Have You One in the Procession?

It would probably startle a good many persons on the authority of a well-known statistician, that, could the infants of a year be ranged in a line, in cradles, the cradles, would extend round the globe. The same writer looks at the matter in a more picturesque light. He imagines the babies being carried past a given point in their mothers' arms, one by one, and the procession being kept up night and day until the last hour in the twelfth month has passed by. A sufficient liberal rate is allowed, but even in the going past at the rate of twenty a minute, 1,200 an hour, during the entire year, the reviewer at his post would only have seen a sixth part of the infantile host. In other words, the babe that had to be carried during the tramp began would be able to walk when but a mere fraction of its comrades had reached the reviewer's post, and when the year's supply of babies was drawing to a close there would be a rear guard, not of infants, but of romping 10-year-old boys and girls.—Medical Councillor.

It Makes Restful Sleep.
