Subject, "The Gallows For Haman"—From the Life and Death of This Persian Courtier Living Lessons of Warning and Instruction Are Drawn.

Text: "So they hanged Haman on the gallows that he had prepared for Mordecai."—Esther vii., 10.

Here is an Oriental courtier, about the most offensive man in Hebrew history, Haman by name. He plotted for the destruction of the Israelite nation, and I wonder not that in some of the Hebrew synagogues to this day when Haman's name is mentioned, the congregation clench their fists and stamp their feet and cry, "Let his name be blotted out!"

Queen Esther this whole plot was revealed to her husband, Abasuerus. One night Abasuerus, who was afflicted with insomnia, in his sleepless hours called for his secretary to read him a few passages of Persian history, and so while away the night. In the book read that night to the king an account was given of a conspiracy, from which Mordecai, the Hebrew, had saved the king's life. Because of that affront Haman gets a decree from Abasuerus, the dastardly king, for the massacre of all the Israelites, and that, of course, will include Mordecai.

To make a long story short, through Queen Esther this whole plot was revealed to her husband, Abasuerus. One night Abasuerus, who was afflicted with insomnia, in his sleepless hours called for his secretary to read him a few passages of Persian history, and so while away the night.

Why, your majesty ought to make a triumph for him, and put a crown on him and set him on a splendid horse, high stepping and full-blooded, and then have one of your princes lead the horse through the streets, and let all about you compliment him. Now you go out and make a triumph for Mordecai, the Hebrew, whom the king had saved the best of the king's life, and you, the prince, hold the stirrup while Mordecai goes on, and then lead his horse through the street. Make haste!

What a spectacle! A comedy and tragedy at one and the same time. There they go! Mordecai, who had been despised, now started and roared, in the stirrups. Haman, the chamberlain, aloof, holding the reins, nudging, clamping salutes, Mordecai bows his neck at last, but it is to look down at the degraded Prime Minister walking beneath him. Haman for Mordecai Alas for Haman! But what a pity to have the gallows, recently built, entirely wasted. It is fifty cubits high, and built with care. And Haman had erected it for Mordecai, for whose stirrups he now walks as groom. Stranger and more startling than any romance, there go up the steps of the scaffolding, side by side, the hangman and Haman the ex-chamberlain.

"So they hanged Haman on the gallows that he had prepared for Mordecai." Although so many years have passed since cowardly Abasuerus reigned, and the beautiful Esther answered to his whim, and Haman perished, yet from the life and death of Haman we may draw living lessons of warning and instruction. And first, we come to the practical suggestion that, when the heart is wrong, things very insignificant will destroy our comfort. Who would have thought that the great Prime Minister, admired and applauded by millions of Persians, would have been so nettled and harassed by anything trivial? What more could the great dignitary have wanted than his chariots and attendants, and palaces and banquets? If affluence of circumstances can make a man contented and happy, surely Haman should have been contented and happy. No, Mordecai's refusal of a bow takes the glitter from the gold, and the splendor from the purple, and the spend from the chariots. With a heart puffed up with every inflation of vanity and revenge, it was impossible for him to be happy. The silence of Mordecai at the gate was louder than the braying of trumpets in the palace. Thus shall it always be if the heart is not right. Circumstances the most trivial will disturb the spirit.

It is not the great calamities of life that create the most worrisome. I have seen men, vexed by repeated blows of misfortune, arising from the dust, never despondent. But the most of the misfortune that enters is from insignificant causes, as a lion attacked by some beast of prey turns easily around and slays him, yet runs roused through the forests at the slightest on his brawny neck of a few insects. You must see great loss in business with contented composure; but you can think of petty trickeries inflicted upon you, which arouse all your capacity for wrath, and remain in your heart an unbearable annoyance. If you look back upon your life, you will find that the most of the vexations and disturbances of spirit, which you felt were produced by circumstances that were not worthy of notice. If you want to be happy, you must not care for trifles. Do not be too minute in your inspection of the treatment you receive from others. Who cares whether Mordecai bows when you pass, or stands erect and stiff as a cedar? That woodman would not make much clearing in the forest who should stop to bludgeon every little beetle and scorpion he received in the thicket; nor will that man accomplish much for the world or the church who is too watchful and appreciative of petty annoyances. There are multitudes of people in the world constantly harassed because they pass their lives not in searching out those things which are attractive and deserving, but in spying out with all their powers of vision to see whether they cannot find a Mordecai.

