A Tough Contract. "Well, Caleb," said Captain W. of Massachusetts years ago, "what will you ask a day to saw wood for me? I've got several cords that I want sawed in two for the fireplace."

"I should charge you about half a dollar a day if I had a saw," replied Caleb, "but I ain't got none, captain, so I don't see how I can accommodate you."

"If that's all that's lacking, I guess we can manage it," said the captain. "I've got a prime new one, keen as a trier, and I'll let it to you reasonable. How would ninepence (12 1/2 cents) a cord do for the use of it?"

"I reckon that's a fair price, captain. I'll be over in ten minutes." Bright and early that next July morning Caleb was at work, and he kept at it so faithfully that he finished before sunset, when he went to the house to settle.

"Let's see," said the captain, "you were to have half a dollar a day. We'll call it a day, though it ain't sundown yet. That's 50 cents for you, and you were to pay me ninepence a cord for the use of the saw. There were three cords and a half in the pile. That makes 43 1/2 cents due me somehow, Caleb, you don't have very much coming to you."

"How ignorant," said Caleb, after scratching his head doubtfully for half a minute, and then looking up quickly, as if a new light had broken in upon his mind—"how ignorant that you didn't have half a cord more, for then we'd a' come out just square!"—Success.

Musical Family. When Andon was traveling in Labrador, he came, one day, upon a house where the friendly inhabitants made much of him and his companions and where the good wife asked him if he played on any instrument.

"You must be a very musical family," said the narrator. "What sort of an instrument is it?" She was perplexed. "Gentlemen," said she, "my instrument is large, longer than broad, and stands on four legs like a table. At one end is a crooked handle, by turning which, fast or slow, I can assure you we make most excellent music."
