The COURIER is under obligations to the management of the Pannsutawney Fair for courtesies received. The writer had the pleasure of attending the fair at Pannsutawney last year and everybody was well pleased with the many attractions. This year they have made a much greater effort to secure good attractions. The fair will be held this year on August 21, 22, 23 and 24.

"Should women wear their hats in church?" This question came up for discussion among the trustees of a church in Lexington, Mo., and one ingenious gentleman suggested that the matter might be adjusted by compelling the ladies to all sit together on one side of the auditorium, and thus "permit them to view the preacher through a jungle of ribbons, feathers and gewgaws!"

Chinese are dangerous enemies, for they are treacherous. That's why all counterfeits of DeWitt's witch hazel salve are dangerous. They look like DeWitt's, but instead of the all-healing witch hazel they all contain ingredients liable to irritate the skin and cause blood poisoning. For piles, injuries and all skin diseases use the original and genuine DeWitt's witch hazel salve. C. W. Hodgkins, Patton Pharmacy.

Fatally Follows Failure

To use Foley's Kidney cure in time. If taken in earlier stages of Bright's disease and diabetes, it is certain cure. You have noticed the high death rate from these diseases, and it is not wise to ignore early symptoms when a medicine like Foley's Kidney cure can be had. Patton Pharmacy.

Reduced Rates to Chicago.

On account of the Thirty-fourth Annual Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, to be held at Chicago, August 27-31, inclusive, the Pennsylvania Railroad company will sell excursion tickets from points on its line to Chicago, at rate of single fare for the round trip. Tickets will be sold on August 25, 26, and 27, good to return until August 31, inclusive; but by depositing ticket with joint agent at Chicago, prior to noon of September 2, and the payment of fifty cents, return limit may be extended to September 30 inclusive.

The lack of energy you feel, the backache and a run down condition generally, all means kidney disorder. Foley's Kidney cure will restore your strength and vigor by making the kidneys well. Take no substitute. Patton Pharmacy.

A shark in a Florida river met a 400-pound turtle and tried to swallow him, tail first. The turtle extended his forward flippers, and the shark, after repeated efforts to get him down, was reluctantly compelled to turn the rascal out.

"I am a switchman," writes A. J. Jenness, of 9201 Botter St., Chicago, "and am out in all kinds of weather. I took a cold which settled in my kidneys and was in very bad shape. I tried several advertised medicines with no benefit until I was recommended to take Foley's Kidney cure. Two-thirds of a bottle cured me!" Patton Pharmacy.

A girl shoplifter stole a clock in a store in New York the other day, but the alarm went off before she reached the door and she was arrested.

During the civil war, as well as in our late war with Spain, diarrhoea was one of the most troublesome diseases the army had to contend with. In many instances it became chronic and the old soldiers still suffer from it. Mr. David Taylor, of Wind Ridge, Greene Co., Pa., is one of these. He uses Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and says he never found anything that would give him such quick relief. It is for sale by C. W. Hodgkins, Patton Pharmacy.

LOG JAMS.

The Force They Exert and How They Are Broken Up.

"A log jam is one of the most formidable problems we have to encounter in our line of business," said a Mississippi lumberman. "How they begin is difficult to explain. A few dozen logs will become wedged for an instant in a narrow part of a stream and in less time than it takes me to tell it hundreds of others will come swooping down and pack themselves in an intricate, close, vast space, reaching from bank to bank, and almost as solid as a rock. The force they exert is something marvelous. During one jam in my section I saw a lot of logs plunge under the edge of the blockade, and a few seconds later they pushed their way up through the very middle of the pack, rising timbers as big around as a man's waist into the air like so many toothpicks. The noise they made as they drove through the mass was simply deafening. It sounded as if the solid earth was being torn up by its foundations. When the logs passed under the jam, they were evidently caught in such a way as to still further obstruct the imprisoned stream and were hurled upward with all the irresistible energy of millions of gallons of rushing water.

"The breaking of a jam is a very ticklish operation and seems to be largely a matter of instinct with old rivermen. The lines and angles of strain in such a blockade are so complicated that the best engineer in the world is apt to go wrong in indicating the proper point of attack. A veteran lumberman, on the contrary, will often take a long look at the mass and then point out the 'key log.' The key log is the timber on which the strain centers, and when it is blown out or pried out, the pack, in almost every instance, will break up of itself. I had an old fellow in my employ a few years ago who could locate a key log nine times out of ten. He couldn't read or write, knew nothing about engineering, and was unable to explain how he arrived at his conclusions. He said it came 'kicker' as he said it." — New Orleans Times-Democrat.

SHAKESPEAREAN PARTS.

The Melancholy Dane is the Longest of Them All.

The longest part in any Shakespearean play is Hamlet, who is before the audience almost constantly. Hamlet is a constant talker, and it is surprising that in the circumstances he says so many wise things. He has to his share 1,540 lines. Richard III is another long part, as the character speaks 1,101 lines, and next comes Iago, with 1,117 lines. Henry V has 1,003 lines.

One would suppose from seeing the representation or from looking over the play that Othello had more lines than Iago, but it is not the case. For the valiant Moor has only 888 lines. Coriolanus has 880, the Duke in "Measure For Measure" 880 and Timon 883. Antony in "Antony and Cleopatra" does not seem a very long part judging by the appearance of the prompt book, but in reality he has 830 lines.

Bruno in "Julius Caesar" has 777 lines. In "Henry IV" Marbeth appears a long part judging from how much he is on the stage in the representation, but in fact he has only 707 lines. Romeo has 618, which is only a few more than the King in "Hamlet," who has 601. Cassius in "Julius Caesar," although a first class part, has but 507 lines.

The female parts in Shakespeare's plays are not long. The actress who plays Portia has 589 lines to study. Rosalind has 749. Cleopatra has 679 and Juliet 541. Desdemona has only 389. Beatrice has 309. Only 20 of Shakespeare's women have more than 300 lines each, and some of the most famous of the great bard's female creations have comparatively little to say. Cordelia in "King Lear" has only 115 lines. Kate in "Taming of the Shrew," although so conspicuous and volatile, has but 223 while Lady Macbeth has but 211. — Baltimore American.

Moons Views From the Grant Tomb.

Persons of romantic temperament have discovered that the best place in New York from which to watch the moon rising on the east is the tomb of General Grant's tomb. Standing as it does, away from all other buildings, at the highest part of the Riverside drive, with the beautiful Hudson river flowing softly along a hundred feet below, the noble edifice in which lies the hero is as full of poetical charm as the Alhambra itself. As the moon rises such an image stays the eye. It was the charm of solitude at least has certainly departed. — New York Letter in Pittsburg Dispatch.

His Supposition.

A philanthropic lady of Pacific Heights, one of the set of expensive sinners shown up in "Fables in Slang," met on one of her tours a little boy who was swearing roundly. She seized him at once and gave him a good shaking, adding: "You ought to be ashamed of yourself. I never heard such language since the day I was born." The boy into whose soul she had just been breathing light pulled himself loose. "Yes'm," he said, "I suppose there was a good deal of cussin' de day you was born." — San Francisco Wave.

He Took the Hint.

"It is my sin in life," he said, "to make men happier."

"Why not women?" she asked. — Chicago Post.
