ONE DAY OF THANKSGIVING.

CASTORIA.

good on Sunday, and forget all about It during the rest of the week, are not the sort of Christians that give the ost enjoyable and beneficial character to a neighborhood, says the L. A W. Bulletin.

Those who are very, very patriotic on the Fourth of July and then forget to honor their flag and their country by maintaining their good citizenship the rest of the year are not the mainstays of the government.

Those who "swear off" from all their wrong-doings on New Year's Day and then gradually "swear on" during the remaining 364 days of the year do not work the genuine and lasting reforms

Those who pull the weeds from the graves of the dead but once a year, on Memorial Day, and cover the mounds with flowers for the inspection and admiration of the visiting public, are not the most loyal to the memory of

And likewise, those persons who, on Undertaking and one appointed day each year, are grateful for blessings received, but who are simistic and fault-finding the rest of she time, are not the ones who have learned the true lesson of gratitude.

We should remember the seven days of the week and keep them reasonably holy. We should not have all our goodness in spots. It ought to be a fair every-day average. Our patriotism should extend throughout the year. Our desire to do better should result in new resolves being made evey day and every hour.

It is easy enough to say we are going to do better this year, but are we ready at all times to do the right thing this minute? And our gratitude should be as constant and unceasing as the coming of the manifold blessings that serve to make life a beautiful joy and eternity a pleasurable hope.

We ought to feel thankful once in a while without having our attention called to it by special proclamation from the President and Governor.

Dear old Thanksgiving Day, freighted with gratitude and gravy, cranberries and good cheer, turkey and troubled dreams, is a spendid institution, but it should not be the only day on which we clasp hands with loved friends and try to find reasons for feeling glad that the jocund undertaker has not been called in to give our remains a present-
