

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-root, the great kidney remedy, will relieve every ailment arising from the kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It cures inability to hold urine and sends pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet book sent free by mail. Mention this PATTON COURIER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.

Problems of Living.
The strong yearning for the life of Washington or of New York is the mark of a contrivance which is reasonable and easily understood. The same thing appears in all rich countries. The well-to-do English try to spend part of the year in London, the French in Paris. They do it and keep their country homes besides. Our westerners have a more difficult problem. They are much farther away from their social and political centers than most of the French or the English, and the idiosyncrasies of the American climate complicate their home coming. Consider the case of the rich people of the great Ohio cities. The Cleveland man who has struck Standard oil, or politics, or something, and has become solvent beyond the dreams of avarice, develops a lawful desire to live at the center of things and builds a house in New York or Washington, which is his headquarters from November to May.

He still has a home in Cleveland, but when he is going to live in it? Not in summer, for his neighbors who stay at home in the winter come east to the seashore in the summer. He may find Cleveland attractive in the late spring and the early fall, but the chanciness is that his family will tell him that it doesn't pay to travel so far and open and close a home for such short periods. The wisest of it must tend to be that the shutters stay up on the Cleveland man's home in Cleveland, and that he lives elsewhere, and merely goes home to vote or on errands of business. And why doesn't he give it up altogether? Because considerations of trade or sentiment or of politics forbid. It pays to be a representative man and hail from somewhere, and Ohio is a good state to hail from.—Harper's Weekly.

A New Insurance Method.
A man who lives in Chapin street started down town the other morning and, as is his custom, stopped in the corner drug store to buy a cigar. When he came out, a stylish car drawn by two splendid horses was passing. The man who was driving it reined in his horse.

"Don't you want to ride?" he asked.

The man who was on his way down town looked all around for the other was a stranger to him, and, he thought, must be addressing somebody else. Nobody else was in sight. The man with the horses repeated his invitation, and the Chapin street man climbed in. The driver inquired his destination and offered to take him for a spin before setting him down there.

"Smoke?" he asked. The Chapin street man said he did, whereupon a silver mounted cigar case was brought out, and he was given his choice of one of the best cigars he ever smoked. They talked of this and that, the two of them, and presently the business of the man with the horse came out. He is in insurance, and of course the Chapin street man is going to insure in his company. It was all an advertising scheme and a very clever one.—Washington Post.

A Wrongly Spelled Name.
Through the blunder of some unknown person, committed years ago, a glaring piece of incessantly poor spelling is still on view in the finance committee room in the city hall and is a subject of much unfavorable comment by historical scholars. The portrait of the Rev. Henry Augustus Muhlenberg hangs for many years in Independence hall as a tribute to the preacher patriots' services during the Revolution, with his name beneath it spelled "Henry Mahlenberg." The same egregious error is now visible in the city hall. The Rev. Henry Augustus Muhlenberg was one of the first Lutheran ministers in this country. On one occasion he carried a gun into his pulpit at Reading and at the conclusion of the services invited all his male parishioners to follow him to Valley Forge, which they did. Dr. Muhlenberg was also the first speaker of the house of representatives of the United States after the constitution was adopted in 1788, and his name is as worthy of sufficient remembrance to be spelled correctly.—Philadelphia Record.

Dromedaries That Smoke Cigars.
There is no reason why a dromedary should not be partial to a good cigar. Most dromedaries, according to a newspaper proprietor, are particularly fond of tobacco smoke and can be made to do almost anything under its influence.

"Travelers in Egypt," he asserts, "rely more on tobacco smoke for their control over these huge beasts than anything else. When traveling on long journeys, the dromedaries are in many cases required to travel night and day without rest, and the beasts are kept up to their tasks by smoking cigars. The driver carries a triangular piece of wood, which is pierced at one point like a cigar holder. This is inserted in the mouth of the beast, the cigar being lit and pressed into the hole in the same fashion followed by men.

"The dromedary immediately closes its eyes and peeps away through its nostrils until the cigar is burned away."—London Answers.

"Blot Out the Sun."
At Princeton a young theologian persuaded a fellow student to go into the auditorium and listen to him while he rehearsed a sermon. The preacher in embryo began. His subject was "Light." With a violent gesture with the right arm, he said, "Blot out the sun!" With a similarly frantic movement of the left arm, he roared, "Blot out the moon!" Then with a combined gesture made up of both arms, he bellowed, "Blot out the stars!" But it was enough. The auditor arose to leave with a hoarse, cruel whisper, "Turn off the gas!"—New York Mail and Express.

I, DR. SAMUEL PITCHER, of Hingham, Massachusetts, was the originator of "PITCHER'S CASTORIA," the same that has borne and does now "PITCHER'S CASTORIA" on every bear the fac-simile signature of *Chas. H.
