A local paper is supposed to print all the news, but if the publisher printed all the drunks, scraps, family rackets, etc., what a howl there would be. You never know the value of the home paper until you want something kept out of its columns, then the editor is the best fellow in town.

Just before the big storm Wednesday of last week John Pzewell started to walk from Vintondale to an adjoining farm. He failed to arrive and the next day he was found dead, his skull crushed by a large tree that had been blown down by the gale. A gun that he carried was broken to pieces.

Five Farmington, Me., boys, 12 to 14 years of age, were out in the woods recently, and they came across a deer. It tried to escape but they were too quick for it, and one of them stunned it with a club and another quickly cut its throat with a pocket knife. Then they bore home their venison, and perhaps they didn't enjoy telling the story to the other boys in the village.

Harry Jones and Henry Good of Cambria township, this county, were going to work in the woods recently, when they came across some coon tracks. They followed the trail, which led to an old stump, and in its hollow interior were found three fine specimens, of the coon family, the three weighing forty pounds.

Made His Last Run. P. R. R. Engineer Harry W. Irwin of Conemaugh, has made his last run. This well known employe of the P. R. R., who was engineer on a "pusher" from Conemaugh, went in off his run and checked up at 12:57 on the time card in the Conemaugh yard office Sunday afternoon. He went home at once; arrived there, he hadn't time to remove his overalls when he died. Apoplexy caused his sudden death. Mr. Irwin was married and left a widow with one child. His parents were Christ and Mary Irwin of Altoona. He enjoyed a wide acquaintance among the P. R. R. employes and was popular. He was aged 34 years. The remains were taken to Altoona, Monday. The funeral was held from the home of his parents, Wednesday.

To study for the Ministry. C. W. Greene, who has been the efficient assistant in the postoffice in this place ever since E. W. Grothe, his uncle, took charge, resigned his position and departed for his home in Brookwayville, Pa., Monday, to spend Thanksgiving with his parents. Next Monday Clark, will depart from his home for Galeburg, Ill., where he will enter a course of study for the Universalist ministry. Mr. Greene was a progressive citizen while here, being the main promoter in organizing the Patton band, took an active part in the M. E. church choir, and always had a kind word for all. His many friends here wish him much success in his chosen profession, and hope that in his new abode, he will enjoy the best of health. Summing it all up Mr. Greene was a noble acquisition to our town, and his departure will be much regretted by all.

A New Coal Field. A new discovery of a great coal field was made by Prof. E. Wentz in Cambria county. It is in the vicinity of St. Lawrence, commencing two miles below Patton and reaching to Flynn City and the first named place. A 41 foot vein in the C. Gill's and Leaden's hill. Fine foot in this same vein is open to purchasers at a valuable price. The qualities of coal are genuine for coke and steam, and in a good location for railroads to operate it without interfering. Come all moneyed men and buy a good undeveloped coal field that is in one of the best fields that can be purchased in this county. Call and see while lands are sacrificed to low prices. Prof. E. WENTZ, Carelstown, Pa.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will digest what you eat. C. W. Hodgkins.

The Strivers of Society.

The dark blot that divorce makes in society are too easily seen and too sad to write much about, so I will give only a few incidents of the absurd and humiliating positions in which people may be placed: I once occupied a seat on the grand stand at the Newport Casino during a tennis match. After I had been in my seat a short time, a man I knew, once divorced, but remarried, came in with his new wife and occupied the two seats on my left, and a few moments later the woman from whom he had been divorced and who had also remarried came in with her new husband and sat directly on my right. Whether the ticket agent arranged this for a joke I am not prepared to say, but all went well until I grew tired of the game and got up, leaving the four in a straight row, which made an interesting picture for a few moments. The four soon realized, however, what people were staring and smiling at, and looking daggers at one another, immediately rose and disappeared in the crowd. The incident amused the lads and misses very much.

A lady I know very well in New York, who was giving a dinner party, had one who always dropped the subject of her guests at her table, lest she put people together who the "law had set apart," as she put it. "It would be perfectly dreadful to seat a gentleman beside a lady to whom he is paying alimony," Smart Set.

The Court Needed Posting. A trial was progressing at the City Hall police court when the judge espied in a group of young girls mingling in the large audience a delinquent witness whom it was urgent he interview. "Mr. Marshall," his honor exclaimed, "have that young lady stay here."

"Which young lady, your honor?" "I don't know her name—the one with the light straw hat and dark skirt," the court added. The clerk was indignant. "What kind of waist?" inquired the marshal.

"None on the sleeves and trimmed with—er—the usual sort of what d'you call em," said the court. "I understand, you mean leg of mutton sleeves, with—er—what's his name attachments," replied the marshal in faint hope of striking the technical term.

"Not exactly," said the judge. "Would you recognize an empire gown if you saw one, Mr. Marshall?" "Upon oath, no; I wouldn't swear to it."

"Well, I know it wasn't an empire gown or a Mother Hubbard. I don't think you understand much about female apparel?" But here the young lady generously stepped forward, while a little boy laughed, and the marshal threatened to send him to the penitentiary for life. —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Fatful Results of Stomach. A stout man lifted himself into a Heights car the other morning and took the only vacant seat. Pretty soon a lady came aboard, and the stout man quickly arose to tender her his place. As he reached a standing position, the car suddenly started and he sat down with a sound like a broken slat. Rushing deeply, he once more struggled to his feet and was about to step out into the aisle when the motorman saw a wagon on the track and fiercely applied the brakes. The car stopped so suddenly that the stout man tumbled over the third rail and the lady sympathetically remarked, "Please don't trouble yourself." But the fat man's spirit was up. He crowded out into the aisle and filled it so full that the lady could not get by him; then, with a polite wave of his hand, he deflected the seat and backed out of the way.

"Thank you," said the lady very sweetly. "But I got off at the next stop." Then the fat man went out and filled up the back platform.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Buying Fruit. The prudent man never buys the fruit which is marked with the highest price, and his motive is not merely economy. He knows that the second grade fruit is superior than the best expensive, which in nine cases out of ten is too green to be eaten immediately. It is held in high prices because the dealer knows that it will keep, and as it ripens and grows better fit for human consumption its price will be reduced. That is the stage of the fruit when the price is lowered for the first time. It is then ripe and in condition to be eaten. And the prudent man who doesn't always feel that he has got the best article only when he pays the most for it buys his fruit at the marked down price.—New York Sun.

Her Mind Easy. "I hear you are going to Australia with your husband, Kitty," said the mistress. "Aren't you nervous about the long voyage?" "Well, w'at'n," said Kitty calmly. "that's his lookout. I belong to him now and if anything happens to me it'll be his loss, not mine." Exchange.

As It Usually Happens. "I suppose you had careful rearing, Mr. Courtney." "No, I didn't have any rearing at all. My parents exhausted all their little-baby enthusiasm on my elder brother, Bill."—Detroit Free Press.

The Mayflower, after her memorable trip across the Atlantic with the pilgrim fathers of New England, went into the West Indian cotton trade and was lost in a cyclone.
