Hurrah For Thropp!

By R. Bruce Stambaugh.
As politicians all do know
The campaigns come and campaigns go,
You would not then a good thing stop,
So let us all Hurrah for Thropp.

A man we all are proud to meet,
Whose heart with Justice and Truth doth beat,
Who never tries the right to stop,
Such is the name of J. E. Thropp.

Entrusted with the care of ours,
He steers his path of life with flowers,
Not wishing in his work to stop,
We'll send him back—Hurrah for Thropp.

'Tis soon like he who give our State,
And make our Union strong and great,
The Spanish flag was made to drop
By men of honor, such as Thropp.

He represents us firm and true
As well as morals, man can do,
We do not wish his work to stop,
We'll send him back—Hurrah for Thropp.

Another antagonistic agent,
Whose Democratic life hath spent,
And now into our ranks doth pop
In order to retire Thropp.

Oh! Reynolds, thou art blindly led
Or sure you would not go ahead
And try a greater man to drop,
Impossible! Hurrah for Thropp.

'Till freedom time is brought about
And all but one must be cast out,
We all will say "John M. P. drop,
Instead of him 'll vote for Thropp."

Hurrah for Thropp! Three cheers for Thropp
And Reynoldsism they will drop,
Prosperity will be on top,
Hurrah! Oh yes, Hurrah for Thropp.

In Railroad Verdict.

At a railroad wreck official investigation recently, according to an exchange, the "brakeman" on the carpet recited his version of the story this wise: "The 'on' was flipping the tassel in the doghouse, the hind 'whack' was freezing a hot hub near the hind end; tallow 'pot' was cracking diamonds in the tank; 'Eagle Eye' was down greasing the pig and I was bending the rails, when they hit us. Under a lengthy cross-examination this was translated to mean that the conductor was examining the orders in the cupola. The rear brakeman was cooling off a journal. The fireman was breaking coal. The engineer was oiling the engine and the head brakeman was throwing a switch when the collision took place.—Railroad Telegrapher.

Sympathy Which Costs.

A man named Walker, who has been for some years a resident of Point Lookout, while bringing a load of coal into town some three weeks ago, saw, lying by the roadside, a fawn having a broken leg, and seemingly suffering greatly. Thinking to relieve the animal, he killed it and took it home. Some days afterwards he was arrested, and was given a hearing before Judge LaPorte on Monday night, the outcome of the hearing being that he was fined $100.00. Mr. Walker will take the case to court at its next term in hope of securing redress.—Phillipsburg Bituminous Record.

A. R. DeFuent, editor of the Journal, Doylestown, Ohio, suffered for a number of years from rheumatism in his right shoulder and side. He says: "My right arm at times was entirely useless. I tried Chamberlain's pain relief and was surprised to receive relief almost immediately. The pain has been a constant companion of mine ever since and it never fails."
