PEOPLE WHO GAMBLE.

Chinese and Italians Especially Admitted to Games of Chance.

Of all the nations of the earth who gamble—and they all do it more or less—the Chinese come in an easy first. Superstition and the gambling mania go in double harness, and while the mandarins fly kites to decide what should be done about Wei-Hai-Wei and Tientsin, the gambler-orientals gamble for their life to pass the time away.

The Chinese laborers in the United States squander their earnings in a game called "white pigeon's ticket." White, by the way, is the unlucky color for the gambler and the lucky one for the keeper of the gaming house. Those gentry keep orange peel in a box, believing that it will bring them luck. The Italian laborers lose their savings, and they gamble persistently, the poor people especially, in the government lotteries. Everything has a number; a cat, a dog, a gondola, and the "Libro dei Sogni"—the book of player's oracles—will tell you what the number is and the rules for interpreting the appearance in dreams. Visitors to Venice, which has always been a stronghold of gambling, may have seen the declaration of the winning figures from the Campanile di St. Mark's—the silent, eager crowd gathered in the square and the group of officials gathered round the boy with the bandaged eyes who draws the numbers from the cage.

VORACIOUS LITTLE ROBINS.

Each Required Fourteen Yards of Area to Survive Every Day.
A would-be philanthropist relates his experiences trying to put mother to rest of little robins, which had by some accident been deprived of their rightful mother's care. He diligently set to work digging angleworms, and supposed that he was fulfilling his whole duty, when one of the poor little songsters died. Upon examination of the body, which was reduced to skin and bone, the foster parent came to the conclusion that it must have died of starvation.

Deeply grieved at his shortcoming he redoubled his efforts, determining at least to save the other two. It was not long, however, before a second one died, evidently of the same malady. The good man then resolved that, whatever the third one did of it, should not be starvation, and took off his coat and went to work in earnest. He kept on with the angleworm diet until he found that his one little bird was consuming from 14 to 18 yards of angleworms a day. This was too much for his patience, and he proceeded to substitute the more easily managed diet of bread and milk and other delicacies, which were, however, not nearly so much to Miss Robin's taste.

Wanting to discover whether he had been catering to a family of abnormal appetites, our friend took to watching the methods of a real mother bird and found that she fed her young every two minutes. He then consulted the learned books upon birds and discovered that 14 yards of worms a day, with meals every two minutes, is the average rate of feeding fledglings. He has therefore decided that he does not care to take up raising birds by hand as a business.

He Got the Ad.
"You're not one of the horrid paper men," cried the girl who speaks her mind, "though I did once meet a reporter from you who was rather nice. He came to see about getting an advertisement—What? Not a reporter? Why, I thought he was. Well, anyway I had lost a dog and he said he had heard of it and would do me up if I didn't want to advertise in his paper for it. I told him I didn't believe I liked his old paper, and he said he didn't think much of it himself, but he thought it was pretty apt to reach the class of people who stole dogs. And so since he was so polite about it I thought I might as well advertise in it. But I didn't get the dog."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Show Your Best Qualities.
Honesty does not require us to hang our oil paintings faced to the wall in order that our friends may see that they are made on coarse canvas. It is right to appear always at our best. Give the world your brightest thoughts, your most courteous speech, the outcome of your kindest impulses and purest motives, no matter if you are conscious that these things are above your ordinary level. God made the flowers show their colors, not their dull fibrous matter; to lead the air with their odors, not with the rankness of their sap.—Homiletic Review.

Romance Versus Reality.
The romanticist speaks: A realist is a man who takes his own vision of the world as true and the visions of all other persons as false.
The realist speaks: The romanticist is a man who has forgotten the origin and meaning of the nursery tales which his head is filled.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Undertaking.
The Hastings and Patton Undertaking Co. has an office in the Spencer block, Hastings, and in the Kirk Hardware store in Patton. Telephone connections, Hastings No. 77; Patton No. 3. C. C. Greninger, Patton, and H. J. Ealy, Hastings, are the funeral directors.

HOW TO FIND OUT.
Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or setting indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. At drugstore fifty cents or one dollar.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, if you send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure and mention that you read this generous offer in the PATTON COURIER.
