

WOMAN'S WORLD.

AN INTERESTING VISITOR WHO COMES FROM PITCAIRN ISLAND.

Woman's Interest in Education—Privileges of the Club—Notable Women and Women Suffrage—A Glimpse at Wheelwright—Two Southern Women.

Miss Rosalind Amelia Young, a direct descendant of that now historically famous party of "honey hunters" who settled on Pitcairn Island, is in the city, a guest at the residence of Miss Maudie Barry, on Van Ness avenue.

Miss Young is a pleasant, bright and intelligent woman, simple, earnest and straightforward in manner. She was educated, she explained, on the island by her father, who was a teacher.

Another reason, which women themselves will be slow to acknowledge, but which they must recognize, is that they delight in the order and method which they find in this housekeeping done by men for men.

Notable Women and Women Suffrage. One of the grievances of the suffrage leaders lay in the fact that the literary women of this country would express sympathy with their efforts.

The oldest thing in bric-a-brac is a little Italian vase made of red wax, upon which, with a little care, you can have the most beautiful and most brilliant in the utmost luxuriance.

Woman's Interest in Education. "Every one will admit woman's interest in education," said Ellen H. R. of Swarthmore, Pa., to a New York Tribune reporter.

For instance, the constitution of Pennsylvania makes women eligible to any office of control or management under the school system, yet it denies them the right to vote for the people who hold office or make the appointments.

Queen Victoria has 67 living descendants. Yet it is said that if women are allowed to take an interest in politics the human race will become extinct.

The many occasions in bicycling where quick thinking and equally prompt action, the characteristics of a good rider, become necessary.—Harper's Bazar.

Two Southern Women. Mrs. William Felton, vice president of the national council of together in Washington, and Mrs. William King, who was the leading delegate from the Atlanta Woman's club to the same convention, were prominent.

One of the newest courtesies offered by men to women is the establishment of ladies' annexes to men's clubs. Conservative Boston led the way in this innovation when the Algonquin, Boston and Puritan clubs opened their doors.

In Boston and San Francisco the experiment has been a decided success from all points of view. The ladies' restaurant adds to the revenue of the club, the members can offer an easy hospitality to their friends, and women give unqualified approval and unlimited patronage to the new establishments.

There are many reasons why a man's club appeals to a woman. The first and foremost being, of course, that she has for so long been excluded from it.

The Work of Honeybees.

To secure a pound of honey, which is equivalent to something like 3,000 cells, would take a bee several years. In the first place the bee makes a wax comb upon 50 to 80 flowers in a day's outing.

Laundry classes at which little girls are taught how to wash and iron are now established in connection with boarding schools in London and are reported by the school management committee to have proved thoroughly satisfactory this year—their first.

The Gaylord (Kan.) Herald says that the experiment tried there a year ago of electing women to fill all the city offices has proved a complete success.
