

That Book

"That book," said the old vessel owner, "I bought on Friday, the thirteenth day of the month, and in the dark of the moon. She was as sleek a craft as you ever saw and without a weak spot in her hull. I made a payment down of $15,000 and the first crew I put on her consisted of just 10 men. The only pot they had aboard was a green eyed black cat that slept in daytime and tore around the cabin at night.

The Yellow Book in the House

Up to a few years ago the yellow book was unknown in England outside the annual visit to the seaside, and there many people would have been disposed to look upon it as the uniform of a vulgar and unattractive class.

Our Nation's Wealth in Gold Dollars

The wealthiest nation of the world is the United States. The census of 1900 shows the true valuation, or fair selling price, of the real and personal property of the country to be $65,067,091,197.

A Turkish Bride

Richard Dancy, in his book, "The Sultan and His Subjects," thus describes the appearance of a Turkish bride: "The bride, whom we will call Gul Hamur, or the Lady Rose, is dressed in the most elaborate Persian bridal costume, with an immense long train, a wreath of orange flowers at her head and a pink veil reaching to her ground.

Good Time

Jack—They say young Tim can do 14 knots per hour. Dorothy—Yachtman, I suppose? Jack—No, clergyman.—New York Times.

Johns Hopkins

Johns Hopkins began life with a very modest school education, and he is a striking example of what may be done by energy, economy and perseverance. He was 19 years old when he left his father's farm, on which he had worked since his twelfth year, but hard as he had worked in the country, a still harder experience was his during the first years in the city.

Yale Yarns

"What was the laticivus?" said the tutor to a pitiable wretch of that order whose intellects transfused the solid facts of positive knowledge into a nebula of vague conjectures. Boldly he concealed the weakness of his defenses and faced the enemy: "It was the garment which the Roman matrons wore when they went into the Cloaca Maxima."

William Wordsworth

Many readers have thought Wordsworth to be dull and heavy, and that these defects are un pardonable in a poet. It is true that his poetry is not uniformly great and attractive, and that much of what he wrote is tame. No writer could yield so much waste and not have some chaff with it.

Easy Stump Grabbing

This is the way one of Carlin's progressive farmers clears land. He has a portable fence, which he can move around without much inconvenience, and he incloses a stump with it, placing within the inclosure two of his biggest dogs. Then he goes to work with a crowbar and makes some holes around the stump, filling the holes with corn or oats or buckwheat, whatever he has handy, and the animals get to their work.

Men of Standing

"Who are your leading citizens here?" asked the man who was soliciting for county histories. "Which?" asked the farmer. "Your men of standing."

Better Than the Name

Turkish baths, strange to say, or what we know by that name, are unknown in Turkey, while in Austria they are called Roman baths. In Germany, with their accustomed verbal accuracy, they call the same thing Rominische-Turkische dampfbad. Let us hope these German baths are not really as bad as they call them.—Exchange.

About 300 Miles from Sydney

A place called Wingen, and in one of the mountains there is said to be a coal mine which has been burning for over 100 years.

Doctors and Patients

A physician with a large practice sees strange sights and some irritating. Benjamin W. Richardson, commenting on the fact that these singular sights tend to produce in the doctor's mind the feeling "All things are alike to all," says he once surprised a bishop by saying that the writer of Ecclesiastes must have been a doctor.

Treasure Trove

Mr. Robinson tells of eleven crowns of gold, set with precious stones, found in 1855 by some Spanish peasants near Toledo. One of the crowns has a Gothic name of Saintilla, who reigned from 681 to 681. Who buried them? He shall never know. The trees of the Irish work of the seventh century, which were picked up by a child on the sea, are 1850. A viking rober may have dropped it. The nation of Esparth kings was found in 1840 at Cernale, where it had been laid in 610. The ring of Ethelwulf of Wessex turned up in a field of mine near London in an invader's friend of Michael Angelo in a dirty little grub shop for half a crown.

Two Kinds of Gardens

Most of us have met the two kinds of gardens which Alfred Austin, the English poet, differentiates as owners' gardens and gardeners' gardens. According to the poet laureate, nearly all the great and costly gardens are gardeners' gardens. And then he alludes to the small cottage gardens, "little village or secluded plots, cultivated and made beautiful by the pathetic expedients of the poor," which seem to have a charm that the others cannot rival. It is indeed the glory of our beloved art that it is open to the rich and poor alike, and that success in the culture of the latter find some of their sweetest joys and delights therein.

A Reckless Waste

A Kennard street man who has until recently been the possessor of a large mistake and very little hat shaved off the former. When he reached home after this sacrifice, his family had to look at him several times before they recognized him. After awhile they became more accustomed to his altered appearance and finally his little girl, whose locks with parted, her astonishment, said: "Well, anyway, papa, it was a shame to waste your mistake. Why didn't you have the barber stick it on the top of your head?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Composite

Southern countries are usually advanced in cruel and novel methods of punishment. Puerto Rico is one which is known as the composite. It consists in beating the individual with a "manate" until he faints. Sometimes, however, it is carried out to the extreme and becomes a form of capital punishment, the last blow being a kick from a mule.

Infectious Maladies in Italy

According to an eminent Italian hygienic expert, official medical returns show that in Italy 300,000 persons die every year from infectious—that is from preventable—maladies, most of them being young, "the hope of families."

Fond Mother

"Fond Mother"—That piece my daughter is playing is very difficult. Visitor—Can't you prevail upon her to try one that is impossible? Brooklyn Life.
