Bryan. There are only eight exceptions to this rule.

—Mrs. W. L. Daggett returned from Baltimore on Tuesday, having been with Mr. Daggett ever since he underwent his serious operation in Johns Hopkins a month ago. She brought the cheering information that his condition is very satisfactory to both physicians and nurses and that when she left he was able to take a few steps, a feat it was hardly expected he would be in condition to do until at least eight weeks after the operation. —Bellevue Watchman. —Patton seems to be the mecca for Mahaffey boys who go boated. Two of them went there Saturday and when they began to cast about for a coal train upon which to get home they found that none were running and they were with only 25 cents. They were pretty decent young men, however, and were able to borrow enough money to see them safely home. Of course they don't want their names in the Gazette and we withhold it, knowing as well as we do from experience of our own, how it feels to go broke and carry a rich man's demeanor. —Mahaffey Gazette. —Winter Excursion Route Book. In pursuance of its annual custom the passenger department of the Pennsylvania railroad company has just issued an attractive and comprehensive book descriptive of the leading winter resorts of the East and South, and giving the rates and various routes and combinations of routes of travel. Like all the publications of the Pennsylvania railroad company, this "Winter Excursion Book" is a model of typographical and clerical work. It is bound in a handsome and artistic cover in colors, and contains much valuable information for winter tourists and travelers in general. It can be had free of charge at the principal ticket offices of the Pennsylvania railroad company or will be sent post-paid upon application to Geo. W. Boyd, assistant general passenger agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia. —Notice to Taxpayers. The county tax duplicate for 1901 is now in my hands for collection. All parties who have not paid said taxes are requested to do so within 30 days of this notice, otherwise same will be collected with costs. W. P. JACKSON, Constable. Patton, October 28th, 1901. —Clothes and the Man. If a Filipino enters the house of a European living in an unassuming way, he will not believe that the European is either wealthy or wise, and although his manner may be correct, it will not be humble. On the other hand, if he visits an ignorant man who indulges in great splendor, he will at once become exceedingly respectful. Mr. Phelps Whitmarsh, who in The Outlook gives his experiences in the islands, tells the story of a wealthy provincial visiting Manila for the first time, who asked to be presented to the governor general. When he reached the palace, he found the governor taking coffee on a piazza, dressed comfortably in a white cotton suit. The Filipino requested that some favor be extended to his district, and his request was granted. He then withdrew. The official who had procured the presentation asked him what he thought of the general. "Why," replied the visitor in a tone of disappointment, "he is no different from any other white man." It so happened that the general was told of the incident, and he gave orders that at his next reception the Filipino should be present. Upon entering the throne room and seeing the general in full uniform, surrounded by his brilliant staff, with the necessities of splendid tapestries, laced ushers and all the pomp and splendor of these Spanish functions, the provincial grew pale and, kneeling in deep humility, exclaimed: "This is indeed my general!" "So impressed was he that the following morning he sent a pair of handsome horses to the general with a note which read: "My general, yesterday I liked you so much in your uniform of gold that I send you this pair of horses, but do not use them when you dress in a white suit." —Two Great Objects. "They say," remarked the very cynical person, "that in this corrupt and superficial age the great object is not to be found out." "That shows you have very little experience with bill collectors," answered the impetuous friend. "My great object is not to be found in." —Washington Star. —Spinners. Unmarried women are called spinners, or spinning women, because it was a maxim among our forefathers that a young woman should not marry until she had spun enough linen to furnish her house. All unmarried, old or young, were then called spinners, a name still retained in all legal documents. —Trying It on the Building. Markleigh—Your office seems badly messed up. Have you no janitor? Barkleigh—We have one, but since he became a faith curist, he has been giving the office "absent treatment." —Baltimore American. —A story first heard at a mother's knee is seldom forgotten, and the same may be said of other things received at a mother's knee, which will readily recur to the reader. —Chicago News.