Again: learn the lesson that pride goes before a fall. Was any man ever so far up as Haman, who tumbled so far down? Yes, on a smaller scale every day the world sees the same thing. Against the vast advantage of the man trip into destruction. When God humbles proud men, it is usually at the moment of their greatest prosperity. Here he has a man in your community greatly puffed up with worldly success, you have but to stand a little while, and you will see him come down. You say, I wonder that God allows that man to go on riding over others' heads and making great assumptions of power. There is no wonder about it. Haman has not yet got to the top. Pride is a commander, well planned and equipped, but it leads forth a dark and menacing host. We have the best of authority for saying that "Pride goes before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall." The arrows from the Almighty's quiver are apt to strike a man when on the wings of Goliath makes his great spears of defiance, and the small stones from the brook Elish make him stagger and fall like an ox under the butcher's blade. He who is down cannot fall. Vessels sailing under lar poles do not feel the force of the storm, but those with gaudy, capsize at the sudden descent of the tempest.

Development of the Transvaal.

In 1802 the main trunk line from Cape Town was pushed forward from its then northern terminus to Johannesburg. The distance from Cape Town to Johannesburg by rail is 1,013 miles. In 1804 the road was completed from Delagoa Bay, a port in Portuguese territory on the southeast coast of Africa, to Johannesburg—a distance of 877 miles. The third road reached Johannesburg a year later, from Durban, a port in the British colony of Natal, distant 483 miles.

From 25,000 ounces of gold in 1887, the annual output has risen to 3,000,000 ounces in 1907, giving the Transvaal the second place in the world's gold production. There is no doubt that the present output of the country will rapidly increase, and probably within a few years, notwithstanding the increasing output of other countries, the Transvaal will rank first as a gold producer.

The town of Johannesburg may be taken as a good index of the wonderful expansion of the gold-mining industry of the district. From a few huts in 1884, it has developed into a town of 100,000 inhabitants. The character of its buildings is any of the enterprising mining towns in Western America. Indeed, Johannesburg has but little of the aspect of an American mining camp. In its general appearance it resembles an American town of Spokane or Salt Lake City—John Hays Hammond, the Engineer-in-Chief.

Tea at $143 per Pound. One hundred and forty three dollars a pound is what Ceylon tea of a certain kind brought at auction in London some time ago. This is stated, says the Buffalo Courier, on the authority of J. H. Grainger, of the Ceylon Importing Company, who says planters of Ceylon were as much surprised as you or I to the next person at such fabulous price. Owing to certain peculiarities of a pound of that tea probably represents, approximately, one hundred and forty-three dollars' worth of labor; but the figure is fetched is so extraordinary as to give the tea or the sale absolutely no commercial value whatever. This is particularly so because this tea has no appreciable flavor. It is named "the golden dip." The leaves, when only twenty-four hours old, are picked from the top only of tea bushes. They are very small, not half as big as your finger nail, and extra expert pickers are required to gather them. It can be imagined that three hundred or four hundred people on the plantation must pick over several acres of bushes to get enough green one-day-old tea leaves to make a pound of tea when dried. Ordinary tea is from leaves which are ten days old, and consequently very much larger.

Women in Business. From the Free Press, Detroit, Mich. A prominent business man recently expressed the opinion that there is one thing that will prevent women from completely filling many places in the business world, and that is, they are dependent upon their husbands for their support. This is refuted by Mrs. C. W. Mansfield, a business woman of 55 Farrar St., Detroit, Mich., who says: "A complication of female ailments kept me a month in bed, and I was unable to get so relief from medicine and hope was slipping away from me. A young lady in my neighborhood had cured me of my Pink Pills for Pale People. I took them and they cured me as they also cured several other people to my knowledge. I feel that I can do anything I wish to do, and I am a better person for it." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is a good medicine for all ailments of the blood and the nervous system and many a young woman owes her life to them.

He was appointed on merit after having passed his examination with distinction. A pamphlet issued by the State Department containing information as to the sources of the Philippines shows the island and coastwise of gold which can be easily mined. The natives are highly spoken of. A citizen of West Newton, Mass., who was reported to have made some striking remarks about the Stars and stripes, found his doorstep painted red, white and blue when he woke up the other morning, and small bits of red, white and blue paper scattered all over his lawn.

A Railway's Huge Ice Bill. Among the many expenses borne by railroads are the enormous quantities of ice used for the refrigeration of the freight cars. For instance, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad it is expected it will take over $5,000,000 to keep the ice in the refrigerator cars during the summer months. The greater portion is used in connection with shipment of perishable goods, the balance being used for the refrigeration of the passenger train service. A great deal of this ice is put up by the company in its own ice houses, but as the past winter has been so warm a very large proportion has to be purchased.

The "Ivory" is a favorite shaving soap because it makes a profuse rich lather, which softens the beard to be removed and leaves the skin unharmed.

It costs about one-fifth as much as the so-called shaving soaps and many who have used it for this purpose for years, will not have any other.

The vegetable oils of which Ivory Soap is made, fit it for many special uses for which other soaps are unsafe or unsatisfactory.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be just as good as the "Ivory," but they all contain alkali, which does not confer any substantial or exceptional advantages.
