be considered permissible and appropriate. That place is not in a street frequented by others.

Some for ten, some for twenty and some for thirty years have suffered from piles and then have been quickly and permanently cured with DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, the great remedy for piles and all forms of skin diseases.

The naturally peaceful and law-abiding citizen who has just been nearly killed or scared out of his wits by a procession of northern feds like kicking the tire of the first wheel that is ridden by him at a poor slow enough to permit him to get a good whack at it.

There's a lowly pedestrian, too some who are riding through the streets. What's the hurry? What's the hurry? It's a terrible accident to be burned or scalded, but the victim and every one who sees it.

RAISING GOLDFISH.

THE TWO LARGEST FARMS IN THE WORLD ARE IN INDIANA.

Correcting Some Popular Errors About These Finny Beauties—The Raiser Has Great Difficulty In Fighting Off The Pest World—Goldfish With Many Tails.

Goldfish are so extremely common nowadays that few people even stop to wonder where they come from or how they are raised. Comparatively little is generally known about the little cold blooded vertebrates that swim about in the aquariums in so many homes.

The largest goldfish farm in the world, if it may be called such, is located in Shelby county, Ind., about 80 miles from Indianapolis. Here the original goldfish men of the country have their propagating institution.

There are two farms, several miles apart, which are devoted to the different branches of the industry. In the north part of the county is one farm of eight or ten acres. The other is a few miles farther south and is about half again as large as the first one.

Today there are in the various ponds of Spring Lake fishery over 300,000 fish, from which specimens are constantly being sent to every state and territory of the Union. It is even said that some of the finest fish in the royal aquariums of Europe were raised by Mr. Shoop and his partner at this farm.

One of the farms spoken of are a large number of small ponds, some of them not much larger than ten feet square. These ponds are all connected with each other by little channels, so that the water and fish can be let from one to the other without the least difficulty.

The breeding ponds, which are, of course, the most important, are protected from the wind and cold by high embankments around the edges. This is all the protection that is necessary for the fish, even in the winter time, so it is seen that, although the fish are undoubtedly delicate, they are much more hardy than is generally supposed.

Several times a year the fish are sorted in the different ponds and classified so that the largest and finest ones will be together, and those which will not bring such good prices will be by themselves. Many people suppose that when the goldfish is first hatched from the egg it has the peculiar pretty markings on its scales which make it so beautiful and valuable.

This is not the case. In its youth in reality the fish is just the same as any ordinary and everyday fish, and looks like it for all the world. Even an expert could scarcely tell it from the little minnows which are found in any stream. They are of a whitish, silvery color, and have not the least evidence of the beautiful hues which they will later assume.

Sometimes, however, the goldfish grower is sadly disappointed in finding that his fish fail to acquire the golden tint for which he has so long been looking in vain. There have been many instances where and again in which the fish never did change to the reddish color, but grew to be several years old, retaining their white, silvery, youthful complexion. Ordinarily, however, the fish develop the golden shade in less than a year.

First, they begin getting dark, sometimes becoming almost black. From the dark complexion they begin turning to the reddish shade, and finally come out in all their glory, full bodied goldfish.

The food is not, as many people suppose, the least thing to do with coloring the fish. All the fish are fed exactly the same thing, toasted bread two or three times a week, and nothing else is given them for their subsistence. The sun seems to be the necessary agent and the only one to complete the change of nature, and even this sometimes does not work successfully.

The greatest difficulty with which the goldfish raiser has to contend is the pest world. Snakes, cats, dogs, frogs and insects innumerable are all full destroyers of the goldfish, and the crowfish in by no means a second in the destruction which he can work when he gets in the neighborhood of the finny tribes. Some one must be kept constantly on watch at the season of the year when these insects and little animals abound to see that they do not get into the water of the pond where the fish are.

The sting of some insects will kill a fish in almost every instance. Snake feeders and some other well known insects fly close to the surface of the water in the summer time and with the greatest ease touch the tiny little fish swimming near the surface of the pool. An egg is laid on the fish or a stinger inserted, and either will invariably prove fatal.

The freaks and unusual developments in the fish are the varieties which will always bring the best prices for the market. Odd and rare colors and spots upon the scales are the marks which are preferred by fanciers. Unusual shapes in the fishes are equally popular with oddities in colors and will cause a fish to bring as good a price as if it had orange or purple scales.

In physical developments the great varieties are in respect to the tail. One never finds two headed fish, but the one with more than one tail are plentiful. Two, three, four and five tails are quite often found on the fish and sometimes even six, but the latter is very rare. Of course a fish with six tails would bring a handsome price in any market. Goldfish are often killed by great numbers. The two things which above all should be avoided are overfeeding them and failure to keep fresh water in the aquarium. An over, indigestible temperature should be maintained, and they should be kept in the best condition—Chicago Tribune.
